Jackson, Oakland's colorful, outspoken outfielder who Thursday received an automobile for being named most valuable player in the As seven-game World Series victory over New York Mets, does not need the six-figure contract he'll almost certainly receive from A's owner Charles O. Finley next year.

Because of baseball, and the fortunate things that have happened to me in business, I could walk away from the game today and still be well off financially," said the 27-year-old Jackson, whose real estate ventures have lifted his financial status to millionaire heights.

"But I love the game of baseball —there's nothing like it for me."

Jackson said his World Series ring and MVP car mean more to him than his hefty income.

"This car, to me, is like a trophy—you can't drive it," Jackson said. "It's just like this ring. You've got to go out and win it. It cost me $6 million people. You've got to prove you can handle the pressure involved. It's something special."

Jackson proved in 1973 that he was indeed something special. He batted a career-high .293 and topped the American League with 32 home runs and 117 runs batted in.

What are his goals for 1974?

"I could hit .300," he mused, "maybe hit a few more home runs or drive in a few more runs. I could have a better World Series . . . what's wrong with another championship?"

Mauch Manager of the Year

NEW YORK (AP) — Fiery Gene Mauch, the only field boss Montreal Expos have had since joining the National League in 1969, was named Thursday as manager of the year in the National League for the third time.

The 47-year-old Mauch, considered a clever baseball tactician, received 121 votes in the Associated Press poll of sports writers and broadcasters and easily topped Yogi Berra of the league champion New York Mets for the honor.

Berra collected 94 votes in the balloting based solely on regular-season performances.

Sparky Anderson, the 1972 National League Manager of the Year who guided Cincinnati Reds, to their third West Division title in four years, finished third in this year's poll with 77 votes. He was followed by Walter Alston of Los Angeles Dodgers with 16 votes; Red Schoendienst of St. Louis Cardinals, 11; all season Danny Ozark of Philadelphia Phillies, two, and Pittsburgh's Bill Virdon, dismissed late in the season, and San Francisco's Charlie Fox, one each.

Mauch, a former major-league infielder who batted .239 with six teams, directed the Expos to a fourth-place finish—their best ever—in the National League East this season. The club posted a 79-83 record, its finest in history, and wound up only 9½ games behind the pennant-winning Mets. The Expos stayed in contention virtually until the season's final week before losing streak in the stretch brought hopes for their first pennant.

Montreal had finished sixth in the East in Mauch's first two seasons at the helm and fifth each of the next two years.

He was named National League Manager of the Year in 1965 and 1966, and directed the National League to a 6-4 victory over the American League in the 1965 all-star game at Bloomington, Minn.

Mauch began his managerial career in 1953 with Atlanta Crackers of the Southern Association. Even though his team finished third that season, he quit, saying: "I don't think I had the maturity to handle the job the way I wanted to do it."

He didn't manage again until five years later when he piloted Minneapolis Millers of the American Association to the Little World Series championship with a four-game sweep over Montreal Royals of the International League.

Before the 1973 season, he had said: "I'm excited because I can see improvement in this club. I know I can't show it on paper. But I know that we are a better club—that, over-all, the play is better."

Now, he can show it on paper.

In Montreal, Expos general manager Jim Fanning, said:

"I think it is a tremendous honor and well deserved.

"I think it confirms what we have been saying all along Mauch was and still is the best manager in baseball."

Mauch signed a new two-year contract with the Expos at the end of the season.

Jenkins and McCovey To Last Place Clubs

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Ferguson Jenkins, who wasn't sure if he wanted to play again, and Willie McCovey, who was sure he wasn't playing enough, both suffered the same fate.

They were traded to last place clubs.

Jenkins, from Chatham, Ont., a 20-game winner for six straight seasons with Chicago Cubs before faltering this year, was dealt Tuesday to Texas Rangers, the last-place team in the American League West, for Bill Madlock and Vic Harris Thursday.

McCovey, who has blasted 413 career homers for San Francisco Giants, had was critical of the San Francisco manager Charlie Fox for benching him in 1973, was traded to San Diego Padres, last place club in the National League West, for pitcher Mike Caldwell.

In addition, the Padres will receive minor league outfielder Bernie Williams.

In other baseball developments, president Joe Cronin of the American League asked Detroit for details on the signing of manager Ralph Houk and slugger Frank Howard, was given his release by the Tigers.

NEW LEAGUE FORMED

NEW YORK (AP) — A professional football league that will play by American rules will be in operation in Europe by next May, its organizers said Thursday, and a concerted effort to recruit American players is under way. Bob Kap of Dallas Cowboys, said the European Intercontinental Football League, said franchises have been granted in Munich, Istanbul, Paris, Copenhagen, Barcelona, Milan, Rome, Rotterdam, London, Athens and Madrid.

Traffic Jam in Teachers' Zone

The traffic is heavy around Teachers' goaltender Casey Sodens' net in last night's Quinte Hockey League game between the Teachers and Stinson Construction. Casey Sodden's fine goaling was one of the factors in the Teachers edged Stinson's 4-2.

Soule Content to Play Waiting Game

By DOUG WALSH

What's the matter with Belleville Screaming Eagles? Ted Soule, manager of the Senior A club, discussed the situation last night. But he's not about to push the panic button.

In his view, there's nothing wrong that a little time and patience won't cure. It's a matter of realizing that in time, the pieces will fit into place and the club will begin to win its share of games, the way Soule sees it.

To date, the club has 22 players signed. During these early days of the season, it's the time to have a look at all the talent available. And Eagles' brass is doing just that.

It's the kind of procedure that takes time, since only 17 players, including two goaltenders, can be dressed for league games. While combinations games on, Eagles are paying the cost. But it's a price worth paying in the long run, says Soule.

That's what it's all about then. Eagles' management realizes it's a long season. Better to find out all there is to know about the player personnel now, than later.

While Soule is willing to play a waiting game when it comes to the performance of the club, he is not sitting still on problems of another nature.

Part of the reason for the club's woes is a lack of suitable practice time claims Soule. He feels the Metro Junior B Bobcats could also use better arrangements for practice sessions. Ast it's no secret the men in charge of the juniors get along with that conservation.

Both teams practice every Wednesday night at Memorial Arena, alternating in 8.30 and 10.15 time slots.

"It's difficult to get players from Trenton, Marysville, Oshawa, Kingston, Lindsay and Peterborough to make it for the 8.30 practice, never mind 10.15," says Soule.

In fact, many of the players find it impossible to show for the weekly sessions. That's got to hurt the club.

Efforts to get more convenient hours for practices are being made. It is expected that representatives from the junior club, the seniors and the recreation - arena commission will meet in the near future to discuss the possibility of making more suitable arrangements.

There may be no solution. Ice time is at a premium. Ben Soule feels something has to be done and the time is now.

Eagles' roster includes: Goalies Clyde Harris and Karl Bagnell; defencemen Greg Burkitt, Greg Marchen, Bob Edmonds, Terry Horrigan, Oshawa, Kingston, Lindsay and Peterborough to make it for the 8.30 practice, never mind 10.15," says Soule.

O'Donnell is listed as a forward-defenceman with the club. He will be used where his talents are most beneficial to the team. No firm decision has been reached on that matter.

"We've got spirit, co-operation between coach Larry Hughes and the players, and we've got the talent," enthuses Soule. "All we need is to put some wins together and I'm sure they'll come."

BCI, Bayside Teams Still Rolling Along

The two undefeated teams in Bay of Quinte high school soccer play their records intact Thursday as Belleville Collegiate Institute blanked Trenton High School 3-0 and Bayside Secondary School shut out Centre Hastings Secondary School 1-0.

Bayside and BCI now meet in an all or nothing game at Bayside Tuesday at 3 p.m. to decide the Bay of Quinte champion. The winner will advance to the Central Ontario Secondary Schools Association playoffs in Peterborough November 3.

BCI opened strongly against the Trenton team and Jamie Mason put the ball just over the bar in the early minutes.

Midway through the first half, a Trenton corner kick had goal written all over it but BCI left half back Gary Doyle was right on the spot to head the ball clear.

Early in the second half, Charlie Nesterovski passed the ball through to Pete Crawford who played it back to Van Vliet. Van Vliet drilled the ball inside the post, giving the Trenton goalie no chance.

With 15 minutes left to play, Nesterovski again pushed the ball through and Brian Kaiser shot it home to make it 2-0.

Belvedere Comeback Foils Reid's Dairy

Belvedere Hotel rolled to its third straight win in Quinte Hockey League action last night, as they edged Reid's Dairy 5-4 in one of two games played at the Arena. The Teachers downed Stinson Construction 4-2 in the other game.

Belvedere scored all their goles within an 11 minute time span to rack up the win.

Reid's had gone ahead on two goals from Reid Mallory, but Ron Urch started the Belvedere comeback with a goal at 1:42 of the third period.

By 12:03 of the period, Ron Francis, Gary Reid, Larry Stewart, and Doug Hallam had added goals to the cause.

Bob Henderson and Elmer Cain had a pair of assists each in the rally.

Bob Rushlow and Jason Morris added the other goals for the Dairymen, while Denny Tompkins had two assists.

The losers took seven minor penalties to the winners' six.

Meanwhile, Al Mott was scoring the winning goal for the Teachers at 14:13 of the third period to give them the win.

Mott slipped a shot past Stinson goaltender Ken Genereaux for the winning tally.

Bruce Hamilton added a insurance marker at 17:54, for his second goal of the game, while Phil Meeks had also scored earlier.

Dave Sheddon had two assists.

Scoring for the Construction women were Dwight Rashwell and Bill Goodfellow.

Stinson took nine penalties to the Teachers' eight.

Quinte In Romp Over BCI

The Quinte Secondary School Juniors evened their record in Bay of Quinte junior football action last night in their final game of the season as they trounced the BCI by a 64 - 18 score.

Bill Forbes and Scott Bowes each contributed 16 points to the winners' total, with two touchdowns and two two-point converts.

Sandy Waterson also had two touchdowns for the winners, while Stan Hyners, Ray Newlands, and Terry France added one major each.

Mike Burke booted four points in three converts and a single.

The names of the BCI scorers were unavailable.

Eddie Maple Takes Over

Secretariat Will Go Turcotte Set Down

TORONTO (CP) — "Everything is go" for the appearance of Triple Crown winner Secretariat in the $125,000-added Canadian International Championship Stakes at Woodbine race-track Sunday, but Ron Turcotte of Grand Falls, N.B., won't be the jockey.

Secretariat's owner, Penny Tweedy of New York, and trainer Lucien Laurin, native of St. Paul de Joliette, Que., announced Thursday night that the horse would run if it doesn't rain.

Turcotte rode Secretariat in a workout before close to 5,000 admirers early Thursday. But flew to New York where he was told by stewards at Aqueduct track he had been set down for five days, effective Saturday, for a careless driving incident Sunday.

A few hours later, Laurin announced in New York that Eddie Maple would replace Turcotte Saturday. Maple is the regular jockey for Secretariat's stablemate, Riva Ridge.

Maple has never ridden Secretariat, but he rode Riva Ridge to second place in the Marlboro Cup which was won by Secretariat in record time.

Maple is scheduled to ride Riva Ridge Saturday in the $100,000-added Molson Club Gold Cup at Aqueduct and then board a plane for Toronto.

Laurin said Secretariat is "a definite starter if we don't get a heavy downpour between now and then."

The weather office said chances were remote that enough rain would fall to make the turf course soft. The forecast for today and Saturday is mainly sunny.

Secretariat worked five eighths of a mile over the Marlboro Cup course in :57 3-5, one second off the track record and Mrs. Tweedy is confident her horse can win the 1¼-mile turf race.

"On past performances," she said, "Secretariat should beat this field."

If he loses, it may not be his last race after all, before going to stud at Claiborne Farms, Ky., Nov. 15.

The promoters of the Washington, D.C. International Stakes at Laurel, Md., have invited Mrs. Tweedy to enter Secretariat in the Maryland race Nov. 10.

"If my horse wins here, he goes to stud without racing again," Mrs. Tweedy said. But she left the impression that she would prefer to see Secretariat go out a winner and for that reason has an option left if he fails at Woodbine.

The stewards decision at Aqueduct "is the most disappointing thing to ever happen to me," Turcotte said Thursday.

"Last race and all, riding in my own country on a Triple Crown winner, winner of the Marlboro Cup and in his racing finale . . . It's terribly disappointing."

Turcotte also will be barred from riding the odds-on favorite, Talking Picture, in the rich Selima Stakes at Laurel Saturday.

Turcotte did not ride Secretariat in the first two races of his career, but was aboard on the other 18.

Post positions for the 10 or 11-horse field will be drawn today.

Secretariat will carry 117 pounds under weight-for-age conditions and his rivals are expected to include Kennedy Road, former Canadian horse of the Year, Triangular, Big Spruce and the filly Tico's Dona.

BRODIE TO RETIRE

REDWOOD CITY, Calif. (AP) — Veteran quarterback John Brodie announced Thursday that he will retire at the end of this season, ending a 17-year playing career with the San Francisco 49ers of the National Football League.

Canadians Fall to Petes

PETERBOROUGH, Ont. (CP) — Peterborough Petes scored four unanswered second-period goals and went on to defeat Kingston Canadians 5-1 in Ontario Hockey Association Junior A action Thursday night before 4,947 fans.

Brad Pirie, Jim Tourkiewicz, Bill Eve, Tony Canolais and Mike Pryia scored for Peterborough while Roger Derosy scored the lone marker for Kingston.

Peterborough outshot Kingston 44-30 and Peterborough received eight of the 13 minor penalties in the game.

Chances for 500? Hawley Optimistic

TORONTO (CP) — Sandy Hawley has no intention of letting the spectre of 1970 hang over his head as he hits the homestretch in his bid to win a single-season "winners" record for jockeys.

That was the year he left for Florida, after the Ontario Jockey Club (OJC) season ended Dec. 7, with 445 "winners" and a chance to erase Willie Shoemaker's record 485.

He ran into a rash of "skid" races on the southern circuit and ended the season with 422 winners—tops in North America but a disappointment to the Oshawa-born rider in only his first year out of the apprentice ranks.

"It was kind of disappointing," Hawley said this week as he explored his program for the remainder of the year, aiming for 500 winners before Dec. 31. "But that's just one of those things that happen and you have to take the bad with the good, that's all.

"You just go along with the play. Life's too short to run a race if you're not going to win it and not ever things."

But the 36-year-old jockey, who makes his home in Mississauga, Ont., with his wife, Sherry, "and a whole bunch of animals," doesn't plan on making the same mistake this time.

"It's getting closer and closer all the time," he said of his ambition to reach the 500-win plateau. "It still looks a long way away, but I think we've still got a good shot at it.

"We'll be going to Maryland when the OJC season ends (on Dec. 1). We haven't been doing too badly there. We won four races there over the week-end. . . . If we leave Greenwood (race track) with a good number, like 480 or something, we should have a pretty good shot at reaching 500."

Does 1974 still worry him? Is he afraid of a similar drought on the U.S. circuit?

"No, said the jockey who is a far more mature rider in his fifth season on the thoroughbred circuits. "When we go to Maryland, we'll have a few good entries to ride for and that's what I didn't have when I went to Florida.

"And that's what you need, no matter where you go. You have to have the horses to ride good horses. If you have good horses, you're going to come up a winner."

Obviously being No. 1 rider on the circuit provides benefits and also some problems for the jockey who, with 417 wins this year and 1,819 career victories, became the first North American jockey with consecutive 400-win seasons.

Spokane World's Fair No Longer Poor Joke

By IVAN SHARPE

SPOKANE, Wash. (Reuter) — At first, it seemed like a poor joke. There were surely more exciting places for a world's fair dedicated to tomorrow's fresh, new environment" than Spokane.

To put it bluntly, Spokane was dingy. Its nearly 300,000 inhabitants were lethargic and young people were fleeing the city.

Its business centre was run-down. The railroads that had built up the city nearly a century ago had left a legacy of crumbling dreariness.

Worst of all, the once rugged beautiful Spokane River which flows through the centre of the city had become a dump for city sewage and solid wastes from ore refineries of northern Idaho.

Then, too, how many people in the world had ever heard of Spokane, just south of the Canadian border and 280 miles east of Seattle, which ran a glittering world's fair in 1962?

We had a very tough time getting it off the ground," conceded King Cole, president of Spokane's Expo 74, in an interview.

The initial reaction everywhere was "You gotta be kidding."

The 51-year-old former city planner spent a year winning the sanction of the 36-nation Bureau of International Exhibitions in Paris to having Spokane as the site of the only world's fair in the United States this decade.

That was his biggest hurdle. But the others—such as firing up the people of Spokane with enthusiasm and civic pride—took all the boundless energy of Cole and others.

The results will be seen next May, when Expo 74 opens for six months on two small downtown islands that used to hold railroad yards and warehouses.

Cole believes the change will be miraculous.

"It will be the smallest world's a fair ever held, but it's going to be the most attractive," he said. It will be just like a small jewel box."

Although no one expects the river to be crystal clear by the time the fair opens, the city is making mighty efforts to clean it up. Already fish are returning in large numbers.

Maybe it'll be clean enough for me to take a swim in it on opening day," Cole said. The river flows by the 100-acre fair grounds in a series of rapids and waterfalls.

Other goals are to get rid of abandoned cars, remove slums and grim buildings and erase garbage dumps.

New construction in a city that rarely used to see a new building is expected to total nearly $300 million. Hotels, office buildings and apartment towers are sprouting around the fair site.

Hundreds of trees are being planted on downtown streets. Industry, too, is returning. Two new industrial parks with investments totalling $7 million are being built. Other firms are modernizing or expanding.

The city is expecting nearly five million visitors during the $70-million fair.

Most of the world's major nations are planning exhibits and space for domestic exhibitors is reported to be running out.

The centrepiece is likely to be the $11.5-million United States pavilion, rising from the ground in a large cone.

The Soviet Union has surprised organizers by taking an unprecedented 52,000 square feet of space.

Expo officials say it should take about two days to see everything.

Then, when you are tired of viewing tomorrow's fresh, new environment," you can drive off to see some of today's magnificent environment in the mountains and lakes of the Pacific Northwest.

Awards

The Gold Award is part of the Duke of Edinburgh's Award Scheme, a 17-year-old Commonwealth youth project. Wolves Blamed For Sheep Deaths

Wolves are being blamed by about a half mile from the Huntingdon township farmers for increased incidences of sheep killings in their municipality.

And at least three of the marauders have been killed — two by trapping — the other being shot.

During the summer several sheep were reported killed and wolves were suspected but it wasn't until last week that farmers were certain wolves were the culprits.

John McGuire came across a wolf stalking over a fatally killed sheep in his field. He called a neighbor, Jim Holland, who shot the female.

Mr. Holland said that he and Ross Devolin have been trapping wolves on his father's farm and the same morning had trapped a wolf

Mr. McGuire has had several sheep killed this fall.

By BERNICE BEDE OSOL

Saturday, Oct. 27

Aries (March 21-April 19) You'll be hard to deceive businessmen today if you take the time to look beneath the surface. Flaws won't escape you.

Taurus (April 20-May 20) Don't make important changes without first talking it over with one you trust. They'll spot something you've overlooked.

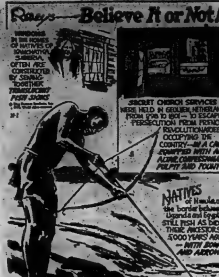
Gemini (May 21-June 20) This will be a productive day for you workwise. Your ability to concentrate energies and thoughts is excellent.

Cancer (June 21-July 22) You'll want to go somewhere this evening where you and your special person can have time for a good heart-to-heart talk.

Leo (July 23-Aug. 22) Your mind will be mostly on your family today. You'll be more content with them than outsiders, though uninvited guests may drop in.

Virgo (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) Your powers of concentration will be at their strongest and you'll get more done than usual. Try to program your mental efforts toward evening.

Libra (Sept. 23-Oct. 22) Much thought will be given to matters relating to material circumstances today. You're particularly adept at buying or bartering.

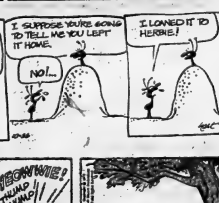


Scorpio (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) You won't be thinking of the past or the future today. You'll be concentrating on the present. The day will be rewarding.

Sagittarius (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) Your usually keen insight will be honed to a razor's edge. Follow your hunches, not upon your own instincts.

Capricorn (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) One of your close friends has some information for your ear today. Keep it to yourself.

Aquarius (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) Continue to concentrate on situations that enhance you either career or stationwise. Talk to people who can help you get ahead.



Pisces (Feb. 20-March 20) Your mind will be on a higher plane today. From your vantage point you'll see pitfalls others will miss. Advice flows who

Combinations

Yes are declarer in each of the following four situations:

1. You have the A-K-10-2 and dummy has the Q-3. You lead the queen and then the three, both opponents following low. Should you now play the ace or the ten to give yourself the best chance for four tricks?

2. You have the A-J-4-3-2 and dummy has the K-9. How do you play this combination to give yourself the best chance for four tricks?

3. You have the A-K-J-10-8-4-3 and dummy has the singleton deuce. If you need seven tricks in the suit, should you cash the A-K or finesse the J-10?

4. You have the A-10-3-2 facing the K-9-4 in dummy. How would you play the suit to give yourself the best chance for three tricks?

1. If you finesse the ten, you have a 50 per cent chance of success. If you cash the A-K instead, hoping to fell the Jack, you have only a 36 per cent chance of making four tricks in the suit. Hence the finesse is the better play.

2. Lead the deuce and finesse the nine. This gives you a 68 per cent chance for four tricks. If you first cashed the king and then finessed the jack, you would have only a 61 per cent chance for four tricks. A first-round finesse of the nine is hence the better play.

If you needed only three tricks in the suit, the proper play would be to lead low followed by a finesse of the jack. This would yield a 94 per cent chance of success.

3. If you finesse the jack, you have a 50 per cent chance for seven tricks. If you cash the A-K, hoping to catch the queen, you have only a 23 per cent chance of success. Hence the finesse is the better play.

4. Lead the deuce and, if your left-hand opponent follows low, finesse the nine.

Dark Glasses Aid After Eye Tests

By G. C. THOSTESON, M.D.

Dear Dr. Thosteson: My high blood pressure and hardening of the arteries. Is drinking coffee good for me? Is water softener harmful? My child is the child's age consistently? What is the medical name called? With the eyes changed by the drops, is the test accurate? Are dark glasses a help following the test? — M.R.

The "drops" are mydriatic drugs, of which there are several varieties—"mydriatic" meaning that they dilate the pupils of the eyes.

Dilation of the pupils is the only effect they have, so you cannot say that the eyes are "changed."

Your pupils, of course, dilate or contract depending on how bright the light is. So when we're examining doctor wants to see inside your eyes, to inspect the retina at the back of the eyeball, he shines a light so he can see.

But the light causes your pupils to contract so he can't see as well. Hence the use of drops because they make it a little easier to see inside and also the doctor make a more accurate diagnosis.

Dilating the pupil is avoided if the patient has glaucoma, however.

Use of drops is especially useful with children because it is sometimes difficult to get their co-operation.

The drops are important when it is necessary to examine the interior of the eyes; they are not required if dilating your glasses is all that is to be done.

Dark glasses are helpful after an examination because the pupils remain dilated for from one to several hours, causing intolerance to bright light and blurred vision.

Dear Dr. Thosteson: I am a man, age 42, has developed very annoying habit of rattling his feet round and round. A wiggling his toes as we read-ing and looking at TV.

Medically trained movements are very disturbing to me.

Is this some kind of tic that can be treated or help it, or is it some physical spasm that is out of my control?

He stops when I call his attention to it, but in no time the nervy-pressed habit starts again. Oh, boy — Mrs. A.R.H.

If your husband's legs are crossed for any length of time, it's well might be that he is shutting off his circulation to the lower legs and the twirling and wiggling is merely a subconscious or conscious effort to restore it.

Maybe his chair is uncomfortable. If that's the case you can make things better for both of you by getting him a nice easy chair or a footstool, or both.

Secret Service Set Up?

MONTREAL (CP) — La Presse says Premier Robert Bourassa set up a secret provincial department more than one year ago to delve into subversive activities and violations of national security.

The paper says in a story Thursday that the secret service, called Centre for Analysis and Documentation (CAD), reports directly to the premier.

The department is composed of about 10 persons, the newspapersays, and operates in utmost secrecy.

Anti-terrorist branches of the provincial police, Montreal police and the RCMP are major sources of information for the Bourassa group, the newspaper says.

It has been recently revealed that the police groups spied on officers of the St. Jean Baptiste Society, the newspaper says.

Several police officers have confirmed that most of their surveillance reports were funnelled to the CAD, the newspaper says.

Det.-Capt. Julien Giguere of the Montreal police and Insp. Jean Coutellier of the provincial police denied the reports were handed over. Capt. Giguere said he had never heard of the CAD.

Several other governmental departments contribute information to the CAD, but its secrecy has been so well guarded that only a few governmental officers know of its existence, the newspaper said.

Mileage Roll-back Charged

EDMONTON (CP) — Eight city automobile dealers appeared in court Thursday on 104 charges of fraud and turning back the mileage on used cars.

The charges were laid under the Highway Traffic Act, which makes it illegal to turn back odometers, and under the Criminal Code, which deals with fraud in connection with the sale of tampered vehicles.

Maximum penalty for fraud is a 10-year prison sentence.

Seventy charges related to odometers and 34 involved fraud.

An RCMP officer told court the odometers allegedly had been turned back an average of 27,000 miles, while some had been turned back by up to 60,000 miles.

Ford Pact Agreed On

DETROIT (AP) — Ford and the United Auto Workers reached tentative agreement today on a new national contract for 183,000 workers, said a spokesman for Ford Local 1250 in Cleveland, Ohio.

The spokesman said the agreement includes retirement after 25 years with full benefits for foundry workers.

The spokesman said he got the word from the local president, who is on the national bargaining team.

The reported agreement came in the face of a 10 a.m. EDT strike deadline.

A union source said Thursday negotiators were close to an agreement on every major point with the exception of the UAW's demand to limit forced overtime.

Auto Parts Spokesmen Cites Restrictions

TORONTO (CP) — The chairman of the Automotive Parts Manufacturing Association (Canada), said Thursday that countries exporting autos and auto parts to Canada should allow more Canadian auto parts into their countries.

Jorge Batesar told delegates to the association's semi-annual meeting that, excluding the United States, countries have not reduced their tariffs or eliminated barriers which seriously restrict Canadian automotive parts.

He said in 1977 exports of Canadian auto parts to countries other than the U.S. totalled $15 million while imports amounted to $285 million.

He said that while the auto pact between Canada and the U.S. was designed to give the Canadian automobile industry its fair share of North American markets, such reciprocity of sharing has not worked well with other countries.

Mr. Reisner added, however, the new alignment of international currencies will make Canadian automotive exports more attractive overseas and could improve the export-import balance in the future.

Mr. Reisner said the surplus in trade with the U.S. that Canada enjoyed under the auto pact will probably be reduced or nothing this year.

"This development has greatly reduced the Canada-U.S. controversy on this issue and it would appear that industry itself has rectified a situation for which there was no apparent political solution."

The U.S., in the past, has insisted that the auto pact be renegotiated.

Darcy McKeough, Ontario energy minister, told delegates that a lack of a federal energy policy has implications on energy use in Ontario and industrial strategy.

He urged association members to study these implications and to make their views known.

He also said the Ontario government would welcome an opportunity to help develop the Athabasca oil sands in Alberta, preferably in co-operation with the private sector of the economy.

"We are not unconscious of the fact that there is an estimated 300 billion barrels of oil in those sands," he said.

"Ontario is very interested in the development of these immense reserves."

Few Rotten Apples Spoil Pollution Control

TORONTO (CP) — A few "rotten apples" on the air pollution control staff are destroying the effectiveness of Ontario's program to control pollution in the Sudbury area, law student Anna Roustbwaite testified Thursday before a ministerial tribunal.

Miss Roustbwaite, a University of British Columbia student who worked in the Sudbury area last summer on a $20,000 Opportunities For Youth project, said she was "absolutely horrified" by what she described as the lack of vigor the province showed in prosecuting industrial polluters.

She testified, on the second day of the government hearings into allegations by C. Ross MacKenzie, a Sudbury air management consultant, that a senior official of the staff accepted a bribe from a Northern Ontario firm under investigation for a pollution offence.

The hearings resume Saturday.

Reporters have been permitted to attend the closed hearings on condition that individuals or companies linked in the evidence to criminal offences not be identified.

Miss Roustbwaite was head of the project in Sudbury to obtain information on pollution problems, blame and to seek solutions. Her team of seven was made up of law students.

She said she knew before going to Sudbury that the air management branch was "not vigorous in prosecuting polluters." At first, she thought the branch was inefficient.

But she said that as she found more and more cases of inaction and contradictions from environment staff, "I became quite frightened." She believed "no one could be that inefficient," and came to the conclusion that there was some sort of "agreement" between the polluters and government.

She also said Mr. MacKenzie was one of the air management staff members she dealt with in area.

Sudbury, and became his legal counsel after he told her about his information of a bribe.

She said Mr. MacKenzie told her he went to his superiors to report the bribe but had been turned away. Earlier evidence from a senior official was that the bribe report was not taken seriously.

Glen Roustbwaite said Mr. MacKenzie had also told her that his bed been unable to get any action on reports he submitted to his superiors about pollution violations.

She said he was "trying very hard to do a good job to control pollution and became increasingly frustrated by the impossibility of the task."

She advised him to make his facts public so as to bring public pressure to bear on the branch and the industries. But he was reluctant to do so.

"I'm afraid I persuaded him over a period of weeks to make the story public," she said.

Several flare-ups also occurred between Clayton Ruby, counsellor Mr. MacKenzie, and J. Neil Mulvaney, legal counsel for the air management branch.

Mr. Mulvaney said that the defence lawyer was "on a fishing expedition" and that it was a "fantastic" position for Mr. Ruby to take if he believed that because there was pollution, a bribe had been taken.

Potter On Watch

Cafik's Debt Revelation Could Help Nixon's Leadership Bid

TORONTO (CP) — The question of who will be hurt, or who will benefit, by the 11th-hour disclosure of contender Norman Cafik's debt problems hung unanswered today over the Ontario Liberal leadership convention.

As the 2,000 delegates, alternates and observers got in some pre-convention ticket-kicking day night, the strategists appeared to agree that Mr. Cafik's dilemma will benefit Robert Nixon, seeking to retain his leadership.

The theory is that Mr. Cafik, 44, the federal member for Ontario riding and a late starter in the race, has seriously hurt his chances with the revelation Friday that friends had paid personal debts of $85,000 for him just before he entered the campaign. His last votes would go to Mr. Nixon, strategists say.

Mr. Cafik confirmed at a news conference Friday that four friends paid $25,000, the amount remaining unpaid in court-ordered judgments that arose from unsuccessful business ventures while he was a member of Parliament. The four were John Coates, a Toronto lawyer, Hatland Russell, a former MPP, lawyer Roger Cossart and Robert Mason, a real estate appraiser.

"There's no doubt this will hurt him," said Clem Neiman, Peer manager for Mr. Cafik. "There just won't be time to explain this thing properly and put it in perspective."

When he was asked by reporters how he could be expected to run Ontario when he has difficulties with his personal finances, Mr. Cafik replied:

"There are all kinds of competent people who have ended up making bad investments." His former debts were the "high cost of public office."

Observers at the convention believe the new developments will make it difficult for Mr. Cafik and Donald Deacon, the other serious contender in the race, to prevent a first-ballot victory for Mr. Nixon. Both men believe their only chance to win is to force a second or third ballot.

Mr. Deacon is a Toronto investment broker. The fourth candidate is Michael Houlton, 34, from Mississauga, Ont.

Premier Gerald Regan of Nova Scotia is to address the convention today. Voting begins at noon Sunday.

All four candidates deliver their keynote speeches to the delegates, starting at 5 p.m. today. With an estimated 30 to 40 per cent of the 2,000 delegates uncommitted to any candidate, the speeches might be crucial.

There are slightly fewer than 2,000 delegates eligible to vote, which means Mr. Nixon might win on the first ballot with about 1,000 votes.

This morning, candidates were to appear separately before sessions of delegates in various meeting rooms through the hotel.

Peacekeepers Arrive

All Quiet In Mideast

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Arab and Israeli guns were reported today as United Nations peacekeeping troops continued to move into Cairo. Russia said Friday it has sent "representatives" to the Middle East to observe the ceasefire.

In Washington, President Nixon told a news conference that the United States and the Soviet Union will use their influence to bring about a negotiated settlement in the Middle East.

The president said the two superpowers have moved from the gravest crisis in a decade "to a great step toward real peace in the Middle East." He said the Mideast ceasefire seems to be holding.

The Moscow announcement prompted little concern in Washington. State department spokesman Robert McCloskey said the Soviet observers are not combat personnel. And Nixon said the United States also will send observers, if the United Nations requests it, "and we have reason to expect we will receive such a request."

The first contingent of UN peacekeeping troops—Austrian, Finnish and Swedish soldiers from the UN force on Cyprus—began landing at Cairo airport Friday night. Six hundred UN troops were expected to be in Cairo by dawn.

The troops, which the Security Council voted Thursday to send to the Middle East, wore camouflage uniforms and caps of United Nations blue and carried automatic weapons. Diplomatic sources said UN Secretary-General Kurt Waldheim asked the Security Council Friday to authorize an eventual strength of 7,000 men for the force.

No fighting was reported last Friday. Earlier in the day, Israel said elements of Egypt's 3rd Army fought Israeli forces for three hours in a vain effort to escape from their cut-off position in the Sinai.

Canadian Force Still Possible

OTTAWA (CP) — External Affairs Minister Mitchell Sharp said Friday Canadians still may be invited to participate in a new Middle East peace force.

"Don't rule that out, he told reporters outside the Commons.

Defence Minister James Richardson also said he expects there will be some Canadians sent to the Middle East.

Both ministers were questioned in and out of the Commons about the lack of Canadian participation in the initial peace force taken from the UN force now in Cyprus.

Mr. Sharp said in the Commons that he understands the decision not to send Canadians to Egypt initially.

Replying to Opposition questions, Mr. Sharp told the Commons he probably would have made the same decision, had he been in UN Secretary-General Kurt Waldheim's position.

He confirmed that this country has not been asked to contribute personnel to the Middle East emergency force, noting that the "traditionally neutral countries" of Sweden, Finland and Austria had been asked.

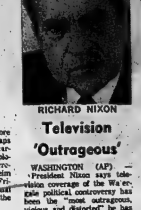
Literary Aid Boosted



TORONTO (CP) — Although Premier William Davis made only a brief public announcement, the provincial government has decided to increase substantially its financial aid to publishers, writers and periodicals. RICHARD NIXON

Television 'Outrageous'

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Nixon says television coverage of the Watergate political controversy has been the "most outrageous, vicious and distorted" he has seen in 25 years of public life.

"When people are pounded night after night with that kind of frantic, hysterical reporting, it naturally shakes their confidence," he said Friday night.

Oppose Nixon Plan

WASHINGTON (CP) — President Nixon has announced that his administration will appoint a new special Watergate prosecutor but the Democrats say this is not enough. They want a man selected whom Nixon cannot fire.

Backtracking in his Watergate defence, Nixon held a news conference Friday night that the new man to replace Archibald Cox, whom he fired a week ago, will be selected next week by Acting Attorney-General Robert Bork.

Many members of Congress, especially Democrats, demanded that a completely independent prosecutor be appointed. They maintained that Nixon failed to end suspicions that he would curtail the investigations of a new governmental appointee, although Nixon promised that he would have the full co-operation of the government.

Cox's replacement will have independence and full co-operation from the administration, Nixon told a television news conference. But he quickly hedged by saying he will insist on maintaining control of criminal documents.

Nixon, in an aggressive mood, also used the occasionally tumultuous gathering in the White House to boast of success in easing Middle East tensions this week and of his own stewardship at a time of unrelenting crisis.

And he announced that both his health and his spirits were bearing up well under the succession of attacks and crises.

"I laughed it off, the cooler I get," Nixon announced. He has to handle the international crisis. "I have what it takes."

It has been barely three weeks since the president's last news conference.

But the world of events since then—vice-President Spiro Agnew's resignation, the accusation of Gerald Ford to succeed him, the Middle East blow-up and threats of impeachment in the continuing Watergate turmoil—have been expected to have left a mark on Nixon.

Quebec Campaign Closing

MONTREAL (CP) — The campaign for Monday's Quebec general election moved quietly into its final weekend as party leaders devoted Friday to low key campaigning with little in the way of new policy statements.

Rene Levesque, Parti Quebecois leader, made the major announcement of the day when he outlined his party's plans to fight inflation and unemployment if it succeeds in forming the next government. The PQ would invest $100 million in the battle against unemployment, concentrating its efforts particularly on urban renewal and housing construction.

Minimum bread prices would be abolished and replaced by measures to ensure the profitability of bakeries, Mr. Levesque said. A state petroleum corporation dealing with refining and distribution would be established to prevent unjustified price increases for petroleum products.

The lively campaigning pace of the last week, fuelled by the debate between the governing Liberals and the Parti Quebecois over the feasibility of Quebec independence, tapered off Friday.

Parties are free to continue campaigning until midnight Sunday but the electoral law requires that all broadcasts end by midnight tonight.

Just before the broadcast deadline, a 90-minute news conference involving the four party leaders is to be broadcast on radio and television.

Premier Robert Bourassa concentrated his activities Friday on the Montreal area

Belfast Journalists Describe War Horrors

LONDON (CP) — Two young Belfast journalists have added a new chapter to the agonizing history of Northern Ireland with the first detailed account of the "war behind the war in Ulster."

In a book called Political Murder, Martin Dillon and Dennis Lehane tell of the brutality inflicted on the victims of Protestant and Roman Catholic "assassination squads" who roam, virtually unhindered, through Ulster.

The writers, both reporters with the Belfast Telegraph, describe a fund-raising visit to Canada in June by the head of the Protestant Volunteer Defence Association (UDA) who returned to find the para-military organization convulsed by internal upheaval and his own authority challenged.

Three months later, his main rivals, Tommy Herron, was found in a ditch south of Belfast, his head blown apart by a shotgun blast.

The mainly Catholic Irish Republican Army (IRA), say the authors, initiated the assassination campaign nearly two years ago. But since then, extreme Protestant groups are alleged to have been behind five times as many political murders as the Catholics.

There also were suspicions about circumstances surrounding two deaths caused by a special unit of the British army.

The two men say they pledged to write their book, published by Penguin, partly to make the world aware of the horror still gripping Ulster and partly because they were unable to get The Telegraph, owned by the Thomson Organization Ltd. headed by Canadian-born Lord Thomson, to print all their news reports about the terror.

The assassination described by Dillon and Lehane is that of Thomas Maskell, a Catholic bachelor who worked as a night watchman in a predominantly Protestant Belfast factory.

He had no involvement in politics, no known enemies and mixed freely with persons of both religions. But the authors say Maskell was picked up by a UDA squad, suspended naked from a ceiling with a slowly tightening noose while a double-edged knife was used to cut about 100 pieces of skin from every part of his body. A coroner later estimated the torture had lasted eight hours before finally strangled.

Al Garrison (11) played his first game as a Belleville Bobcat Friday night and led the local Junior B's to an 11-2 victory over Etobicoke Selects as he fired three goals and added a pair of assists. On this occasion, Garrison opened the scoring for the Cats as he faked Selects' goalie Dale Papke and easily put the puck away. The win gave the Bobcats a 5-1 record for the season and moved them into fourth spot in the Metro Toronto Junior B League. For story see page 11.

Excursion Thrills Train Buffs

By PETER GOODSPEED
Staff Reporter

The old girl was an hour late.

However, her bearded bogeys and her conspicuousness a railway yard chittered with diesel engines humming a monotonous tune were enough to make anyone forgive her tardiness.

Steam locomotive 6060 was a lot of new friends and met quite a few old ones yesterday, when she made an excursion trip from Montreal to Toronto via Ottawa.

Stopping to refuel and take on water in Belleville, the old green locomotive threw storms of remembrance as she pulled into the CN yards around 4:30 yesterday afternoon.

The excursion, part of a series of special steam train trips being sponsored by Canadian National Railways, took more than 200 railroad buffs on a journey into the past.

Puffing and panting her way along the main line, 6060 hauled a train made up of one baggage car, five passenger cars and one private car.

Every now and then she stopped along the route to detrained her passengers and backed up a mile or so to make a mad dash down the tracks.

Spouting white clouds of steam and grunting out a rhythmic chant, she proved to be a photographer's dream and sent railroad enthusiasts equipped with tape recorders into fits of ecstasy.

Norman Lowe, CN's manager of historical projects, explained that the special excursion trips were a new idea for the railroad and suggested that their present popularity may ensure their continuation.

6060 was brought out of retirement in a museum in Jasper, Alberta, in 1972 and after being refitted at the Montreal Locomotive Works was pressed into service for a short excursion from Montreal to Victoriaville in September.

Following her trip to Toronto yesterday, 6060 was scheduled to make another run to Fort Erie today, where she will preside over the presentation of her sister, steam locomotive 6218, to a museum.

Strike Breakers Concern Council

The question of professional strike breakers on the local labor scene was discussed at a labor council meeting attended by invited guests of area municipal councils.

Although the councils of Belleville, Trenton and Picton were all invited to the meeting by Doug Sword, president of the Quinte and District Labor Council, only Belleville city council was well represented.

Trenton was represented by Alderman George Grier while Picton sent no one. Representing Belleville city council were Mayor Garnet Jeffrey, Aldermen Rea Carke, Stu Meeks, Joe Cox, Russell Reid and Dr. John Stack. Representatives of the Quinte Executive Labor Council also were present.

They heard Secretary Treasurer of the Ontario Federation of Labor, CLC, Terry Meagher, speak on the disruptive role strike breaking plays in destroying harmony between labor and management.

A film depicting the violence inherent in strike breaking preceded Mr. Meagher's talk.

Mr. Meagher told of the tactics of strike breakers whose only concern is to destroy labor strikes and upset the balance between labor and management.

"The more violence they can stir up the better these strike breakers like it. They can do their act better. They come into the community and leave a trail of havoc behind.

"Labor and management are left with much distrust which lasts for years and years. It takes a long time to rebuild that trust again," said Mr. Meagher.

Mr. Meagher is attempting to gather support from resolution calling for the outlawing of strike breaking in Ontario. He said such communities as Welland, Metropolitan Toronto, Stratford and Kitchener have endorsed such a resolution. It will be presented to Queen's Park.

Mr. Sword said his Quinte Labor Council is behind the resolution and Mayor Jeffrey promised to look into it. George Grier, the sole Trenton representative also asked for a copy for town council to examine.

Alderman Stu Meeks asked Mr. Meagher why something isn't done to stop strike breaking after lists of known professional strike breakers are available.

Replied Mr. Meagher: "These strikebreaking companies change their names and move quite often and there are so many of them it's hard to 'nail out' who's big what."

Mayor Jeffrey said she thought that police should not get involved in what are legal strikes.

Mr. Meagher said there has been no evidence of strike breaking being used in any strike in this area. "But strike breakers will take a wheack at any community.

"They usually come to a plant where a union is needed the most. Usually they pick one where there are financial crasts since they are easier to intimidate.

The vulnerability of a community to strike breakers coming in depends a lot on the people operating the industries and the unions and if they have good relationships with the company.

Mr. Sword, in referring to strike breakers coming to Belleville, said the climate is always there.

BRODRICK — In fond and loving memory of our dear mother, Mrs. Ethel Brodrick, who passed away October 27th, 1972.
Sadly missed and fondly remembered by her son Ken and family.

In memory of an open grave at the end of a day
Where earth which must mean so much, was cast with clods of clay
And there I stood in memory of you
That I believe you'd never done any wrong
Then I did on the day of your going
Our decision can never undo any
The honor of my love is still given
To you, dear heart, was the truest in the land
Your love you gave for record, For no one could take your place,
Sadly remembered by his wife and children.

JOHNSTON — In loving memory of our dear father, Frederick Johnston, who passed away October 27th, 1968.
Time heals a great sorrow,
But dear father I cannot forget,
And for those I cannot speak,
Of the love I have for you yet.
Sadly missed and remembered by his son Fred and family.

KERR — In fond and loving memory of our dear mother, Mrs. Ethel Kerr, who passed away October 27th, 1972.
Death is the loss we loved so dear,
Tears in our eyes and pain in our heart,
We miss you mother more than words can tell
But not for her thought to part.

LONG POINT — Fishermen AT Long Point on the southeast side of Prince Edward Bay spent most of the week hoard up their summer homes and move inland for the winter.

The largest fishing colony in the county, Long Point is home port for approximately eight fishermen who set their nets for smelts, perch and eels. As the government tightens regulations regarding equipment the fishermen will face new problems that may force some to look for other jobs.

William Aman, has fished from Long Point for approximately 25 years. He notes that all fishing boats must be government inspected by 1975. Certificates will be given only to craft meeting with certain requirements. Fiberglass fish boxes and net trays will be urged — at significant cost to the fishermen.

These expenses will cut profits and, in Mr. Aman's view, many fishermen will be forced to find other jobs.

"It's something that gets in your blood and you hate to give it up," says Mr. Aman as he speaks of fishing.

He predicts, however, that there will be fewer fishermen after 1975, since many with smaller boats will be unable to meet government specifications.

The number of fishermen tying up at Long Point has decreased in the past 28 years. In Mr. Aman's early days at the scenic colony, there were more boats than there are today. When repair work was done at an ice house recently the fishermen found an old inscription reporting there had been 12 boats in earlier times. Today there are from seven to eight.

Mr. Aman says fishermen today work on a much larger scale than in former days. Therefore the total catch may parallel early-day hauls.

Long Point is a popular tourist attraction and Mrs. Dorothy Aman remarks that 198 boats visited Fisherman's Cove this year. Of these only 26 were power craft, the others sailboats.

A lighthouse built in 1861 still stands at Long Point and, in recent years, was leased as a summer home. It has been vacant this season, however, and it stands weathered and isolated at the tip of the Point.

Most of the cottages occupied by fishermen stand on property leased from an American who owns much of the acreage at Long Point, the men and their wives arrive at the colony in mid-March and do not leave until late November.

The picturesque spot has prompted official suggestions on its future, after it was viewed by CORTS (Committee On The Rideau-Trent-Severn) reporting to federal and provincial governments, on the waterway's environment.

Long Point, said Corts, has potential for a "wide variety of recreational opportunities, and today provides a bonus to the visitor."

Mrs Aman enjoys the tranquility of the Point and can watch seagulls wheeling over a small pond only a few feet from her back door. For two months of the summer she has a next-door neighbor who is a vacationing school teacher.

At Long Point, Mrs. Aman has no hydro and cooking is done on a gas stove. Gas lamp provide light in the evenings.

"In November it's dreary," she confesses.

Mr. Aman has come to the fishing colony with her husband for the past 30 years. In the winter months the couple returns to a home in Fawcettville, a suburb of Picton.

Long Point lies approximately 25 miles southeast of Picton and the fishing colony can be reached only by following a narrow gravel access road for some distance. No fishermen remain there in the winter months since the road is not plowed.

Lighthouse Guards Long Point

The old fisherman's cove community at Long Point has this dominant picturesque feature — Prince Edward Point lighthouse. Built in 1881, it is no longer in use and now stands vacant.

Lake Trout Catch Limited

TORONTO (CP) — A reduced catch limit on lake trout, starting Jan. 1, to help preserve the species, was announced Friday by Natural Resources Minister Leo Bernier.

Mr. Bernier told the legislature committee reviewing his budgetary estimates that the catch limit will be reduced to three lake trout a day from five.

He also said that the year-round open season on lake trout in Northern Ontario will be abolished for next year.

Anglers won't be able to fish for lake trout in the north from Oct. 1 to Dec. 1, spawning period of the sport fish.

Mr. Bernier said he is taking the action because of his ministry's concern over the exploitation and harvest rate of breed species.

The total hatchery production of lake trout was not adequate to replace diminishing stocks.

The minister noted that the new restrictions do not mean that lake trout are an endangered species.

Surgeon's Warning

Dr. William Ghent, professor of surgery at Queen's University, is so right about the highway accident situation. In a better position than anyone — from the standpoint of a surgeon — to assess the growing and ghastly carnage on the roads, Dr. Ghent says it as many people killed in accidents (6,000 last year) were killed in an epidemic it would not be allowed to happen.

Ironically, only the previous day we commented on the number of drowning victims, referring at the same time to auto accidents — a problem which, as we have noted so many times of late, is progressively worsening.

Driver training and compulsory wearing of seat belts (as in Australia with beneficial results) are among Dr. Ghent's suggestions for tackling the problem. Use of air bags is another measure increasingly under discussion, and it was mentioned by auto safety engineer J. Paul Wills at the same Rehabilitation Week meeting in Belleville attended by Dr. Ghent.

Driver attitudes are a vital factor too — many, it would appear, being motivated by a subconscious death wish. It is time, as Dr. Ghent says, "to stop thinking in our easy-going attitude."

The Government could make a start by making the wearing of seat belts compulsory. This has reduced the accident toll in Australia and it could do so here.

Travelling Hopefully

We were speaking recently about the human dilemma, in an editorial entitled The Main Chance, and it came out, inadvertently, as the "inhuman" dilemma which, indeed, it may well be.

Everybody has his own list but the human dilemma is this sort of thing: getting out of bed the wrong side, forgetting things, missing short putts on the golf course, just missing with a shot at goal in ice-hockey or whatever, being trapped for 12 hours, although uninjured, in a car at the bottom of a ravine — as a man was recently in an accident in which a woman and her daughter died.

For the woman folk it is being at a party and seeing someone wearing the same outfit. Or reaching the age of 30. Or maybe even 21.

It is the impossibility of finding or achieving perfection.

It is life and death. . .

The Lawless

There is no honor among thieves. Yes it is an old saying. No honor either among the lawless in general, as witness that particularly brutal slaying at Collins Bay penitentiary last March for which two men are currently on trial. One man is alleged to have held the victim while the other knifed him repeatedly. Then, the victim on the floor, it was the turn of the other accused who is said to have stabbed the man further.

Recently there was another escape from Kingston, this time by three men, one of whom was armed with a pistol and shot. One of the escapees has been charged with the shooting.

These things happen, but it is all the more reason why the public must be protected against such people who, in addition to being a menace to the public at large, have no scruples either in their dealings with fellow prisoners.

Park Progress

Zwick's Island East is beginning to show signs of the smooth and manicured parkland it ultimately will become. The old city dump is now a fading memory although many across-the-bay residents will remember bumping and sloshing their way in and out of its aromatic confines. Now another landfill operation is in progress of shape, to the point that the contours of the future additional parkland are evident for all to see.

The work now under way however is still only in the nature of preliminary grading. Much preparatory work remains to be done. Nevertheless this in itself has improved the appearance of the area on the bay immediately. One day it will provide, along with Zwick's Island across the road, one of the finest park complexes in the province.

Ontario's Rapid-Transit Plan Under Fire From Critics

By VINCENT EGAN
Business and Consumer Affairs Analyst
Thomson News Service

Our problems with urban transit are precisely over.

Ontario's premier has let it be known that he will graciously share the benefits of the province's leadership in that field with other, less advanced provinces.

Premier William Davis is freshly returned from Miami where, it seems, he was named man of the year by a trade association made up largely of companies in the transit-equipment field. . .

His wun that hence apperpriated for having stopped, single-handed, the completion of a 17 to 1 full-fledged expressway that already reliefed road congestion in northwestern Toronto—which is something like honoring a bridge-builder for not completing a half-finished bridge.

The Ontario premier justified his quixotic action, with cliche—"cities are for people, not cars" (as if cars had separate lives of their own, unrelated to the people inside them).

As an alternative to the expressway, transit's guru of the year has become as enthusiastic proposed of a little known Parisian system of elevated trains, and his government has acquired the patents from Krauss-Maffei A.G. of Munich.

Mr. Davis's critics are less enthusiastic. They contend that the system is so new and untested as to be an improbable choice, that its passenger-carrying capacity is too small, that it would be unsightly, and that its cost has probably been underestimated.

But the premier remains hopeful that Ottawa will participate financially in the promotion of Ontario's transit schemes, and in making Ontario's "expertise" available to other provinces.

The question is whether the other provinces want, or, if anything, to learn from Ontario about urban transit.

They would be premature to commit themselves to the Krauss-Maffei system of elevated trains as eagerly as Ontario has done, until much more is known about its capabilities, limitations and cost.

They would be equally ill-advised to follow Ontario's lead in making urban road projects. The Ontario government, or at least its first minister, has fallen into the fashionable stance of denouncing cars and the facilities they require, and forgetting the essential function of cars in urban transportation (many people can reach their jobs in no other way) and their substantial contribution to provincial revenues through highway taxes and licences.

Ronald Basford, the federal minister of urban affairs, told the recent Edmonton conference of federal, provincial and municipal governments that Ottawa wants to participate in any province's plan for a transportation balance and strategy.

There is clearly a need for such participation — if only to ensure that balanced and considered decisions will be made in the public interest, and that Ontario's lop-sided "leadership" will fist prevail!

Middle East Conflict's Wide Implications

UK and Europe In a Bind Over Oil Supplies

By CY FOX
BRUSSELS (CP) — Fears of a cold, oil-short winter in Britain, rising gasoline prices in France and the cutting off by some Arab states of petroleum supplies to Holland all serve to dramatize the impact of the Middle East war on Western Europe.

Obviously the oil factor has been crucial in the hands-off policy adopted by most West European countries towards the Arab-Israeli conflict.

But the fear is that ultimately the oil issue will have other political ramifications—notably a worsening of the strains in relations between West Europe and the United States.

Such considerations would seem to pale in significance when compared with the degree of human suffering and destruction already caused by the Middle East fighting.

For instance, observers at the front have been saying that the fighting following the ceasefire breakdowns was the most fe-rocious they had ever seen in the battle areas.

Then there is the worldwide significance of the apparently desperate steps taken by the United States and Russia to put pressure on both sides into an ending of hostilities—a step vital to the continuation of the Washington-Moscow detente but denounced by Libya as another example of big-power efforts to dictate the future of the Middle East area.

Then there are attempts to bring Western Europe and the United States closer together after a period of disagreement on several political and economic fronts can only suffer if discussions in Paris aimed at co-ordinating the efforts to combat the oil shortage on both sides of the Atlantic and in Japan prove unsuccessful.

So far predictions about the discussions have been gloomy, with U.S. sources complaining about the re-export controls already clamped on oil stocks in Europe by several countries here and European pointing to alleged waste on a vast scale of petroleum resources in the U.S. which has traditionally drawn on Europe for extra fuel supplies.

The pressures risaking for European-American tensions in this respect are many and, in some instances, pre-date the latest explosion of Middle East fighting.

Compounding the dangers is the fact that Western Europe is far more dependent on Middle East oil than is the U.S.—with Britain, for instance, drawing 66 per cent of its supplies from the area.

The war, in any case, has vastly worsened the picture, with Holland currently being punished by five of its Arab oil suppliers for what they term its pro-Israeli bias.

West European states generally are being cautious about pledging help for Holland in the event that the Netherlands suffers unduly from an oil drought following the Arab cut-off.

This policy of non-alienation of oil-rich Arabs has drawn some domestic criticism in two of the countries most closely associated with it—Britain and France—which ironically were Israel's allies in the 1956 war between the Arabs and the Zionist state.

In Britain, at least, the worry over larger-than-expected Arab oil cutbacks following the outbreak of the latest war has not only led to insistence on privately and cafe for economy in the use of oil but also is adding to the momentum of petroleum development in British-controlled areas of the North Sea.

Even allowing for the failure of future ceasefire attempts on the Middle East battle fronts, there is some consolation to be found by Western countries from the fact that oil-producing Arab states like fabulously wealthy Saudi Arabia are loath to cast aside their lucrative Western markets, no matter how great their desire to help the anti-Israeli cause.

It also has been suggested that maintaining Western markets will remain a vital necessity if only as a source of cash needed to pay for the weapons being shipped to the Arab combatants by the Soviet Union.

Yet, though the British government so often decided that economy rather than outright rationing is sufficient to deal with the United Kingdom's petroleum problem, much attention will be concentrated on the international efforts to defy the pessimistic predictions and bring a co-ordinated handling of the oil situation closer to reality.

Liberal Convention Space at Premium

By DON O'HEARN
Queen's Park Bureau

It seems that delegates to the Liberal leadership convention might be wise to bring shoulder pads.

The convention is shaping up as a crushing affair.

The problem is that party officials booked the affair into the Royal York hotel.

And big as it is the Royal York apparently just isn't big enough.

The main proceedings will be held in the biggest room in the hotel, the Canadian Room.

The capacity of this room is 2,000.

The party constitution provides for more than that number of voting delegates alone.

In addition to this for every riding delegate there is an alternate. And then there are other party supporters and the public who will want to observe the affair.

Provision is being made to have the proceedings screened in other public rooms in the hotel.

But naturally everyone at the convention will want to begin the main room.

The way it is shaping up a host of people aren't going to be.

Which means a lot of gripes.

The convention also is going to lose out on television coverage.

Normally the party could expect that the candidates' speeches and the voting would be carried live across the province.

But the speeches are this evening. And tonight also there is NHL hockey (with Boston playing Toronto). The voting is Sunday afternoon. And Sunday afternoon there is NFL football.

So that the CBC, at least, is not likely to be carrying the polling power of Bobby Orr or Joe Namath. And at last reports CTV also was lukewarm.

Party officials, of course, have been taking knocks over these arrangements.

And certainly they seem to have shown a lack of foresight.

However also their job would not have been simple.

Even with a years lead time it is not easy to arrange a convention in Toronto these days.

The town is booked solid as much as 24 months ahead.

The logical place for leadership conventions, with the big attendance they now attract, is in a city.

But once the hockey season starts you are not going to get any rink for the two days required, and from there it is a mess to do the best with what is available.

The Mechanics Of Conventional War

By JOHN D. HARBRON
Foreign Affairs Analyst
Thomson News Service

The purely military implications of the sudden unleashing of war again in the Middle East will probably go unnoticed in the wider concern with emotional issues and the essential ceasefire.

But what has happened in this flash war, concentrated mainly on desert tank battles and aerial dogfights, is likely to direct the form of conventional war in our world for some time to come.

And since we have had about 100 conventional wars after the last really big one ended in August, 1945, it must be of wide interest that the technologists of military hardware are now in the saddle without a single nuclear weapon being fired.

First the aerial warfare. For the first time the very advanced Soviet SAM-6 ground-to-air missile has been used with devastating effect against Israeli U.S. built F-4 Phantom jet fighters with such success that The Economist's military critic in London estimates about one-fifth of Israel's aircraft have been knocked out of the air.

This could well explain both the severe Israeli censorship of a kind unknown during the Six Day War of 1967 which she won hands down and the urgency to get an armored column on the Egyptian side of the Suez Canal to knock out the SAM missile bases.

Second the tank warfare. Something else clearly happened with both the Syrian and Egyptian ability to fight their tanks and to use them effectively. A staggering number of tanks are involved in this fourth Arab-Israeli war, about 3,700 on the Egyptian-Syrian borders and Israeli side and another 1,700 by Israel.

This is a greater heavy tank array than took place during the 1942 tank battle in Kursk between Nazi Germany and Soviet Russia up to last week the largest tank battle in history.

Again, the British military observers who seem to have the most objective, go along with the staggering figures of losses announced on both sides, estimating Israel had lost almost one half of her tanks, especially as a result of the initial Egyptian thrust into the Sinai and the Arab alliance about 1,000 or nearly one third of their tank force.

Now in an interlude when the Middle East seems to be at peace and when a warring Vietnam never produced such giant tank battles, it is worthwhile to study the mechanics of tank battles greater than world War II ever knew, despite the bitterness of the fighting.

The Egyptians have also using their small but lethal fleet of Soviet-built Komar missile-carrying sailing which is very curiously so far with little effect. One navy encounter in 1970 that such a naval missile, one only, fired with unerring accuracy at the Israeli destroyer Elath and hit that vessel midships and sank her in about 15 minutes.

Again in one reason Israel first asked the French to help develop the Gabriel missile and then unscrupulously the secret sailing of a fleet of French-built MTBs, to Israel armed with the Gabriel missile when the late President de Gaulle placed a total arms embargo on Israel.

In the understandable greater world interest in the success of the UN ceasefire and of world Arab and Israeli hopes for peace, this massive military

The two - year battle of Mrs. Violet Arnold, a farm wife who lives near Lindsay, illustrates a misfortune that could befall any of us. It took Mrs. Arnold from 1969 to 1971 until just recently to get her fingerprints and photograph removed from police files.

Before she succeeded in getting her fingerprints and photograph removed from police files and destroyed she had dealt with the municipal police force, police commission, several politicians, the office of Prime Minister Trudeau and the office. She was a year finally in a lawyer's office she was handed her record and personally destroyed it. Few people would have the persistence to surmount all the rebuffs she had along the way.

No redtable person will see anything wrong with police forces keeping detailed files on convicted lawbreakers. It is protection to all of us that the law enforcement agencies should be able to exchange information quickly, and establish identities of suspects.

Again, the British military observers who seem to have the most objective, go along with the staggering figures of losses announced on both sides, estimating Israel had lost almost one half of her tanks, especially as a result of the initial Egyptian thrust into the Sinai and the Arab alliance about 1,000 or nearly one third of their tank force.

Now in an interlude when the Middle East seems to be at peace and when a warring Vietnam never produced such giant tank battles greater than world War II ever knew, despite the bitterness of the fighting.

The Egyptians have also using their small but lethal fleet of Soviet-built Komar missile-carrying sailing which is very curiously so far with little effect. One navy encounter in 1970 that such a naval missile, one only, fired with unerring accuracy at the Israeli destroyer Elath and hit that vessel midships and sank her in about 15 minutes.

Again in one reason Israel first asked the French to help develop the Gabriel missile and then unscrupulously the secret sailing of a fleet of French-built MTBs, to Israel armed with the Gabriel missile when the late President de Gaulle placed a total arms embargo on Israel.

In the understandable greater world interest in the success of the UN ceasefire and of world Arab and Israeli hopes for peace, this massive military

Kincaid, of Madoc village, the municipality's warden in the history of Hastings County, was paid Tuesday by county councillors and members of parliament as over 200 county officials and their wives along with other guests attended the annual county dinner held in Madoc Armories. Search Goes on to Prove Remains Exist of Noah's Ark

TORONTO (CP) — On the side of a mountain peak that rises 17,000 feet above the frontier between Turkey and Soviet Armenia there are ancient timbers made from an unknown, man-made structure.

Some people, including their discoverer, Fernand Navarra, a French demolition expert, believe them to be part of the skeleton of a huge, 5,000-year-old ship—Noah's Ark.

Ararat, the highest in a cluster of peaks referred to as the Mountains of Ararat, has been considered the site of the ark for centuries by the neighboring people.

Prof. R. K. Harrison, who teaches Old Testament in the Toronto School of Theology and is the author of numerous books and articles, said:

"There is obviously an artifact of some kind on Ararat at the 41,000-foot level. How did it get there and when?

Personally, I believe it possible that the ark is there. I see the Genesis stories as ancient history, setting out what is mythic. So many of the apparent legends in Scripture have turned out to be true and to have a basis of truth that liberal scholars have been ready to dismiss."

On the other hand, Prof. John S. Halladay Jr. of the department of Near Eastern studies at University of Toronto, is completely sceptical:

"What you have in the Genesis story of the flood is myth and not fact. It is common in a number of ancient traditions, some of them older than the account of Genesis, for example, in the Gilgamesh epic."

Navarra's first set of a picture both in scientific and military circles, although scarcely a summer has gone by since 1955, when Navarra found the remnants of the ship, without one or more of his temples he follows Navarra's lead, most investigators have been scornful, with little hope of discovering anything.

One exception has been a United States-based foundation with two Canadians on its board of directors. In 1960 with Navarra as guide and assisted by Ralph Lenzen, chief logistics officer for the Arctic Institute of North America, they returned to the 1955 location.

They found several pieces of the planking—one 18 inches long, four inches wide and an inch thick. Although the wood was found to be 1,400 years old, it was not old enough to be part of the ark.

Mr. Lenzen, who is a polar explorer with 25 years experience. He has lived in the Antarctic for eight years and was deputy-leader of the Commonwealth Trans-Antarctic exploration from 1955 to 1958.

Mr. Lenzen said in an interview: "I'm not an extreme literalist, but I do believe in the Bible. Archaeology has upheld its spiritual truth. In my view, there was a Noah's ark that came to rest on Mount Ararat.

"One early account says the ark was to be lower down the mountain but that it was taken up and rebuilt near the peak as a shrine during the time of plague about 400 AD. The planks we found in 1959 could have been part of the newer wood used at that juncture.

Mr. Lenzen expressed hopes for the future in this way: "What we really need is a wholly new organization to go back and scientifically clear out the Navarra site. If the ark is there we should be able to find timbers requiring a shape object to explain their shape. Whatever is there is worth exploring."

Most Humans Desirous Of Social Recognition

By REV. DR. GORDON C. SMYTH

To be human is to desire social recognition. One of the reasons that many people are unhappy is the seeming frustration of the Social Society has been described as a human model: what the individual does on his own Initiative makes no difference.

"In the abstract", said John W. Gardner, a member of the late President John B. Johnson's cabinet," there is no correct answer to the question. "What can one man do?" But if any substantial number continue to believe 'at one man can do a great deal; then they will preserve a system that sustains their belief."

Would that people took to heart the Parable of the Talents (Matthew 25:14-30) The one-talent man is its real object. The lessons of larger endowment are there to understress this point.

The risk of the five-talent man is his conceit. The risk of the two-talent man is his envy. The risk of the one-talent man is his hopelessness.

Why should an insignificant bubble on the stream of life deflate itself? Why should it not drift aimlessly, at least when this means being lost in the first rapids?

The gospel teaches that there is no such thing as an insignificant life. Of course, taken by itself, many a life seems unimportant. But the seemingly insignificant life takes on real dignity and importance when viewed as working for the common good.

Who was the first person to domesticate fire? He took the Christian religion to Rome? Who persuaded Stephen Langdon, Archbishop of Canterbury, to rally the nobles of England to extract from King John Magna Carta from King Smyth column

Who rang the Liberty Bell that said Paul Revere on his famous ride?

Years ago Oberlin, a French philanthropist, was overcome by intense cold while crossing in the mountains of Alsace. He would have perished but for the assistance rendered him and brought him to village where his recovery was complete.

Oberlin sought to reward his benefactor. The man declined any gift. "At least give me your name", he was urged, "that I may remember you in my prayers." Came the reply, "Tell me, if you will, the name of the Good Samaritan, and I will tell you mine."

We are all heirs of many a splendid tradition. We are all custodians of many a proven faith. Therefore, let us involve ourselves more confidently in ordinary things that shape our lives and the future more than what is glamorized on television.

I refer to simple virtues, neighborly attitudes and routine loyalties that do not look at all as though they could even be a match for any of the gigantic powers of evil which is forgo in the field of our religion and scare us out of our wits.

There is nothing new here. It is, so to speak, the devil's strategy of trivializing or deavoring to destroy the material out of which God is always making history.

It seems to me the most pathetic moment when a person realizes that his talent has been wasted because he was over-awed by its apparent insignificance. Sight of the buried capacity produces weeping of regret and gnashing of the teeth of self-pity.

It need not be so. Let each of us sincerely say, "I am only one, but I am one. I cannot do everything but I can do something. What I can do, I ought to do. And what I ought to do, I can do."

Pornography Problem More Serious in India

BOMBAY (CP) — The book boom the innocent title India In Pictures and only 30 cents.

Hundreds of copies of the publication had been sold to school students in several cities before a community welfare worker in the northern state of Mysore happened to look into it. She was horrified. The book consisted of scantily clad photographs and drawings.

In the great east Indian metropolis of Calcutta, police unearthed a gang which prints lewd playing cards and sells them to youth clubs.

Following an outcry by several women's organizations the Indian police have begun a vigorous drive to stop the printing and sale of pornographic literature.

The police claim that strict watch at the big ports has led to a sharp decline in the import of pornographic magazines from the United States and Scandinavian countries. But the domestic pornographic industry appears to have become more active.

In two night raids in New Delhi, the police seized as many as 4,000 objectionable books. Two men who were arrested are reported to have admitted that they were members of an to-pro-social ring specializing in the distribution of obscene books, magazines, photo slides and playing cards.

Plainclothesmen have been deployed near schools and colleges and in some provinces like Tamil Nadu, Rajasthan and Kashmir, community workers have seized and burnt pornographic material without waiting for police approval.

"Technically, such a way of disposing of the stuff is not proper," said a senior police official in Tamil Nadu. "But there is no better way of curbing the evil."

Some legislators have urged a minimum sentence of five years for persons found guilty of printing or distributing pornographic books and magazines.

At a women's meeting in Bombay several speakers demanded that such offenders should be sent to prison for 10 years. One woman received thunderous applause when she suggested that pornographic salesmen should be whipped in public.

Police said that thousands of women in several cities are cooperating with them in the drive to end the racket.

Inflation Hitting Churches

TORONTO (CP) — An official of the United Church of Canada says that church members are giving more money in recent years but not enough to "offset inflationary pressures."

Harold L. Arnup, secretary of the division of finance, said in a news release that although total revenue has increased, fewer church members are contributing.

"Because of more inflation in many countries where the United Church has commitments, and because of the depreciation of the Canadian dollar, the cost of our church work has increased more than the cost of the work in Canada."

He said that the building of new facilities has been progressively decreasing over the last five years.

Dr. Arnup added that 20 per cent of church members account for 75 per cent of the budget.

The press release contained details of a paper Dr. Arnup is preparing for delivery to the annual meeting of the division Oct. 31.

Edna Dobbs is Worthy Grand Matron

Edna Dobbs was recently elected Worthy Grand Matron of the Order of the Eastern Star by the provincial assembly at a Grand Chapter meeting in Toronto.

Mrs. Dobbs is the first member of the local Minerva chapter, which has existed in Belleville for nearly 50 years, to hold this highest provincial office.

For 40 years a member of the Order of the Eastern Star, Mrs. Dobbs has progressed upward, through the executive levels since she was Matron of the local chapter in 1945.

Grand Officer of the provincial Benevolent Committee for nine years, in 1970 she was elected to the office of Grand Conductress which led to her present position.

Her duties during the next year include visiting as many of the 274 provincial chapters as she can.

She will also be in charge of the order's many projects.

The Grand Chapter is in charge of the Florence Nightingale Home in Adjoncourt for elderly women members, and of the benevolent fund for members who have met with adversity.

Another project is "Estart", a scholarship fund which gave $3 scholarship of $300 to Protestant students entering churchwork.

Each Worthy Grand Matron in this field. Her son in Member year in office. Mrs. Dobbs decided on raising money for Multiple Sclerosis research, since she has a special interest in his field. Her son in Montreal has suffered for many years from this incurable disease.

Mrs. Dobbs has another son in Toronto, a daughter Dorothy Bowes in Belleville, and eight grandchildren.

The fellowship that she has enjoyed during her years in the Order of the Eastern Star have been a valuable addition to her life, Mrs. Dobbs said.

"Sisterhood is what it's all about." "Because of my membership, I have friends in towns all over Ontario.

Earlier this week, driving home from Toronto, realizing she couldn't continue in the heavy fog, she called a woman she'd met through the Order of the Eastern Star, and stayed at her home in Richmond Hill for the night.

Although the benefits of belonging to the order are clear to Mrs. Dobbs, she admits that membership is not increasing. One reason for this, she says, is that many women now work outside the home, and have less time to become involved in groups.

"It used to be that women were stuck at home, while men went to business and to lodge meetings. An organization for women served a very useful purpose, as it gave them the opportunity to make contact with other people, and to become involved in the community.

Nowadays, women have many sources of involvement, and are hesitant to commit themselves too deeply to any one group."

In fact, both men and women belong to the Order of the Eastern Star. It is the largest fraternal organization in the world, with three million members, which has membership from both sexes.

Nevertheless, it is primarily a woman's order, and the head of every chapter, local, provincial or international, is always a woman.

Mrs. Dobbs looks ahead to a busy year, highlighted by the Triennial Convention in Denver, November 3 to 8.

Worthy Grand Matron of the Order of the Eastern Star, Edna Dobbs of the Belleville Minerva Chapter spends a few days at home before continuing her busy round of visits throughout the province.

Better Bargains Than Ever

Dried skim milk powder makes an even better bargain now that there's been a price decrease.

One company recently announced that it has decreased the wholesale price of its instant skim milk by four cents per quart. The company says the product will now cost the consumer about 13 to 14 cents per quart for liquid whole milk, a saving of 20 cents per quart.

The price decrease can be attributed to the new federal government subsidy on milk.

Everybody always tells you: don't go shopping without a list. The reason is not only that it reduces impulse buying but that it cuts your time in the store.

It has been estimated, according to the Women's Advisory Committee of the Ontario government, that from 70 to 90 per cent of the candy, crackers, cookies, snacks, frozen foods, housewares, cosmetics, cigarettes and magazines you pick up in the super market are bought on sheer impulse.

As for cutting grocery store shopping time, experts say that food-savvy animals over 30 you spend in the grocery store, you add about 56 cents to your bill.

Every cloud has a silver lining department: Medical men have said that one of the most constructive ways to cut the meat price squeeze in that people will be forced to eat less red meat protein. High consumption of the kind of saturated fat present in beef — especially in those well — marbled choice cuts — is believed to be linked to heart disease, stroke, and degenerative disease.

Where have all the raisins gone? Consumer adviser Helen Gagen says that the recent shortage of raisins on supermarket shelves can be attributed to several factors. First, it's just a lousy crop year for everything the world over. Second, we're still recovering from the after effects of that summer rail strike and shipments are not back to normal. Finally, as we drink more and more wine, many said more grapes are diverted to that industry.

A Belleville women found recently that she got more furniture painted that she bargained for with a can of epoxy spray paint. Purchased to refinish her kitchen freezer, the paint warned consumers to protect the area immediately around the surface to be painted. This woman did, then found the paint had covered everything from flooring 20 feet away to the stereo set in the living room. "It really isn't safe to use lid doors," she believes.

Successful Living

Shrinking Body, Expanding Mind

A lady writes in that she would like to know how to put on a few pounds. She says that she is fit but that she does not get that old because she is quite active.

Not long ago I expressed a desire to take off a few pounds (and I needed to) and a friend of mine was indignant. He said, "You don't want to be a bag of bones, do you." I agreed, and reflected that something in the way of curves is more pleasing from most angles — when it comes to the human frame. . . .

Just the same, we know that those of us who manage to keep weight within limits — so that we are not carrying around unwanted weight and we haven't entirely deserted that girlish figure — are the ones who live longest.

I suggested to the reader that some of the ideas in my 25-cent leaflet "Chart For Curves", would give her the facts about food and fitness related to figure faults and fatness. Then I cautioned her not to go hungry. I also cautioned her to budget not only her diet but her activities. She can keep on keeping on if she can adapt herself to the changing shifts of later years.

It is a blow to any of us to discover in our forties or fifties that we are running short of energy even when our minds are still racing ahead with the activities we continue to plan on. Examples of this happen when we become aware of using stair railings or pausing before stepping off a curb or stopping part way up a flight of stairs.

We look up a number in the telephone book and reflect on how small the print is getting these days. —Blasses follow!

Ann Landers

Tip for Teen-age Tippers

Dear Ann Landers: I am 14 years old and in the ninth grade. I read your column often and admire the way you answer the many different kinds of questions people ask you. I hope you can help us.

My girl friend and I go shopping together quite often. Usually we all stop somewhere to get a bite to eat and a cold drink. After we eat we are never sure what we should leave a tip because there are just the two of us and the check is all most always less than a dollar.

Sometimes when we leave a tip the waitress looks at us like UGH. Are teen-agers expected to tip when they have a hamburger and a cold drink? If so, how much is right?—Not Cheap, Just Ignorant

Dear N.C.J.I.! Any person who sits down to eat in a restaurant and is served by someone should leave something, even if they are seated on a stool at a counter.

Teen-agers who can afford to go shopping and buy a hamburger and a cold drink should be able to leave a dime apiece under the plate. This is about 20 per cent of the check and it is considered a nice tip by any standards.

Dear Ann Landers: I work in the customer service department of a well-known Chicago department store. I would just love to fill some of the orders that are stuffed in my desk, but I can't because I'm unable to read the names or addresses. Since you try to help people, Ann, here's your chance.

Please publish the following suggestions for individuals who order merchandise through the mail:

If you can't type, please print your name and address. I've sent one package to a man in New York four times. It came back again today. There are 30 more streets beginning with F.

Use your zip code. When customers who process orders have to stop and look up zip codes they sometimes put the orders aside until they have more time. The package could sit for several days.

Be sure your name and full address is on your letter as well as your envelope. Sometimes envelopes get thrown out.

If never hurts to say "thank you."

P.S. I love your columns, but I wish I didn't have to fight the rest of the family for it. Everyone wants it first.—Chicago

Dear Chicago: (My kind of town and you're my kind of reader.) Thank you for a letter that is sure to provoke better service and reduce indigestion among post-office employees.

Dear Ann Landers: A word of advice to that human dynamo who painted a ten-room house (inside and out), puts up screens and storm windows, slops hogs, built a fence, replaced the roof, sews her own clothes and works right along with her husband in the fields. (Oh yes, she has six children, too.)

I was one of those incredible dames with so much energy nobody could believe it. I thought I was smart, but as it turned out I was the biggest fool who ever lived. My back is ruined and I have female trouble from all that lifting. When I had my varicose veins stripped last year, the doctor said he never saw any woman with legs so "abused."

I wish I knew then what I know now. Please, Ann, tip 'em off. Thanks.—One Whose Get Up and Go Got Up and Went

Dear Friend: You did and I thank you.

Blue Jeans Out

PARIS (Reuter) — Granny skirts and long dresses will lead the fashion parade next summer, as indicated by French ready-to-wear designers unveiling their collections for 1974.

The tidal wave of romantic fashion which hit French fashion houses last season will be back again as a major influence with long swirl skirts, decollete tops, peasant dresses and floppy brimmed hats crowned with flowers.

Many mass-produced collections at the ready-to-wear showings starting Friday will also have a distinct flavor of the 1930s.

The big news is the dethroning of jeans and trousers and a lengthening of hemlines—hobbly skirts down in an inch or two and coats and dresses lengths but now scheduled for a big drop in 1974.

Rich Little's Big Brother Prefers Life in Ottawa

OTTAWA (CP) — "And now ladies and gentlemen, FRED LITTLE!"

Fred WHO!?

If the master of ceremonies had introduced Fred Little, the audience would have strained forward in their seats in anticipation of a barrage of fun-choked imitations, impersonations, impressions and jokes. Rich has successfully made the jump from small-time Ottawa performances to the fame and bright lights of international entertainment.

But outside the Ottawa Valley few people would recognize Fred's name or know that his ability is the same field of entertainment possibly rivals that of his younger, more famous brother.

One of Fred's strongest boosters is Rich himself, who tends to wish Fred would take the same chance he did in risking a shot at the big entertainment apple.

"Fred has always had the remarkable ability to make people laugh," Rich says enthusiastically. "I always thought that if he ever decided to go into show business . . ."

More praise tumbles out as Rich warms to the topic of Fred's talent.

"He's certainly got the looks. He has a very photogenic face . . . it's just incredible. He looks a little like Jack Lemmon, I think."

"And he's got a very inventive mind. He's a little like Johnny Winters' at times."

So, with all that going for him, what's Fred doing in the boondocks of the entertainment world?

Rich's theory is that Fred needs a bit of a push.

"I'm not sure Fred has the temperament to make the big time," he says. Fred agrees. He likes the security of home and family.

"People always ask me that," he chuckles when asked whether he's ever considered going to bat in the big leagues of show business.

"And they always think, oh yes, he would but he just won't say it."

But, it seems, he always brushes away the stardust and takes a hard look at the risks involved.

"But yeah, sure I have. . . . I guess anyone would." He pauses then adds, "but I think I'd go a little stats doing two shows a day, seven days a week."

During the last few years, Fred has been tempted to come but with Judy and their three-year-old son in a bigger city and gamble on his talents.

"I always think, when I hear these voices for cartoon characters on TV, wouldn't that be great. . . . I could probably make my bread and butter right there," says the man of about 125 voices, including a large selection of cartoon characters that, for years, have kept kids and adults laughing.

"But it might not last. The cartoon might go off the air in a very short time."

He goes on to cite dire reports that one of every four actors in California is unemployed.

"That doesn't say much for the business. I guess I kind of like the pay cheque coming in every two weeks."

Fred has had a few big moments. He won a spot on the old CBS Ted Mack Original Amateur Hour and has entertained United States audiences as a guest of David Frost as well as Canadian viewers on the Pierre Berton Show a few years back.

And Canadian audiences will be able to catch him again next Easter when he appears on the Juliette Show.

But mostly he sticks to his work with emotionally-disturbed children, sporadically unleashing his zany wit at a convention here, a benefit show there, at fairs and for commercials.

Fred says it always embarrasses him when Rich asks how much he was paid for a particular performance and that tells him he should have asked for a lot more.

The mobile face that Rich describes grins wryly. "As Rich always says, I'm good but I'm cheap.

"Oh well . . . maybe next year."

CANON CITY, Colo. (AP) — Actress Sue Lyon, who at the age of 14 played the teen-age sex kitten in Lolita, plans to marry a convicted murderer next month at the Colorado state penitentiary.

Miss Lyon, 27, who has been divorced twice, said she met Coiton Adamson, 33, through a mutual friend. She was once jailed with Adamson in Los Angeles.

Miss Lyon said she and Adamson got to know each other through letters and later through limited visits "on different sides of glass dividers" at the prison.

Adamson was sent to the prison in 1964 to serve two concurrent 20-to-40-year sentences for second-degree murder and aggravated robbery. He also has convictions for narcotics possession and bank robbery.

"We know each other better than any two people I know," Miss Lyon said. "Our relationship is not based on sex. We have a common bond of friendship. We're willing to wait because we love each other."

HAMBURG, West Germany (Reuter) — Maria Callas, 49, was given an ecstatic welcome when she returned to the Hamburg State Opera right in her first major concert in eight years.

Opening lead — king of diamonds.

Performing the impossible is a contradiction of terms, but there are hands where declarer can give a good imitation of the feat.

Take this hand where South has a spade loser and, as the cards lie, two trump losers. It is of course mighty difficult to make a slam with three natural losers, but our hero, Sogh, met the challenge with ease.

West led a diamond, won in dummy with the ace. In an effort to escape the spade loser, South ruffed a diamond at trick two, hoping the queen would fall on either this round or the next time diamonds were led.

He then played the ace of hearts, learning to his horror that West had two natural trump tricks. But, undaunted, he decided to play West for the only distribution that would permit the slam to be made.

According to south started by cashing three club tricks, ending in dummy, then ruffed the nine of diamonds. With everything going smoothly, declarer returned to dummy with a spade and ruffed the jack of diamonds.

By now West was out of diamonds and clubs. When South next cashed the king of spades, West ran out of that suit also. With three tricks to go, West's remaining cards were the Q-10-9 of hearts.

Having won the first five tricks, South led the six of spades, and, lo and behold, the three looser he had started with suddenly dwindled to one.

West had to ruff the spade and return a trump — and that was the end of that. West could not avoid the endplay by which South, in one miraculous swoop, succeeded in telescopist three losers into one.

Aging Everyone's Concern

The problems of the aged — loneliness, insecurity and a loss of self-reliance — are also the problems of the young.

That was the message and the warning presented to the public during the final forum of Rehabilitation '73 at the Belleville General Hospital last night.

For the last five days, groups of medical specialists have met to discuss a variety of problems, programs and plans concerning the rehabilitation of the handicapped, the mentally ill, the injured and the disabled.

The discussions have brought to the residents of Belleville an awareness of problems they would not normally encounter.

Last night's program was strikingly different, however, in that the problems under discussion will face everyone sooner or later.

All of the specialists on hand at last night's presentation agreed that the loneliness and the enforced helplessness which afflicts a great many of Belleville's 4,000 people over 60 will become the legacy of a younger generation if attempts are not made now to improve the care of the aged.

Last night's discussion revolved around two major topics — the aged in the institutional home and the senior citizen in the community.

The panelists tried to outline the problems faced by older people in these two settings and briefly described some solutions.

Dr. David Holden, an associate professor of sociology at Queen's University, explained that the major problem facing the five per cent of Canada's aged who live in institutional homes was the impersonal atmosphere of public institutions.

Take 2 Aging

"The old age home is designed to look after people who can't look after themselves," he said. "The resident of an old age home can have his physical needs looked after but the main difficulty of living in an institutional home is that a large proportion of them tend to be very lonely people. The warm supportive relationship of the family is not there."

Dr. Holden called for the creation of small housing units for the aged in which medical treatment and supervision would be available for those who need it. But he cautioned, there must also be provision for a certain amount of independence whereby the older person could "live with his own things in his own way."

Dr. B. Bright, the deputy chief of the geriatric unit at Harleen Valley State Hospital in New York, discussed the role of the aged within the community.

"The alternative to living in an institution is living at home with dignity and independence," she said. "Our society has not developed a special world for the aged as others have. Therefore, if the older person is going to have a full life, he must keep an active mind. He must retain an ability to socialize. Otherwise people living at home will have a lot of time on their hands. They will be isolated and lonely."

In discussing the prospects for creating an emotionally satisfying and interesting environment for the aged, both in and out of public institutions, Dr. Bright stressed the importance of community involvement in encouraging and helping older people to take an action and rewarding part in society.

Marianne Adams, the director of in-service education at Belleville General Hospital summed up the panel's point of view when she said: "The solution lies with a community resourcefulness. You don't have to have a lot of official agencies to do the job. It rests with what you do for your next door neighbor."

Sophiasburgh Dump Closes

SOPHIASBURG — Sophiasburg township will close its dump on Dec. 1 to adopt a new waste disposal system.

Reeve George Foster said the township has a one year contract with a Kingston waste disposal service. Twelve boxes will be placed throughout the township as collection drops.

Prince Edward County council has been seeking a waste disposal site for county-wide use for several months now. Earlier this week two drillings were conducted at locations in Ameliasburg and Sophiasburg.

Scholars Awaiting Awards

Ontario Scholarship winner Peter Lebaron (left) chats with fellow winner Charles Geen who waits along with valedictorian Jennifer Staveley for the announcement of their awards at the Belleville Collegiate Institute and Vocational School graduation exercises Friday. The three received secondary school honor graduation diplomas along with special prizes and awards in recognition of their scholarship. Charles Geen received 10 awards, the largest number for any individual, with a total value of $520.

BCI Graduates Seventy

The oldest secondary school in the city, Belleville Collegiate Institute and Vocational School, officially sent its graduating class into the world Friday night as poet Noel Stockton noted during his speech Friday evening.

Author of Family Verse and No Sugar For Vi, two books of verse, the Oak Hills resident charged the graduating class with the duty of excellence. Saying that, although life was difficult and was a struggle, each former student of BCI should strive to attain the best in him or herself.

Mr. Stockton's anecdotes and verse left his remarks evoked laughter from many of the talented students in the school's auditorium.

In what school principal J.A. Walker called the largest group of Ontario Scholars in the collegiate's history, 70 students received scholarship for 1106. The presentation was made by Richard T. Potter, provincial minister of health. To receive the award, a student must obtain an average of 80 per cent on grade 13 papers having a value of six credits.

Recipients are Robert Bailey, Fred Cass, Harold Dibben, Gary Fong, Charles Geen, Peter James, Kristin Jenkins, Toni Langman, Paul Lear, Peter Lebaron, Neil May, Patricia McCleskey, Carol Reid and Peter Tam.

The Ontario scholars were among 70 students who graduated from the five year program with a secondary school graduation diploma. Receiving secondary school diplomas for satisfactory completion of 4 years were 129 students. Some of these went on to accept fuller prizes and awards.

Education Beat

Schools To Be Job Oriented

By LENNY WILLIAMSON

An educator who used to teach at BCI has come up with a solution for some of the problems that plague education today.

Specifically, his program zeroes in on student apathy that leads to the high dropout rate. As a bonus, it offers a way of reawakening youths faith in the work ethic.

J. A. Snetsinger, now a program consultant for the ministry of education in Kingston, proposed "career development education" at last weekend's conference of Hastings counsellors.

The concept is simply that of slanting education toward work. Present education Mr. Snetsinger calls "schooling for schooling's sake."

CDE would involve workstudy programs for older students, visitations in industry and business to discover what workers do on the job, surveys of career opportunities and part-time employment to give on-the-job experience.

The concept isn't new. It has been tried at Moira Secondary School on an experimental basis for several years and is said to be a success.

A short period of work experience in factory or business increases students' motivation in the classroom, teachers say.

This is just the result Mr. Snetsinger hopes for when he advocates career development education.

"The main thrust of CDE is to help young people discover their individual interests and abilities, and explore the many avenues of personal achievement that might challenge and enlarge their individual talents," he says.

"It is not meant to replace any current educational practices. Nor is it a separate subject thrown into an already overcrowded curriculum. Rather, it encourages all teachers to incorporate into the teaching process examples of how the subject content in their particular discipline relates to everyday life, and in particular to career opportunities."

Mr. Snetsinger contends that the present educational system is geared away from preparation for the world of work. The curriculum is planned for those intending to go to university and students complain that school has no relationship to the "real world" outside.

Perhaps the trouble lies with modern schools' attempt to be all things to all people. Since Ontario rejected the concept of streaming in education, schools have tried to prepare the academically inclined for university, have tried to give shop training to the vocationally oriented and have tried to give a good general grounding to those who don't know what they want to do.

The job-oriented CDE program might turn the kids on to school. Or it might be just one more Band-Aid slapped on the seriously mauled educational body.

Elementary Teachers Will Stay After School

Northumberland and Durham's male elementary school teachers won't follow the lead of secondary school teachers in withdrawing voluntary services in the schools.

Their professional association, the Ontario Public School Men Teachers' Federation is opposed to the scheme.

J.J. Ursano, spokesman for the Northumberland and Durham OPSMTF, clarified his organization's position in the wake of withdrawal of services this week in the neighboring county. The Ontario Secondary School Teachers' Federation members in Toronto and Northumberland and Durham withdrew after - school services to protest the reduction in educational spending increase allowed this year.

"Operating on the principle that unreasonably high class sizes and other results of the underfinancing of education by provincial government adversely affect the quality of education in schools," says Mr. Ursano. "The situation is particularly critical in elementary classrooms, where individualization of instruction is stressed."

However, OPSMTF also recognizes that many activities outside the classroom teaching situation are essential functions of the teacher. Among these are parent - teacher conferences, remedial and extra help for students and staff meetings."

United Way At 38 Per Cent Of $140,000 Campaign Goal

By AL ZARAS
Staff Reporter

The United Way campaign, going into its last legs this weekend, is proceeding "neck and neck" with that of last year.

Elinor Sisson, campaign chairman, is pleased with the progress made toward this year's goal of $140,000 — money that will be used to provide the operating budgets for 12 agencies participating in the appeal.

As of late yesterday, afternoon the United Way campaign has received over $54,000 in cash and pledges.

"That's about par for the course," said Mrs. Sisson, adding that over 38 per cent of the goal has now been reached. "We're running average for cities of comparable goal size."

Quoting figures supplied by Community Funds and Councils, the body overseeing United Way campaigns across Canada, she said most cities with a goal figure ranging between $100,000 and $199,000 had collected less than 30 per cent of their goal as of last week. Belleville was in line at that time.

Last week, Belleville campaign had collected 28.6 per cent while Barrie's campaign (goal: $125,000) had received 21.6 per cent of their requirements. In larger centres, figures were 12 to 12 per cent different. Kingston, with a $227,000 goal, had collected 23.7 per cent while Peterborough had only managed.

Although only four days remain in the October campaign month, Mrs. Sisson said she is reasonably optimistic at least the same amount can be collected as was last year.

"We can only hope," she said. "We're going along at the same rate as we were last year."

"It drives you crazy waiting. We still have a long way to go. I'm just hoping that people will not feel worthy of the goal and be reluctant to give once the campaign month ends."

Four of the seven divisions are ahead of their total last year at this time. The educational public service and financial divisions have each submitted figures better than at this time in 1972. Contributions from the professions are running highest as well.

Further behind in contributions is the commercial division said Mrs. Sisson. The agencies, which have taken on the canvas of small Belleville businesses this year, are just beginning to move out into the community.

"They've had the pledge cards for a long time, but in cases there's long time to get out. It's unfortunate because they'll be missing out on the publicity."

Contributions from the "special names" division are running at $1,000 below last year's mark while the industrial division is behind by $5,000.

However, the Industrial contributions are running behind last year due to the slow start of in-plant canvassing. Corporate gifts have been received from about half of the 40 industries in the Quinte area. In-house canvassing of commercial firms is just getting underway.

Once the end of October arrives, Mrs. Sisson said contribution from the public will still be accepted. Donations can be mailed to the United Community Services offices at 360 William St.

No Free Parking At BGH

Belleville General Hospital is not in the position to provide free parking for the organization or group of individuals regardless of the fact they may be doing volunteer work for the hospital.

Friday's hospital board meeting the planning and property committee reported the Workers' Compensation Board and the clergy had received special permission for parking.

The WHA has offered to pay $30 per month to cover the cost of parking for their volunteers. Parking for clergy will be provided in the staff lots at $6 per cent of the normal rate.

This, it was stated, would allow some degree of control to be maintained over parking arrangements.

Committee chairman Harleigh Hamilton said there was no way the hospital could give away parking without getting into trouble.

Hospital Art Work Switched

Quinte Arts Council has exchanged the pictures and tapestries which for several years graced the corridors at Belleville General Hospital.

Executive Director Philip Rickard, in his report to the board of governors this week, said the pictures and tapestries were to have a considerable effect in humanizing the otherwise "cold corridors" of the hospital.

They may well add a patient in making his stay more gentle."

Mr. Rickard said the pictures and tapestries create a reaction from the staff and visitors — mostly favorable, sometimes otherwise.

Telephone Books Late

The 1974 Telephone Directory for this area will be delayed from its usual January delivery according to an announcement made by E. G. Thompson, local Bell Manager.

"A periodic review of the schedule is necessary," said Mr. Thompson. "In order to keep the production load even, and to meet special conditions. In this instance the total numbers of directories is being reduced by combining books in areas where customer calling requires it. While the Belleville book is not directly affected, the reason date is."

The closing date for the changes to the 1974 telephone directory is now March 29, 1974 with delivery in May.

Police Nab Pair

PICTON — Two men have been apprehended by town police in connection with a break-in at the Church of St. Mary Magdalene Thursday night.

Entry was gained by one man through a side door. A window in the vestry where office was broken open but nothing was reported missing from the room.

Police discovered blood on the scene where the prowler apparently had cut himself as he entered the building.

Cyclist Hurt

An 18-year-old motorcyclist remain in Belleville General Hospital today after colliding with a car on North Front St. Friday.

David Reid, 18, of RR 1 Brighton was admitted to hospital with a fractured leg.

Riding a motorcycle southbound on North Front St., Mr. Reid was in the process of making a left hand turn east onto Bell Blvd. when hit by a northbound car driven by Ronald Wilson, 35, of Third St., Trenton.

Driver of the car received minor injuries Belleville police said. Damage to each vehicle was estimated at $600.

Alarm Box

Belleville firefighters responded to the following call Friday, Oct. 26:

11:11 p.m. . . . . loud of logs on a flat car at the Canadian National freight yards on fire. Extinguished.

Combined Effort

Jim Thompson last night finished 23 years of fighting fires in the Trenton area but gave much of the credit and the silver helmet to his wife Violet. "Wives are as much firefighters as husbands. They have to sit at home waiting." Mr. Thompson retired from the department as a volunteer brigade sergeant following an industrial accident earlier this year.

Fireman Retires

TRENTON — Jim Thompson, after 27 years fighting fires in the Trenton area, last night hung up uniform number 13 last night for the last time.

Mr. Thompson began his formal career as a member of Trenton's volunteer fire department in 1950. According to a speech made by Mayor Donald McDonald, he was scheduled to become a "regular" fireman in 1954 but could not take the position following a hunting accident in which he lost an eye.

"A few years later, hunting again, he was shot a second time, hurting only his pride and forcing him to eat his standing position," said the mayor.

Following this he was run over by a horse while ice fishing back north and he says he has half drowned a few times.

"Even this couldn't keep a good man down" said the mayor as he continued talking through the more hectic experiences in Mr. Thompson's life. He leaves the volunteer brigade as a sergeant.

"Uniform 13 wasn't unlucky for me. If I'd have been wearing another number it's likely accidents would have been worse. Besides 13 was my number when I was a member of the hockey team."

As a tribute to Mr. Thompson, the fire hall presented him with a full-scale, silver fire helmet with a set of badges inscribed with his length of service. This was one of many gifts given to him and his wife Violet during the evening.

During his address to the firefighters and their wives he said the women were as much firefighters as the husbands. "They never know if their husband will come home in a fire."

"Firefighting gets into your blood and I hate to leave it - I really do," he said.

Mr. Thompson is leaving the fire hall because of an accident earlier in the year when he was electrocuted with 44,000 volts while operating a crane.

"You'll never be forgotten. We're losing a heck of a good man," said Chief Cecil Ellis.

East Zwick's Island Toboggan Slide

This 30 foot high man-made hill on East Zwick's Island could be a drawing card this winter for local sleighriders and other sports enthusiasts. Thousands of yards of rough fill from local construction and roadway projects were used to form the hill and city parks department has almost completed rough grading of the proposed 35 acre park site. The rough grading and seeding is mainly for appearance sake until long term future park development can be commenced.

Four Point Night

Bobby Schmautz Leads Canucks In Victory Over Red Wings

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Bobby Schmautz was having a so-so season, until Detroit Red Wings came along.

The 28-year-old Saskatoon native entered Friday night's National Hockey League game with no goals and five assists in six regular-season contests.

He quickly changed that with a four-point performance, including three goals, to lead Vancouver Canucks to an 8-3 home town triumph over the weak Red Wings before 15,579 fans.

For the rugged right winger, who had 36 goals and 33 assists last year, it was the third time in the NHL he has scored three goals in a single game. His outstanding season in 1972-73 also featured two four-goal efforts in separate games.

In the only other game Friday night, Atlanta Flames took over first place in the East Division with a 5-1 win over California Golden Seals.

The Canucks, who now have outscored their opposition 13-4 during all three games on the home ice early this year, moved within two points of first place in the East Division.

Boston Bruins, Montreal Canadiens and Buffalo Sabres share first with 10 points each, one more than Toronto Maple Leafs, and two more of Vancouver.

It was the sixth loss against a tie and a win for the Wings who have been outscored 15-4 in their last five starts and 42-30 this year.

The Canucks took command quickly, scoring four goals before the game was 14 minutes old. They took a 4-0 lead into the second period and increased it to 5-0 when Schmautz scored at the 36-second mark of the middle session.

Defenceman Jocelyn Guevremont and Andre Boudrias each picked up three assists in the rout. Dennis Ververgaert, formerly of London Knights in the Ontario Hockey Association Junior A series, scored his first NHL goal at 8:46 of the first period.

The Canucks outshot the visitors 35-31, but rookie goalie Terry Richardson, who allowed all the Vancouver goals, couldn't be blamed as the winners continually swarmed around his net.

Richardson, who started his first game as a pro, was told by coach Ted Garvin after the defeat: "Look Terry, you're going to be a great goalie. Just put that game out of your mind."

Garvin was obviously disappointed with the Wings and said "we've got a belt of a rebuilding job on our hands."

It was the first loss in the Pacific Coliseum for Richardson, who last year played for New Westminster Bruins of the Western Canada Hockey League. He played in the Colisseum a number of times against the Bruins' crosstown rival, Vancouver Nats, now Kansas Obels.

In Oakland, centre Ray Cameron scored his second and third goals of the season to help Atlanta win its fourth game in eight starts.

The Seals, who whipped the Wings 7-3 Wednesday night, opened scoring in the second period when Gary Croteau picked up his fifth goal of the year. However, the Flames rallied with Reggie Leach scoring the tying goal at 15:56 of the second and Cameron the winner less than four minutes later.

Knights Down Ottawa Kingston Over Wings

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

London Knights broke a 2-2 tie with two goals 96 seconds apart early in the third period and went on to beat Ottawa 67s 5-2 in an Ontario Hockey Association Junior A league game Friday.

The win helped London secure their hold on second place in the 11-team league, just five points behind Peterborough Petes.

In other OHA Junior A games Friday, Kingston Canadians beat Hamilton Red Wings 6-2, Peterborough edged Sault Ste. Marie Greyhounds 4-3, and St. Catharines Black Hawks downed Kitchener Rangers 7-5.

Dennis Maruk scored two goals for London with line-mates Dale and Terry Martin adding a goal each. Vern Stenlund scored the other London goal.

Defenceman Jamie Masters scored both Ottawa goals.

London used four lines throughout the game, and the results showed late in the contest when they outshot three unanswered goals before 3,764 fans.

Ottawa was outshot 19-3 in the final period.

At Hamilton, left winger Peter Driscoll scored two goals to give Kingston its 6-2 victory over Hamilton.

Kingston led 2-1 after the first period and 3-2 after the second but was outshot 42-29.

Mike O'Connell, Larry Murphy, Eric Brabrand and Roger Dorey scored single goals for the Canadians. Mike Yonarack let

Teeple's Six Points Sparks Reds' Win

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Richmond Robins snapped a four-game losing streak and gained their first point of the season Friday night by tying the formidable Nashville Sheer Beers 1-1 in a World Hockey Association game.

Elsewhere, Cincinnati Swords swept to their fifth consecutive victory by shutting Springfield Kings 4-0. Jacksonville Barons beat New Haven Nighthawks 5-3 and Quebec Nordiques whipped Rochester Americans 9-4.

Mike Clarke scored for the Robins in the second period and Joe Bladd received a powerplay goal by Barry Stoughton early in the third to split the two points. Hershey moved into second place in the Eastern Division, five points back of Cincinnati.

Gerry Teeple scored three goals and had three assists in the Reds' victory which widened their lead in the East to four points over the idle Nova Scotia Voyageurs. Doug Horbul scored two goals, while Al Sandford, Bert Wilson and Gerry Meehan each got one.

Gary Bredin, Murray Kunz, Larry McKillop and Bill Paget netted connected for the Americans.

John Cunniff scored twice and sparked an outburst that netted the Barons five goals in the third period. Lou Nistico, Dick Sarazzin, Kevin Ahearn and Mill Black were the other Jacksonville Snipers. Charlie Burns and Tom Colley scored for the losers.

Simpson Helps Toros Tie Jets

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

It doesn't take long to review Don Simpson's record in the World Hockey Association last season.

In 58 league games with Ottawa Nationals, now Toronto Toros, the 21-year-old right winger managed only 10 goals and seven assists.

He moved closer to that total this season—after 15 games—when he picked up two goals and an assist Friday night as the Toros tied Winnipeg Jets 3-3 in overtime.

Simpson, 5-feet-ll and 190 pounds, now has eight goals—best in the league—and two assists, well up in the points race.

In other games, Cleveland Crusaders downed Los Angeles Sharks 3-1 and Quebec Nordiques nipped Minnesota Fighting Saints 5-4.

Simpson, member of Oshawa Generals in the Ontario Hockey Association Junior A series in 1971-72, scored both his goals in the third period as the Toros erased a 3-0 deficit.

Bobby Hull, his fifth, and Kelly Pratt, his first, scored in the second period to give Winnipeg a 2-0 lead. Dunc Rousseau increased the count to three early in the third before Simpson got two goals and Wayne Carleton the tying marker at 19:28, with Toronto goalie Gilles Gratton on the bench for an extra attacker.

In the 10-minute sudden-death overtime period, Simpson had an excellent opportunity to get goal No. 3 on a breakaway.

"I just shot wide," Simpson said. "He gave me about five feet of the net and I missed it.

"I wasn't thinking of saying. Maybe I just had too much sat to shoot at."

Toronto coach Billy Harris was happy with his club's comeback.

"It was amazing. Even more so when you consider our schedule since last Tuesday."

In the last 11 days, the Toros have played seven games and travelled from Toronto to the West Coast twice.

The Toros outshot the Jets 41-36, although Winnipeg had a 5-3 margin in the overtime period.

The tie moved the Jets into sole possession of first place in the West Division with nine points, one more than Edmonton Oilers. Toronto's point enabled the club to move into a fourth-place tie with Chicago Cougars in the East, both with seven points, six behind leading New England Whalers.

Third-period goals by Guy Dufour and Rejean Houle, his fifth, led the Nordiques to victory. Quebec held a 3-2 lead entering the third period, but Ted Hampson tied it of a breakaway.

Dufour made it 4-3 at 8:09 of the third, and Houle increased the lead at 17:11 before Bob MacMillan concluded the scoring for Minnesota.

In Cleveland, a power-play goal by Ron Buchanan at 14:36 of the third period led the Crusaders, who were outshot 35-17 but received an outstanding performance from goalie Bob Whidden.

Whidden, who had a 2.33 goals-against average last year, stopped 13 shots in the second period and 11 in the final 20 minutes.

Action resumes this afternoon with Los Angeles Sharks visiting the Whalers in Boston. Tonight's schedule has Winnipeg at Minnesota, Edmonton at Vancouver Blazers and Houston Aeros at Cleveland.

Los Angeles visits New York Golden Blades Sunday afternoon, with Vancouver at Edmonton, Quebec at Houston and Chicago at Toronto in night games.

Notice of Public Hearing

Ottawa, October 22, 1973

In accordance with the Commission's Policy Statement on Cable Television dated July 16, 1971, cable television licensees are required to give priority to the carriage of certain Canadian television stations. The carriage of additional stations in response to individual cable television licensees are expected to determine which optional stations best suit the needs of their subscribers and to request the Commission's authorization for their carriage.

The new Global Communications Network is scheduled to commence broadcasting in January, 1974. All cable television systems within the Grade B contours of any of the Global signals or for which reception of any of these signals is technically feasible and economically practical are expected to provide carriage immediately upon commencement of broadcasting.

In its Public Announcement of July 27, 1972, the Commission indicated that a Canadian station which cannot be carried on its assigned channel because of technical reasons, should be converted to a standard channel which is uniform throughout the area of coverage. It is felt that such uniformity is in the best interest of the public and the television broadcasters. The Commission is of the opinion that it would be advantageous if Global were carried on the same cable system channel where practicable.

In addition, CBLFT, Channel 25, Toronto, has been broadcasting since March 23, 1971 and should be carried by all cable television systems within its Grade B contour or for which the reception of its signal is technically feasible and economically practical.

A number of licensees have already been approved for the carriage of CBLFT — in some cases on an interim basis where carriage was to be on the same channel as the local television station.

Accordingly, the Commission will hold a Public Hearing commencing Monday, November 26, 1973 at the Westbury Hotel in Toronto, Ont., to consider the following applications for the carriage of Global and CBLFT. Carriage applications also include other changes:

Goalie Dale Papke of the Etobicoke Selects, is sticking in defending his net against Belleville Bobcat Mike Watt but still managed to keep the puck out. Papke, despite the 11-3 score in favour of the Cats, did come up with some excellent saves. Etobicoke's biggest problem during the Metro Toronto Junior B loss was a lack of defense as the shots on goal proved: Belleville outshooting the visitors 33-32.

Five Points In 11-2 Win

Newcomer Garrison Leads Cats

By MIKE BRADSHAW
Staff Reporter

Belleville Bobcats fans drank from the sweet cup of revenge last night and to say "My cup runneth over" would be a definite understatement.

Some one thousand Cats supporters sat back and feasted on the 'revengeful nectar as the local Junior B's rebuked a loss to the Etobicoke Selects during the exhibition schedule, by trouncing the visitors 11-2.

The game, marred by 36 penalties, a chaotic fight during the second period and two game misconducts, was to say the least, captivating for Belleville spectators.

Amidst all the confusion and chaos however, local fans got a chance to witness a Bobcat newcomer make his debut.

Al Garrison, who played with the Napanee Juveniles last season and began this year by playing with Loyalist College, was, as he put it, "given a chance" to play with the Cats.

Coach Moe Hunter, who almost didn't activate versatile forward an opportunity was quoted as saying, "He played very well. He's certainly going to help the cause."

Garrison opened the scoring for the locals at the 13:28 mark of the first period and set the pace for a surge of Cats tallies in the opening 20 minutes.

"It's a lot different than playing Juvenile," he said, "the play is a lot faster. This is a really well balanced team with a lot of depth, so the offensive burden isn't placed on the shoulders of one or two players."

Garrison also added a pair of assists to his three goals for a total of five points in his opening game.

The stocky forward missed three more scoring opportunities in the final frame and on top of those, rattled one off the goalpost. "I guess if I just got a little too excited," stated Garrison, "I should have come through with a few more."

But, the hometown crowd wasn't what you would call disappointed in his initial Junior B performance as they applauded heartily for him on several occasions when he had finished his shift.

Another player who took to the ice for the first time this season was defenceman Wally Dalnard, a returnee from last year. Dalnard had been out with an ailing foot.

"Wally controls the game when he's on the ice," said Hunter, "I'm happy to have him back."

Dalnard not only played a solid game on the blue line, blocking shots and wreaking some good, stiff body checks, he also rifled a pair of goals into the Etobicoke net.

The position Hunter is in is an ideal one for any coach. We've got a lot of talent on this club. We've signed 20 players and we can only dress 15 for a game. That means everyone is going to have to hustle if they want to hold down a starting position."

Belleville completely outclassed the visitors in the first 20 minutes of play as they blasted home seven unanswered goals. The Bobcats were headmanning the puck and passing well. Their forechecking, lead by a hustling Mike Watt, was excellent. They were stealing the puck at every opportunity and causing the Selects to take unnecessary penalties.

Probably the most significant factor in the Cats' victory however, was the fact that they weren't forcing plays or passes. That was particularly true of the onslaught they carried on in the visitors end. During an attack, the player with the puck would wait to pass to the open man, either in front of the net or back to the point.

Three of the tallies in the first period were scored on the power play, while the Cats managed to successfully kill off all of their infractions.

Garrison, Garrison and Dalnard all picked up a pair of markers in the first with Barney Holmes scoring one.

The second period didn't have quite as much scoring in it, but excitement wasn't lacking as tempers flared and fists flew.

Wally Dalnard was assessed a slashing penalty at 7:21 and as the play was whistled dead, Joe Edwards and Etobicoke's Don Gardner came to blows. With tension obviously mounting in the contest, the referees should have immediately stepped in and broken things up. Unfortunately they chose to let the two fight for a while.

Then John Sergeant came off the Cats bench and flistcuffs began all over again, but this time several of the Etobicoke players on the bench piled out and got into the act.

Just as this one was being sorted out, two Select players pulled one of the local fans into the bench area and began hammering him. Obviously, in this bout, the players were not at fault as neither were given penalties.

When things finally settled down, Edward, Gardner and Sergeant were the only ones assessed penalties. Gardner's and Sergeant's both ending in game misconducts.

From that point on, the style of the game changed with penalties handed out right and left by the referee in an attempt to regain control, and the two teams clobbering each other whenever possible.

At one time in the second frame, Belleville went for over three minutes while two men short. As always though, a very strong penalty killing unit and some nice saves by Bobby Moore kept the Selects off the scoreboard.

The Bobcats took 11 penalties in the second while Etobicoke had nine.

Jim Richardson tallied at the 19:39 mark to make it 8-0 Cats.

At 19:51 Rob Foster scored, and just eight seconds later Garrison scored his third, unassisted, to make it 10-0.

Foster was probably the busiest man in the Bobcats line-up as he saw ice time on power plays, penalty killing and his regular shift. He was consistently good in all three circumstances as he added three assists to his goal.

The third frame was sloppy most of the way through and Etobicoke tallied twice to keep from being shutout.

Marty McNally fired the first goal home at the 1:34 mark and Romano Carbacci got the second for the Selects.

Harold Roberts rounded out the games scoring at 11:2 when he scored at the 18:58 mark.

Tonight the Cats travel to Toronto for a meeting with the Nationals.

Two Teams End Season Unbeaten

By ALAN TEEWORTH
Sports Staff

Two teams ended their Bay of Quinte high school football season undefeated yesterday as they finished with convincing wins.

Bayside Secondary School seniors trounced Napanee 62-14 to end up with six wins and no losses, while the Moira Trojan senior's were whitewashing Centennial 27-0.

Mitch Auger led the Bayside crew with a pair of touchdowns. His first came after Keith Pearce had blocked a Napanee punt on the Napanee 20.

Three plays later Auger took the ball five yards on an off-tackle for the major.

His other score came on an 18 yard off tackle play that went 16 yards for the six points.

Al Osborne added a major on a 19 yard sweep, while Tim Szczesnik scored on a two yard quarterback keeper.

Gary Roberton booted five points on two converts and a 53 yard field goal.

Pete Calder scored the first Napanee major on a five yard sweep early in the second quarter.

Bob Hollands scored the other six-pointer as he topped off a 76 yard drive that started on the Napanee 34 yard line.

He went six yards for the score.

Darcy McKitrick added a two point conversion to Hollands' score.

Auger marched the ball 11 yards on the ground for the Bayside squad, who will move into A division next year by virtue of their first place finish this season. BCI will be relegated to the "B" series.

Hollands was the leading rusher for the visitors going 116 yards on 13 carries.

Meanwhile, at Moira, the "non-ops" as the second string are called at that school, were coming up with outstanding performances, as the Trojans whitewash second place Holdsworth, Centennial Chargers 27-0.

Taking over for injured Dave Rutherford and Larry Kirby, Mike McClelland and Dave Steel turned in outstanding performances as their team also ended up with a perfect 6-0 record.

McClelland took running back Dave Rutherford's place, and ran for well over 100 yards and one touchdown.

Steel took over from Kirby, when Kirby incurred a concussion on the opening kick-off of the game.

Steel ended up as the offensive centre for the game, and played an excellent game at the position, according to coach Hugh Cosbie.

Peter Stallkovich scored two touchdowns during the game, including an 85 yarder, running back the opening kickoff of the game.

His second came on a 35 yard flea-flicker, a triple reverse which returned to quarterback Shaw, who fired to Stallkovich in the end zone for the score.

Al Ward, another "non-op" scored the other major late in the game on a one yard dive.

All three running backs for Moira were well over the 100 yard mark in rushing, with Gord Hill the other back.

Shaw also hooked two converts and a single.

Centennial finished the season with a three and three record, identical to Trenton, but got the second place finish by virtue of their win over the Tigers-of regular season play.

Cassata May Start For Ottawa

By STUART LAKE
Canadian Press Staff Writer

Ottawa Rough Riders go into Sunday's game against the red-hot Montreal Alouettes leading the Eastern Football Conference by one point.

But when the schedule ends next weekend, Riders could find themselves in fourth place and out of post-season play.

It's one of the tightest races the EFC has had for some time.

With one week to go in the regular play, all four eastern clubs are in danger of missing the playoffs.

A win for either Ottawa or Montreal Sunday giver the winner first place. A tie for Riders assures them of making the playoffs but Als would have to await the outcome of their final game next week against Hamilton Tiger-Cats.

Sunday's game at Ottawa will attract more than 25,000 fans and could threaten the record turnout of 27,600 established several years ago.

All but some 2,000 end zone seats already have been sold for the game which will be shown on the CTV network starting at 2 p.m., EST.

Ottawa Coach Jack Gotta listened Friday as his staff and Rick Cassata at quarterback. Cassata has had elbow trouble all year but Gotta says there has been great improvement and "I wouldn't hesitate a moment to start him and keep Jerry Keeling ready to fill in if needed."

But the best guess is that Keeling will start for Riders and that Cassata will be in wings ready to step in if Keeling can't make headway against Als.

Ottawa will be without defensive tackle Rudy Sims and defensive end Wayne Smith for the game. Smith is recovering from a broken arm and Sims has a painful groin injury.

Riders will have linebacker Jerry Campbell, a doubtful starter until now because of pulled stomach muscles.

Good news for Ottawa but tough for Montreal is the chance Als will be without running back John Harvey may not play.

He is hobbled by a leg injury suffered last week against Winnipeg Blue Bombers. Harvey needs only 81 yards to reach the 1,000-yard mark this season.

"We'd hoped that he'd come around quicker than he has," Leroy said. "But we still have time to look him over."

Alouettes have reactivated defensive halfback Ron Perseus so they will have to place another Canadian on waivers before Sunday.

George Mira will start at quarterback for Montreal and Riders will pay special attention to Johnny Rodgers who scored twice against them in their last meeting here.

Three Tied For WFC Lead

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

With only a handful of games remaining, Saskatchewan Roughriders and Edmonton Eskimos are tied for the Western Football Conference lead and they will settle that dispute next weekend in Edmonton.

The Eskimos are at Calgary in the only WFC game today. The Stampeders sank five consecutive losses are clinging to third place, ahead of Winnipeg Blue Bombers and British Columbia Lions who meet in Winnipeg Sunday.

In another Sunday game, Hamilton Tiger-Cats are at Saskatchewan.

Calgary coach Jim Wood says there is a "50-50" chance running back Jesse Mims will be available to play today.

The game will be carried on the full CBC television network beginning at 10 p.m. EDT.

The Blue Bombers and the Lions also have some doubtful starters. Winnipeg won't know until later today about linebacker Phil Minnick and offensive guard Tuell Uperesa while B.C. quarterback Don Moorhead still is hampered with an ankle injury.

Winnipeg coach Jim Spavital says the attitude of his players is good, but adds that "coming off this Montreal situation it's probably not as good as it should be."

That "situation" developed during a 34-7 loss to Montreal last Sunday. A brawl broke out and four players were ejected. A Winnipeg protest was rejected by the commissioner.

The feelings of the Lions are evident in statements by Ted Wheeler, an offensive tackle shifted to defence when coach Eagle Keys decided to cut rookie Mike Samples and bring back Curtis Wester.

"We've been hurt all year and maybe some people feel we've let them down," Wheeler said. "But we're this close even with those injuries and ... we're going to make it."

The Tiger-Cats-Roughriders clash is to be shown on the full CTV network beginning at 3:30 p.m. EDT. will be the first meeting between the two clubs

JESSE MIMS ...

since Hamilton won the Grey Cup last fall.

Roughrider coach John Payne says the situation is quite simple for his club: "We have to win if we want to finish first."

Hamilton coach Jerry Williams activitied defensive end Gary Imhoff to replace injured Jerome Gamble.

Williams also is concerned about all-star flanker Garney Henley who has knee problems. He is expected to play but former Blue Bomber running back Stan Brown is standing by.

Cranston Defeated

CALGARY (CP) — For several years, Toller Cranston of Toronto has been one of the top free skaters in the world, but it appears his laurels are in danger.

Ron Shaver of Cambridge, Ont., received two perfect scores of 6.0 Friday in a compulsory short program, second of three men's competitions in the Skate Canada '73 international event, and defeated Cranston handily in a head-to-head struggle.

However, Cranston retained a narrow overall margin on the strength of his impeccable performance Thursday in compulsory figures. He goes into tonight's free skating, his specialty, as the favorite.

Canadians continued to do well in the 10-country competition.

Lynn Nightingale of Ottawa produced a flashy display in the women's compulsory-free section, in which certain initiative is allowed but specified movements must be completed, and Canada's top dance team, Louise and Barry Soper of Vancouver, retained second place after the set pattern segment.

Miss Nightingale jumped into third place after the second women's event. She trails only Jean Scott of Renfrew, Scotland, and Barb Terpenning of North Vancouver, B.C.

The Ottawa youngster, Canada's top-ranked amateur woman skater, was seventh Thursday.

She was easily the best in the compulsory-free segment as she enthralled a crowd of about 2,500.

Miss Terpenning moved up to second place from third as Jill McKinstry of Colorado Springs, Colo., sagged to fourth.

Miss Terpenning was second in the compulsory-free skating event and Miss Scott third.

The other Canadian entrant, Julie Black of London, Ont., was ninth in Friday's test and dropped to about the middle of the field of 12.

One of the surprises in the Friday event was provided by Emi Watanabe, the Japanese representative who practices in Minneapolis.

Miss Watanabe, 14, who weighs less than 85 pounds, produced two perfect combination jumps and drew loud applause for both. Miss Watanabe finished seventh in the event. One judge placed her almost as high as the experienced Miss Scott.

Secretariat Is The 2 to 5 Favorite

TORONTO (CP) — "I hope Secretariat stops to graze along the way and then I'll have a chance."

That's the opinion of trainer Oscar Dishman who will saddle Golden Don for Sunday's $125,000 2-year-old Canadian International Championship at Woodbine race track.

"My horse is at his peak right now—perfect—but that might not be good enough," said Dishman, whose horse has never won a race on the grass, although it has three victories this year for $189,553.

The heavy favorite, of course, is Triple Crown winner Secretariat, to be ridden by substitute jockey Eddie Maple. Secretariat likely to be retired to stud at Claiborne Farm in Kentucky if he wins the 1¼-mile race on the Marshall turf course, has started 11 times this season—eight wins, two seconds and a third for $767,168.

The three-year-old, carrying such nicknames as Super Red and Big Red, has been installed the 2-to-5 morning line favorite to win the race, although it is expected he will go to the post at odds at 1-to-9.

A field of 12 will be seeking the winner's purse of $92,755 in the race, which has a total value of $142,700.

New Contract For Anderson

CINCINNATI (AP) — Cincinnati Reds' Sparky Anderson, described by his boss as "the finest manager in baseball" has been given a new two-year contract.

Anderson, 39, managed the Reds to their third National League Western Division baseball title in four years this season. Since his arrival in 1970, the Reds have won two National League pennants.

"We feel he's the finest manager in baseball and he proved it again this season," said Reds president Bob Howsam, citing a number of major injuries Cincinnati had to overcome.

It was also announced that Anderson's four-man staff of coaches were also rehired.

Retained for a year remaining on a two-year contract which carried through 1974. The new pact includes 1975.

Cincinnati came from behind on baby I to overtake Los Angeles Dodgers and win by 4½ games. The Reds' 99-63 was the best in baseball this season.

Retained coaches were Alex Grammas, Ted Kluszewski, George Scherger and Larry Shepard.

Reggie Smith Traded to Cards For Vice, Carbo

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

The Boston Red Sox traded Reggie Smith (a kick around at Rosen's Fen...y Park sponsors, Smith, a 28-year-old outfielder, is best t for St. Louis along with pitcher Ken Tatum in exchange Cardinal right-hander Rick Wise, ut outfielder Bernie Carbo.

"We're happy, the St. L... bunch is happy and I hope we'll both be happy next September," said Haywood Sullivan, player director of the Red Sox.

The long-rumored deal was officially announced Friday, and St. Louis manager Red Schoendienst promptly declared Smith his starting right fielder.

The 28-year-old, switch-hitter became the target of boos in Boston last August when he missed a pair of routine fly balls in the outfield. The fans felt Smith was loafing, but the outfielder said he couldn't reach the balls because of bad knees.

Smith angrily labelled Boston

Williams Not Released Yet

RIVIERA BEACH, Fla. (AP) — Dick Williams, former manager of world champion Oakland Athletics, said he spoke Friday to team owner Charlie Finley without reaching a settlement in their contract squabble.

"Charlie and I got along fine," Williams said. "We brought things up to date, but he hasn't released me from the contract."

Williams said he would sit out next season if he couldn't get the release.

"There is no way that I'm going to go back to Oakland," Williams said. "I've had several business offers outside of baseball that I might consider."

Williams said Finley extended his contract last July after discussion between players and coaches shook the team.

Finley said on television last Sunday Williams was free to leave Oakland but several days later said his manager would not be released unless the other team offered compensation in money or players.

"a racist city" and sat out for two weeks. He returned in the lineup to have a fine year, however, hitting .293 with 30 homers and 69 runs batted in.

Smith could not be reached for comment but Wise, also 28, could be.

"I guess they (the Cardinals) need power," said Wise, 15-12 with a 3.37 earned-run average. "It wasn't our pitching that hurt us because our pitching kept us in there."

St. Louis moved quickly to replace Tatum, acquiring 36-year-old righty Sonny Siebert from Texas Ranger for minor league outfielder Tommy Grieg. The Cards also sold shortstop Mike Rodriguez to Houston Astros, signed pitcher Mike Nagy to Twins of the American Association and then completed a busy day by releasing veteran pitchers Eddie Fisher and Lew Krause.

On the managerial front, Dick Williams revealed that he and his boss Charles O. Finley, had a little chat about Williams' quitting as manager of Oakland Athletics and Finley's refusal to free him from his contract.

"Charlie and I got along just fine," said Williams. "We brought things up to date but he hasn't released me from my contract."

Williams was reported to be headed for the Yankees until Finley decided he wouldn't let his manager go without suitable compensation in money or players or both.

"There is no way that I'm going to go back to Oakland."

Sagittarius (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) Your friends will be looking to you to organize activities for today. Make the arrangements. They'll gladly comply.

Capricorn (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) You will gain more by letting things come to you rather than by pursuing objectives too openly today.

Rail Service Battered In Financing Debate

By KEN POLE

OTTAWA (CP) — If Canadian National Railways were to adopt a black-and-blue color scheme, it would be appropriate in view of the pasting the Crown corporation has been getting in the Commons lately.

Opposition MPs have been using the annual CN financing bill as a club to batter the railway and its sister corporation, Air Canada.

The bill would provide CN with $265.5 million for capital spending this year and up to $75 million in the first half of 1974. It also would provide loans of $140 million for Air Canada.

A similar bill, covering the 18 months ended July 1, 1975, provided $302.8 million but never was passed. The expenditures subsequently were approved by a cabinet order.

Friday was the present bill's sixth day of second-reading debate since April and there were no signs of that the end is near.

Finance Minister John Turner indicated, however, that the ninety government has said all it has to say; several ministers had spoken last year when the bill was introduced and the government had "very carefully noted" opposition arguments since then.

David Orlikow (NDP—Winnipeg North) did much of Friday's battering.

He described the food served on Air Canada as "very inferior — very often a disaster." He said Canadian Pacific Airlines' food is superior and suggested the national airline prepare its own food instead of having it done by a caterer.

Air Canada's timetable was atrocious, especially in Winnipeg where it was not unusual to have planes with a total passenger load of 700 persons all land at once.

He said baggage at the Winnipeg terminal, thanks to the crush, takes "anywhere up to an hour or more" to retrieve.

Canadian National, he said, is just part of the whole picture of poor railway service.

Mr. Orlikow urged the government to deal with transportation on a national basis to prevent individual regions from falling behind in services and opportunities.

J. Patrick Nowlan (PC—Annapolis Valley) and Lorne Nystrom (NDP—Yorkton-Melville) both endorsed this approach.

Mr. Nowlan said shippers in the East and the West are penalized by inequitable freight rates and their location. It costs up to 11 times as much to move goods to Toronto from the Annapolis Valley in Nova Scotia as it costs to ship them to Toronto from West Germany.

He said the Maritimes are "a great place to live but when it comes to hard economic facts, there is geographic discrimination.

"We are far from the markets of the world and of central Canada. We understand that . . . but we cannot understand why the discretion of geographic distance has to be compounded by the rate structure of the national railway system."

Mr. Nystrom presented the same cases from Saskatchewan's point of view.

He said the railways plan to abandon 3,000 miles of line in his province and that this will cripple or kill many small communities.

Freight rates on the Prairies were as discriminatory as those in the Maritimes.

Potential processing industries are afraid to invest in Saskatchewan because of the higher costs they face, said Mr. Nystrom.

Kids' Milk Tainted

NIAGARA FALLS, Ont. (CP) — Fifteen junior kindergarten students were taken to hospital Friday after drinking milk which school officials say they believe was contaminated with an insecticide spray.

The three-and four-year-olds at Father Hennepin School were later released after being fed milk and cookies to induce vomiting.

Junior kindergarten teacher Dianne Perron said the children' morning milk had been stored in a school refrigerator since Wednesday. The milk would normally have been consumed Thursday but the pupils were on a field trip that day.

Mr. Perron said that after the youngsters had begun drinking the milk she noticed in had a peculiar odor. She reported it to the principal, Ray Negy, who said he thought he recognized it as insecticide.

There had been a break-in at the school Wednesday.

Three juveniles were arrested Friday and charged with breaking and entering and theft.

Used Decoy

CORNWALL, Ont. (CP) — Lionel Lecoupe, 38, of Pointe aux Trembles, Que., was sentenced to six months after court was told Wednesday he used his 14-year-old son as a decoy in passing counterfeit $20 bills at eight stores here in July.

He also received six months, concurrent, for contributing to the delinquency of a minor.

Lecoupe pleaded guilty to the charges Sept. 12.

Papers Presented

OTTAWA (CP) — Maryon Pearson, widow of the former prime minister, presented the Lester B. Pearson papers Friday to the National Archives and said she hopes they will be useful to historians in future.

Nixon Remains Liberal Chieftain

TORONTO (CP) — Robert Nixon goes back to work as Ontario Liberal leader today, "older and wiser," after a tense, third-ballot victory at the party convention Sunday.

"There were many lessons in the convention and, I suppose most of them were for me," the opposition leader said after defeating Norman Cafik 992 to 675.

Victory was cemented for the 43-year-old cattle farmer when Donald Acdoon, who trailed the other two on the second ballot, threw his support behind Mr. Nixon. Second-ballot totals were 708 votes for Mr. Nixon, 613 for Mr. Cafik and 316 for Mr. Deacon.

In a fighting and emotional speech after his win, Mr. Nixon challenged the delegates to get behind his leadership so the party could defeat the Progressive Conservative government of Premier William Davis in the election expected in 1975.

Victory was impossible without the support of Liberal workers throughout the province, Mr. Nixon said.

"Victory in '75—that's our goal," he told a cheering audience.

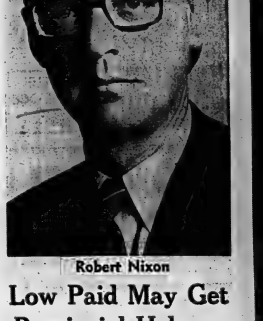
The Liberal leader had the support of less than half of the delegates to the convention on the first ballot and along with other party officials, was mystified by the fact that more than 300 of the 1,681 registered delegates didn't bother to vote.

After the first ballot, Cafik was 730 for Mr. Nixon, 514 for Mr. Cafik and 402 for Mr. Deacon. Fringe candidate Michael John Houlton, a 24-year-old economic nationalist, had 11 votes on the first ballot and was knocked off.

Mr. Nixon moved immediately to salve the wounds of an unexpectedly bitter campaign when he publicly praised his two main opponents in his acceptance speech.

He called Mr. Deacon, "a gentlman unafraid" and "an organizer par excellence, a man whom we all respect."

And, he added, there was a lesson to be learned from the Cafik campaign of "a direct frank approach to the problems across the province."



For his part, Mr. Cafik, member of Parliament for Ontario, moved the traditional motion to make Mr. Nixon's nomination unanimous and said: "these were good men and I was proud to be part of it all."

Mr. Deacon dismissed a limping foul-up during his presentation Saturday night as "just those things," although his supporters were bitter at the time and felt that the party's convention chairman Joseph Cruden might have cost him votes.

Mr. Cruden had indicated that the elaborate Deacon presentation was going over its alloted time and Mr. Deacon, 53, was heckled by some delegates.

At one point, Mr. Deacon, member of the legislature for Toronto York Centre, lost his temper and shouted: "Let me finish."

Mr. Cruden later apologized publicly at least five times when he discovered the candidate was actually a minute under his allotted time limit.

Israel Downs Helicopters

UN Supplies Still Move To Encircled Egyptians

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Israel reported that its air and ground forces shot down three Egyptian helicopters over the southwest coast of the Sinai peninsula early today.

Israel said the air battle did not interrupt the delivery of emergency supplies of food, water and medicine to Egyptian troops stranded on the Sinai side of the Suez canal.

Egyptian trucks with United Nations drivers were delivering the supplies for the Egyptian 3rd Army to the west bank of the canal, an Israeli spokesman said, and they were being loaded there on Egyptian barges and boats that were carrying them to the troops trapped on the east bank.

The spokesman said the supplies were being ferried from a part of the town of Suez, at the southern end of the canal, that is still controlled by the Egyptians.

The International Red Cross Committee in Geneva announced that Israel was refusing to let Red Cross trucks with medical supplies pass through its lines to the Egyptian 3rd Army as long as Egypt and Syria refused to supply lists of the Israelis they captured in the war. But this deadlock apparently had no bearing on the other supply operations.

On the west side of the canal Sunday, 100 Egyptian trucks with UN drivers began passing through the Israeli lines 60 miles from Cairo with food, water and medical supplies for the 3rd Army and the thousands of civilians trapped in Suez, the Egyptian town at the southern end of the canal.

The first convoy of 10 trucks is reported to have reached the canal by midnight, but a UN spokesman in Jerusalem said at 7 a.m. that he had no word that it had crossed to the Egyptian troops on the east side.

Another convoy of 19 trucks pulled into Suez, where Israeli soldiers said there were 15,000 civilians.

The Israelis said Sunday that Egyptian artillery opened up on the first convoys, apparently by mistake. There were no casualties.

Britain May Ration Gasoline

LONDON (AP) — Britain faces the prospect of gasoline rationing by Christmas because of the Middle East war, industry sources said Sunday.

They said the government has rationing books stacked in post offices ready for distribution, but so far has preferred to urge the public to cut fuel use voluntarily.

Britain relies on the Middle East and North Africa for some 80 per cent of its oil. In an attempt to pressure the United States into stopping arms shipments to Israel, the Arabs have cut their oil production by some 70 per cent from September levels.

Britain has about three months of reserve oil supplies on hand, but the industry experts said these reserves will start dwindling soon unless the government orders rationing or other conservation measures.

Low Pad May Get Provincial Help

THUNDER BAY, Ont. (CP) — The Ontario government is giving serious consideration to wage supplementation as an incentive to the lower-middle-income workers, Rene Brunelle, minister of community and social services, said Saturday.

Mr. Brunell told about 200 people at a regional policy seminar sponsored by the Ontario Progressive Conservative party that "preventive measures" should be taken to ensure the individual remains in the work force.

"We must provide incentives," he said. And if industry is unable to fill the need, community-oriented endeavors such as the Local Initiatives Program should be considered.

The minister also repeated the position he expressed last week during a session of the legislative committee studying the estimate of his ministry that such groups as the aged and the mentally-retarded should be encouraged to remain in their homes.

"A more flexible system for the rehabilitation of our disabled" is required, Mr. Bernier said.

The ministry now awards grants to cover oly 25 per cent of capital expenditures incurred by the province's 208 sheltered workshops for the disabled, he added.

Lead Firm Appeals Closing

TORONTO (CP) — Canada Metal Co. Ltd. planned to appeal today the Ontario government's stop-work order that has halted lead-smelting operations at the company's east-end plant.

Officials said they also planned to meet today with union representatives to discuss the future of about 200 plant workers now without work.

The stop-work order, which came into effect Saturday morning, was issued Friday by the provincial environment ministry after tests showed three area residents have high lead levels in their bloodstream.

Tests on 720 blood samples were undertaken by the Environmental Science Associates Laboratory in Burlington, Mass., and the results forwarded to the Ontario government.

Canada Metal manufactures lead and lead alloys, lead oxide for use in batteries and paint pigments.

Canada Is Asked To Help

OTTAWA (CP) — Canada apparently is being asked to fill the same Middle East peacekeeping role it provided in the same area 17 years ago.

That is the preliminary interpretation being placed by sources here on United Nations Secretary-General Kurt Waldheim's request for a Canadian component to his new 7,000-man peace force.

All that was known here and at the UN Sunday night was that Waldheim had asked Canada to provide what External Affairs Minister Mitchell Sharp described as the "logistic component" of the force.

In confirming this in a statement Sunday night, Mr. Sharp said the request is being given serious and urgent consideration and meanwhile, a Canadian delegation is at the UN to stick clarification of the request.

Mr. Sharp said he hopes the Canadian decision will be made in a short period of time, adding "the situation is urgent."

Mr. Sharp said Waldheim asked Canada to provide "the logistic component of the force including in particular air support, transport, communications and related logistic facilities.

U.S. Aid Is Sought By Egypt

CAIRO (AP) — The Egyptian government sent Acting Foreign Minister Ismail Fahmy to the United States Sunday night to seek U.S. help in getting the Israelis to withdraw from all territory occupied in the last two Arab-Israeli wars. The semi-official Cairo newspaper Al Ahram reported that he was carrying a letter from President Anwar Sadat to President Nixon.

Fahmy has been acting as foreign minister while Foreign Minister Mohamed H. el-Zayat has been arguing Egypt's case at the United Nations. Zayyat left for Cairo Sunday because of the death of his father-in-law, writer Taha Hussein.

Senators Will Hear From Cox

WASHINGTON (CP) — Archibald Cox, fired as special Watergate prosecutor, appears before the Senate judiciary committee today as lead-off witness at hearings into his ouster.

Meanwhile, the White House administration prepared to appoint a new special prosecutor to replace Cox — a strong warning that a Nixon appointee would be rejected by Congress.

Congress this week will consider whether to pass a bill directing the courts to name a prosecutor who would be independent of the White House and not subject to dismissal by the president.

More than half of the Senate has taken the view that the courts and not the president should appoint a successor to Cox, fired by Nixon because he refused to abandon his court battle to seek Watergate-related White House tapes.

House to Commence Debate on Foreign Investment Controls

OTTAWA (CP)—MPs soon begin what could be a long, hard, and even bitter struggle when proposed foreign investment review legislation returns to the Commons for more debate this week.

The House must decide on the merits of 10 proposed amendments to the bill before it even starts final-reading debate. The bill would control takovers of Canadian companies and screen expansion of foreign interests already here.

Government House Leader Allan MacEachen said Thursday that third-reading debate on the bill "would take us well into next week." Many MPs regard that as an understatement.

The bill also faces possible amendment in the Senate. The banking committee there began perusal of it last May.

Senator Salter Hayden tabled a senate committee report on the bill about two months later.

The report had some strong criticism of the proposed legislation. The report also contained more than 20 recommendations for amendments.

Should the Senate attempt amendments, the bill would have to be returned to the Commons for further approval—and more battles—before finally becoming law.

With rumors that the government may start a new session early in the new year, there is the prospect of suffering the fate of 1972 foreign review proposals which died on the government order paper a year ago.

The bill is returning to the spotlight only a week after release of some interesting foreign investment statistics.

The U.S. commerce department reported $22.1 billion in direct U.S. corporate investment in Canada by the end of 1972—a jump of $1.7 billion over the previous year. Of this, $1.4 billion represented profits made by the U.S. firms and re-invested here—an aspect the bill does not touch.

The bill does not apply to foreign firms expanding existing operations, but only to those entering new fields of business in Canada.

Statistics Canada reported a $2 billion jump in foreign investment in 1970 to a total of $26.5 billion. The U.S. share of that investment —$21.5 billion— represented a 7.7 per cent increase.

Australia doubled its investment in 1970 to $12 million. Britain showed a modest increase of three per cent—up to $79 million.

A car, stolen Friday, has been returned to Elliot Motors 70 Ltd, after provincial police discovered the vehicle over the weekend.

Car Hits Ditch

A Marysville youth escaped injury Saturday when the car he was driving went out of control at a sharp turn on Hastings County road 22 and crashed headlong into a ditch.

Timothy Shelley, 19, of RR 1, Marysville, the lone occupant of the vehicle, was unhurt. Provincial police said the vehicle ended in deep ditch on the north side of the roadway.

Passenger Hurt, Driver Charged

A Montreal man remains in Kingston General Hospital in fair condition this morning after a single car accident on Highway 401, 12 miles east of Belleville, Sunday. A Toronto man will be charged with careless driving as a result of the accident said Belleville provincial police.

Edward Durbin, 21, of Montreal was taken to Belleville General Hospital where he was listed in serious condition with a broken leg, head injuries, cuts, bruises, neck and spinal injuries. He was subsequently transferred to Kingston by ambulance last night.

Driver of the car Mr. Durbin was a passenger in, Daniel O'Donnell, 21, of Toronto was charged in the accident.

Provincial police said the vehicle was westbound on Highway 401 when it went off the road. It travelled 94 feet on the shoulder. It then travelled through a ditch bordering the road, mounted the end portion of a rock cut, then again, came down into the ditch to travel another 75 feet before halting facing south.

Police estimate damage to the sports car at $2,000.

Dog Show Biggest And Best Ever

FRANKFORD — Record numbers of entrants and spectators have heralded this past weekend's international dog show, the most successful ever, according to Belleville and District Kennel Club president Lew Barks.

Mr. Barks said more than 5,000 people attended the show, which attracted more than 1,600 entrants from all across Canada and the United States. One judge travelled from Vancouver, B.C., to take part in the competition which lasted over three days.

The show this year grew so much over last year Mr. Barks said his club would soon have to begin considering a larger location.

It was hinted the club would be looking toward the federal government for loan assistance to purchase a parcel of about 75 acres of land near Belleville as the site of a dog training ground and show arena.

Asked if there were not facilities within Belleville to handle the show, Mr. Barks quoted rental figures for the Memorial Arena which he translated as a "take your business elsewhere offer."

While the kennel club pays $200 for the Frankford arena (only just large enough for the show) Belleville was ready to rent its major complex for $3,000 and Trenton would rent for $5,000.

The show is making a big name for itself. Dog breeders from Toronto have already approached the Belleville club offering support for their development concept saying they were feeling the squeeze for accommodation in their city.

According to local hotel operators, the dog business is great for hotel business with most hotels and motels completely booked for the weekend.

"It's a big show. We can generate upwards of a quarter of a million dollars worth of business for the area," says Mr. Barks.

For the novice, an international dog show can be a madhouse. For the owner and handler it is precision showing following months of training and hours of preening before entering the ring.

Half a dozen judges were paid $2,200 to pick the best of the bunch. Dog shows are more than showing off. It's a time when dogs win championship points and prove their worth in high price stud service.

One makes very sure he does not walk on a pedigree paw while weeding through the crowds that envelop the never quiet show rings.

A madhouse of brushes whisking endlessly through satin coats and mats, women and child fidgeting nervously as judges assess teeth, bones and beauty.

And when it is all over, Lew Barks is saying "it was a great show. The best one yet and its going to be better. Up is the only way it can go."

And so it goes. The money hasn't been counted but the club knows it has done well. Before too late Sunday night the Frankford arena is still and ready for the crews that Monday morning will begin laying ice for the hockey season.

You never know who had the best time, dog, owner or spectator. But everyone including the dogs, knew this weekend "it's a dog's world".

Who's the Star Here?

Nobody likes waiting around, especially when they aren't getting any attention. This aristocratic Saint Bernard took to the shelter of his owner's leg avoiding the fray of 5,000 spectators that attended the International dog show held in Frankford this weekend, while his master focused attention on Saint Bernard competition in the ring. The show broke all attendance and entrant records for the annual event sponsored by the Belleville and District Kennel Club.

B.C. Palomino Will Compete

PICTON — British Columbia's first horse entry in Toronto's Royal Winter Fair will be shown next month by a Prince Edward County horseman, Charles Culmer.

Mr. Culmer will compete with the Palomino American saddlebred filly, June's Bouquet that he raised and sold to Mr. R. C. Norris of British Columbia. The outstanding youngster made newspaper mention last year at the Royal when she was judged Junior Champion in competition with much older colts. Soon after her big win she was sold to Mr. Norris who shipped her by plane to England where he planned to make his new home.

After a short time he decided to return to Canada and the filly was brought back to the Culmer Stables of Picton for further training. Mr. Culmer will exhibit her at the Royal for her new owner.

In addition to June's Bouquet, Mr. Culmer will show Bourbon Choice, a weanling colt sired by his champion stallion, Bouquet's Bourbon Bob.

Bouquet's Bourbon Bob is also the sire of June's Bouquet and his prize-winning daughter is only following in her father's hoof prints.

The stallion has been three times grand champion at the Royal Winter Fair and this summer was grand champion of the Canadian National Exhibition.

Mr. Culmer will compete for a fourth championship at the Royal with "Bob" on Tuesday, November 13, in a five class.

Japan: A Country Thriving and Bursting at Seams

By JOHN D. HARERON
Foreign Affairs Analyst
Thomson News Service

TOKYO — Japan on a national holiday is reminiscent of England. Families are visiting the national shrines in the capital city, sporting the parks, blocks are selling newspapers and food. In the parks and playgrounds teams of school children play at sports in school uniforms.

All around are the expanding, sooty, dominating institutions of Japan's sprawling industrialization, chock-a-block with jumbled arrays of workers' housing which in turn vie for space with Japan's new shops and hotels.

The overall impression several years after this columnist's last visit, is not unlike that of renewed visits to urban and industrial Britain, an island nation straining at its available land and environmental resources with no other place to go for its people and their facilities.

The major difference of course in comparing Britain and Japan as modern island industrial countries is the dynamism of this Far Eastern state compared to the lethargy and stand-pattism of Britain.

It's clear why the restless, ever mobile Japanese are on the verge of becoming the world's major industrial state, why their yen could replace the hard-pressed British pound as the non-Communist world's second reserve currency.

The still-basic monolithic nature of these Japanese institutions the nationally-owned multi-national companies and the omnibus unions, is the main reason for Japanese industrial superiority over Britain.

Where perhaps as many as 20 miniscule unions in a single British shipyard can strangle its production, in this country which builds most of the world's supertankers, a single union or agreed union group represents all shipyard workers and rarely strangles the industry with endless strikes and wildcat work stoppages.

Yet Japan's obsessive rush to a wider industrialism is creating the world's most seriously polluted national environment. Cities are on the verge of unmanageability with their staggering populations, (Tokyo and Yokohama together equal Canada's national population).

The country's all-important offshore ocean food resources have been polluted now for many years.

In this regard a lagging industrial Britain has become nevertheless a shining example of how to control by ruthless government regulation the cruel spread of pollution. London fogs which killed as many as 3,000 as recently as 1952, are now as historic as executions in the Tower.

But in Japan, the industrial czars who have created their country's unbridled expansion are now working on the unique, and for other countries, scary proposition of exporting highpolluting industries.

A proposed recipient for some of these include parts of South East Asia capable of Australian and Western Canada in the same position.

Whether the Japanese can get away with moving out their latest bizarre export industrial pollution, remains to be seen when the first foreign offer is made.

Meantime here in this dynamic, sprawling and on the surface increasingly Western oriented city with its bumper bare, hustling, polluted colossus and Holiday Inn-type hotels catering to the country's perpetually businessmen, one wonders what basic and important values of Japanese society are going down the drain with industrialism.

The political system with growing elements calling for a return to recent values of Imperial Japan, the rise of veterans' associations previously quiescent, are ominous signs of a destructive nostalgia as one answer to the nation's growing impersonal industrialization.

Sense of Proportion

If President Nixon has been projecting the image of a man who believes himself above the law, let us not forget he is seeking to defend not only his own rights but the office of President itself.

Public reaction to what it sees as a lack of candor on his part, in connection with Watergate, has been, at best, noisy; at worst, hysterical, ignoring the fact that the entire investigation is not yet over and that the end-result, whenever that may be, could conceivably be a gigantic political red herring, a fizzle.

Nixon, in the words of a bulletin put out by the authoritative American Institution for Political Communication, is "fighting fire with fire. ". And in so doing he is "employing propaganda techniques similar to those which have been employed against him."

Quite obviously the President is not yet out of the woods, but it is still far from clear where the facts lie so far as his alleged culpability in the Watergate affair is concerned.

Meanwhile a sense of proportion and fair play are qualities that will serve everyone best in assessing the situation as it stands at present.

Exercise in Futility

Fate has decreed that one of the most historic of all battlefields should be the Middle East, with much of the hostilities taking place in flat trackless desert wastes such as the Sinai peninsula.

It is questionable whether the Israelis and Arabs would be so anxious for a fight if instead of the Middle East they were inhabitants of say France and Spain, with the Pyrenees between.

As it is, the battlegrounds criss-crossed in recent days by the opposing armies are being transformed into vast junk yards, a region already littered with the rotting hulks of the six-day war of 1967.

In the present situation of stalemate, with a ceasefire in operation the Israelis are believed to have a strategic advantage in the event of renewed fighting earlier cut the road to Cairo and laid siege to Egyptian armies boxed against the Suez canal. How this sorts itself out under any further ceasefire provisions remains to be seen, but aside from these considerations of strategy we are left once again with the impression of the wastefulness and tragedy of war. The actual hardware — vast tank battles and the jets and the artillery and the missiles have proved their destructive power — and, ironically, their vulnerability. For Israelis and Arabs it has been mutually catastrophic, an all-embracing exercise in futility. Any early advantage the Arabs gained from their surprise attack seems to have been lost while the Israelis, on their hand, seem to be in a more secure position.

The sense old basic hostilities remain, however, for Arab honor — which had a lot to do with the war — has yet been fully satisfied. We recall the gist of Field-Marshal Lord Alexander's classic message following his defeat of Rommel's forces in North Africa: "The enemy and all his impedimenta have been removed. . ." No such clear-cut decision has been achieved in the Middle East.

There are really no winners in this renewed confrontation — only losers, and the end is not yet.

Old-Fashioned Way

A pleasant little tune doing the rounds at the moment is "Let's Dance the Old-Fashioned Way." It seems to epitomize much of what we have lost in terms of formality and elegance of living. When we see jeans for example, described as virtually the "uniform" of the younger set we may be sure something has fallen by the wayside — call it a sense of style, concern for good grooming or whatever. We are a casual people in ways that once called for more civility and decorum — even in the realm of dancing. In the old-fashioned way. Boredom and pseudo - sophistication have supplanted warmth and an attitude of genuine interest in day-to-day relationships. So there is nostalgia in a song that reflects the way things might be, but often are not. •

Oil Crisis in the Making A Long Time

By VINCENT EGAN
Business and Consumer Affairs Analyst
Thomson News Service

If it does nothing else, today's alarm over oil supplies tells us something about human nature—and the nature of our institutions.

No other crisis has been as widely foreseen over such a long period of time. And no similar series of warnings have been as universally ignored until the full force of the crisis arrived.

For half a dozen years at least, it has been apparent that the Arab countries, sitting on the world's largest deposits of crude oil and spurred on by the Soviet Union, were increasingly determined to manipulate the price and supply of oil for basically political purposes—at the expense of their customers in the developing countries.

It has been equally apparent that easily accessible deposits in other oil-producing regions—Alberta, for instance—could only be replaced, as they diminished, by deposits in frontier regions that are far more costly and difficult to exploit.

But it was all too easy, satiated as we were with cheap, plentiful energy, to ignore the warning signs, to pretend that the Arabs needed their customers as much as their customers needed oil, and to dismiss our oil producers as greedy profiteers—and foreign-controlled, as well.

Now, the Arabs have cut down their oil production and price adjustments to the United States altogether. Our own reserves suddenly look less bountiful, and prices are on a clear upward.

That doesn't mean that we should panic. But it does mean that we should take off the blinkers and face facts.

It's important to recognize the threat to the Western alliance in the Arab economic blackmail. The loss of Middle Eastern oil to the United States will certainly be an inconvenience—but Western Europe depends much more heavily on that source of oil.

By reducing oil shipments to Western Europe and by demonstrating that it is prepared to step supplying "unfriendly" countries, the Arab bloc is neutralizing the European countries and weakening their long established alliance with the United States.

There's no quick, easy solution to the problem—despite suggestions that the West halt food shipments and other assistance to the Middle East and countries deemed to be friendly to the Arabs.

Perhaps the best hope for a return to sanity lies in Japan's proposal that the 24-member Organization for Economic Cooperation and Development (which includes Canada, the United States and most of the developing, non-Communist oil consuming countries) bargain for stability of supplies and price with the Arab-dominated cartel, the Organization of Petroleum Exporting Countries.

This would be a major step in putting governments directly into the oil business, and reducing the role of the multinational oil giants (some of which, such as BP, are already partially government-owned).

The Canadian government, in its energy policy study released in June, has raised the possibility that it may participate directly in the oil business, as the sole Canadian exporter and importer.

Unwelcome as that may be to supporters of a free-market economy, it's beginning to look like an element in any broad solution to the current crisis.

Economics of Leadership

By DON O'HEARN

TORONTO — In electing their new leader Ontario Liberals invest in their party in the point of probably several hundred thousand dollars.

Final figures of just what the convention actually cost will probably never be known.

But playing around with ballpark figures and informed guesses shows that the out-of-pocket expenses for the party, the candidates and the delegates mount up to an impressive figure.

The party estimates that its cost for convention facilities, closed-circuit television and other expenses will run some $25,000 or better.

This will be fully covered by registration fees of $20 and $10 for students.

With a total expected attendance of some 3,000 there will even be a profit; perhaps depending on the number of those registering who are students and thus pay the lower fee.

The delegates expenses will run much higher than those of the party.

In addition to their registration fee any out-of-towners will have to meet their living costs for two days in Toronto.

These should average at least $100 a head and with probably some 1,500 people attending these out-of-town a minimum outlay of perhaps $150,000 is represented.

It could well be much more.

Then finally there is the spending of the leadership candidates.

Robert Nixon and Donald Deacon haven't given out their figures.

Norman Cafik said when he entered the campaign he expected to spend about $20,000.

Big at last word he was sticking that and probably will end up well beyond it.

In fact, it would seem that a minimum spending of $100,000 would be reasonable for the three major candidates. It would in fact be a most conservative estimate with the campaign by the time the actual convention proceedings are over and the books finalled up it will run $150,000 or better.

Out of this, of course, the candidates, or at least those that don't win, are the big losers.

The delegates have the fun and excitement of taking part in a convention and most of them would probably consider whatever they spend a good buy.

Middle East Ceasefire Could Split Arabs Again

By HOLGER JENSEN

BEIRUT, Lebanon (AP) — War brought the Arabs together. Peace might pull them apart.

The Arab unity which emerged in the first 18 days of the latest Middle East war seemed to be coming apart Monday, the 19th day, within hours of a United Security Council call for a ceasefire. Allies in arms against Israel, they found themselves at odds over peace policy.

Iraq, a combatant on the Syrian front, rejected any ceasefire or negotiations with the Jewish state. Syria was accepting the ceasefire proposal. Egypt accepted it and Jordan followed suit, apparently hoping the superpowers might force an Israeli withdrawal from Arab lands occupied since the 1967 war.

Palestinian refugees and their guerrilla fighting arm, who have been a main cause of Arab-Israeli friction for the last quarter century, were not consulted. But the executive committee of the Palestine Liberation Organization made it clear that it would not accept a ceasefire abrogating the 25-year struggle to recapture the Palestinian homeland.

"The resolution is not affected by the UN Security Council resolution," the group said. "It will carry on the armed struggle to complete the liberation of the palestinian land without any condition."

A ceasefire in place appparently leaves Egypt in the most favorable position of all the Arab fighting states. Although Israel said it captured 475 square miles of Egyptian territory on the west bank of the Suez canal, Egyptian forces claimed to have retaken a bigger area, including the Israeli air base at Bir Gifgafa and the strategic Mitla Pass.

Egypt also claimed to have recrossed the east bank of the Suez canal and occupied the east bank of the waterway.

If President Anwar Sadat can hold on to this and reopen the canal to shipping, he would enhance the prestige he has built up in his campaign and offset any domestic criticism of his decision to go to war against the Israelis in the initial military success.

A ceasefire in place poses problems, however, for President Hafez Assad of Syria, who might have to accept a disengagement why he decided to stop fighting.

Despite initial successes early in the war, Syrian forces have largely been pushed out of the Golan Heights by Israeli reinforcements and only a small area on Mount Hermon was still occupied.

Not only have the Syrians failed to recapture the Golan Heights, they have also retreated on the road between Al-Quneitra and Damascus, and lost an extra 300 square miles of territory, according to Israeli claims.

City Sprawl Compromises Country's Food Needs

Sault Daily Star

Affluent societies, until recently at least, have felt no great need to concern themselves with such problems as fuel for the future, food for the future. But of late there have begun to present themselves as clear and present problems, or certainly imminent ones. Yet the worst of it is that affluent societies still are blithely complicating them.

Ontario is, for instance, as the president of the provincial Federation of Agriculture pointed out at a gathering of municipal politicians and planners at a province wide convention in Toronto. It's going so, according to Kenneth Hill, by permitting Ontario's best food-producing land to be paved over by urban sprawl. No provincial or municipal authority is doing anything to prevent this.

Mr. Hill accuses planners of "paving over the cradle and thereby wasting good farmland. He's also lamenting the wrong - villian, for land is unquestionably needed for industrial and urban uses and what have you. And it's needed in ever greater lots as the constants are, for that's inevitably where the people are, and where the market is for industry, and population. In the most crowded section of Ontario continues. And as it is crowded outward, it absorbs more and more of the dwindling open space around it.

The seriousness of the developing problem is evident in recent proposals which have been setting aside tracts of land for parks and recreational purposes. Yet how much sense a planning gap which leaves good farmland wholly unprotected. Zoning designation of such land as "agricultural" or something "rural" can often simply tags it as land for which no urban-orientated use is to be found.

For Northern Ontario there is cold comfort but rich irony in this situation. Maybe, if anybody gives any thought at all, there's a comfortable feeling in the developing Ontario megalopolis that when every available inch of space in its area has been grabbed, and crowded beyond bearing, after all there's still the vast and near-empty expanse of Northern Ontario.

The long-delayed and dismal awakening will come when it's discovered that all the "miles and miles of nothin' but miles and miles" of Northern Ontario has only a few scattered pockets of food-producing or potentially productive farmland. What then?

In the north there's plenty of space for industry and all the blow-over effects that will ask for the population it would attract. Industry shies away from Northern Ontario, of course, because of the higher costs involved in distance from markets and from related industry and services.

But more and more obviously this is a price which will have to be paid sometime. And the longer the delay, the higher bill, human as well as economic terms.

Art Mart Was A Big Success

The Art Mart was a "bowling success" for the 28 artists and craftsmen who participated in the first such event the Quinte Arts Council has sponsored in downtown Belleville.

So felt Diane Aitken, council secretary and co-ordinator of the two day affair over the weekend. About $2,500 of work, from pottery to candles to paintings were sold during the 11½ hours the doors of the former Tops Drug Mart location were open to the public Friday and Saturday.

"A sale of this sort had never happened before," said Mrs. Aitken. "I would think that there were at least 100 people in that store at all times. We were bigger than the store."

During the two-day run of the Art Mart, oil paintings, watercolors, pottery, wrought iron work, weaving and stuffed animals were on display and on sale. The public had the opportunity to view the work and talk to artists concerning the activities they engage in.

The art was the way the Quinte Arts Council felt would bring Quinte-area artists' works before the public. For the past seven years, Artist's Visual Arts Display has been the only outlet artists had for exhibiting their work. However, pieces on display were limited. During Art Mart each artist displayed that which he preferred.

"We're definitely planning to do this again," said Mrs. Aitken. "We're going to have a meeting of the Quinte Arts Council to plan it better and bigger next year."

Diamonds Meet at Last

OF all the young ladies present at the Family Halloween Fun Night at Nicholson Catholic College Saturday, the Knave of Diamonds found the one after his own heart — his Queen.

Actually, it wasn't a case of love at first sight for Greg Sproul, 12, only affection for his 9-year-old sister, Jennifer, whom he escorted to the event sponsored by the St. Michael's Catholic Women's League. The second annual Hallowe'en party was attended by more than 300 costumed characters — from adults dressed as pipe-smoking huntsmen to children garbed as Siamese twins, while eared rabbits and black-bated witches. Prizes were awarded to the participants in the fun night that featured a two young children Christine, 5, and Daniel Jr., aged 6.

Five Die in Quinte Accidents

Five persons, including a young Campbellford mother and her 17-month-old daughter, died in four separate accidents on Quinte district highways over the weekend.

Two of the accidents were single car mishaps, the other two being head-on or near head-on crashes between vehicles proceeding in opposite directions.

Two of the victims died in a single - car accident on Highway 401 south of Marmora: two in separate accidents on Highway 62 south of Madoc and on Highway 37 north of Tweed, and the fifth in a single-car mishap on Highway 401 near Brighton.

Killed in the double fatality Saturday afternoon south of Marmora, were Mrs. Christine M. Tompkin, 17, of 19 Front Street Campbellford and her 17-month-old daughter who were pronounced dead on arrival at Belleville General Hospital.

The two were passengers in a northbound car driven by the victim's husband, Rodney Keith Tompkin, 19. The car went out of control and struck a tree in the east ditch. Mr. Tompkin was admitted to hospital with serious injuries.

At 8:45 p.m. Saturday, Douglas Edward Oliver, 23, of RR4, Madoc, was fatally injured when his northbound car was in collision on Highway 37 with a southbound vehicle driven by Barbara Ann Genereaux, 18, of Actinolite.

Miss Genereaux is in hospital with chest injuries and lacerations while Jack Park, of Queensboro, owner of the car driven by Miss Genereaux and a passenger in the vehicle, suffered nose injury.

Early Sunday evening, an Ottawa woman, Shiela Mary Dawson, 25, died when two miles south of Madoc on Highway 62 her northbound car was in collision with a southbound vehicle driven by Donald Charles Moore, 22, of 65 Hastings Drive, Belleville.

Patricia Phaneuf, 21, of Ottawa, a passenger in the Dawson vehicle, suffered head leg and pelvis injuries, while Mrs. Moore, riding with her husband, suffered neck and chest injuries.

The Brighton area fatality was Aneela Tang, 21, of Toronto, a student at George Brown College.

Miss Tang was a passenger in a car driven by Michael Barishers, 23, also of Toronto.

The accident occured at 4:30 p.m. Saturday on Highway 401 near the Highway 30 interchange when the westbound car went onto the south shoulder then veered back across the highway and rolled down the north enbankment. Mr. Barishers suffered a broken arm and was taken to Trenton Memorial Hospital. Another male passenger escaped injury.

In another accident early Saturday afternoon, four members of a Trenton district family were injured and taken to Belleville hospital.

The northbound car driven by Mrs. Shirley D. Donnelly, 27, went out of control after meeting a transport, veered across the highway and ended up in the west ditch. Taken to hospital were Mrs. Donnelly, her husband Daniel, and

Successful Living

Don't Spoil Sick Children

Young children often become more dependent when they are ill and may appear to forget some of the things they have learned, such as toilet training. These lapses should be handled with understanding as they will disappear with recovery.

While over affection are essential, discretion should be used as it is easy to spoil a sick child.

Treatments to be given successfully, require cooperation. This may usually be obtained if the following methods are used:

1. Approach the child in a friendly, confident manner, taking it for granted that the treatment will be accepted willingly and bravely.

2. Tell the child what you are going to do and let him know that it may hurt.

3. It is not wise to mislead him about any discomfort involved as he may lose his trust and confidence in those looking after him.

4. Always praise a child when he is brave but do not scold him when he is not.

Textbook by St. John Ambulance.

Dear Doris: Your advice to the woman whose husband had lost interest in her was very good, but I would like to add a comment or two.

When we have been married for a few years it is necessary for the wife to take much of the initiative, as far as social life is concerned. When we were courting we waited to be asked out, and I am sure most wives believe it is still up to (h)s husband to be the one to suggest going out.

Fortunately I realized that husbands are deeply involved in their jobs and they are not watching the movie reviews, announcements of special events in the city, etc. Now when I hear of something interesting I tell my husband, and most of the time he is grateful and willing to go with me.

This also applies to travel brochures. I gave us and for a trip to Mexico in October and asked Hubby if he would like to go. (The next day I was on my way to make the deposit — with his cheque book. We went on a trip last fall together, all because I had read about a suitable tour and we enjoyed the trip so much that it will probably be our annual honeymoon.

If the children are left in good hands at home, we can have a trip alone and take stock of our lives together.

Dear Wilma: What a perfect way to stay in love! Thanks for sharing it. I'll use your ideas in a later column.

Confidential to Table Arrangements: Put the lady who is the guest of honor on your husband's right: he is the host. The man who is honored sits at your right: the hostess. Other guests are seated alternately, first a man then a woman, except that husbands and wives do not sit side by side. Hit them up.

(Ask Doris, in care of this newspaper, for the information you need. If she doesn't know she'll find out from one of her consultants. Enclose a stamped, self-addressed envelope for private reply.)

Colored Leathers Lead Fashion Show

TORONTO (CP) — In high fashion clothes and in sports clothes, Canadian leather fashions are more and more in demand in Canada and in other countries, says Elizabeth Hathaway.

Director of the Leather Bureau of Canada, she says leather fashions from Canada have been winning world acceptance.

Highlight examples of the styles she means were shown at the recent Canadian Leather Show.

One was an elegant shirt-style jacket for men in beige suede. A windbreaker style, stitched in white, and a wide-lapelled hacking jacket were featured.

There was a wedding suit done in caramel brown with seams threaded with metal striping for reinforcement.

Coats had fur collars and contrast stitching.

Canadian leathers are noted for their range of colors. Two fashion colors for fall are mauve and a wine shade called Bordeaux. They were even used in two-tone men's shoes.

Winter wheat, wheat germ, which is a cleaner shade, and deer tan were described as good standard fall colors that are popular again this year by Fred Glasser, president of the Leather Bureau. Mr. Glasser says a light navy is on the scene this season too.

Jack Moore of Winnipeg said colors will be a little brighter for spring. He predicted they will include green, khaki and greens, but the emphasis will be on gold, tans and browns. Black is not selling.

Suzanne Cornell said: "Handbags will be large for spring. Everything is in big, bigger, biggest in Europe, but we probably won't go to extremes in Canada."

She said even this year's fashionable clutch bag will be big and have a detachable strap. The briefcase look will be popular.

Ann Landers

Elderly Drivers A Menace?

Dear Ann Landers: I am writing about a problem that must be pretty prevalent now that people are living longer and every effort is being made to keep oldsters in good health and involved in the main stream of life.

Dad is 78. He has been driving a car for more than 50 years. He has had a few minor accidents, best fenders, a sad den meeting with a garage door and the like, but nothing to speak of. In the last two years he has been very lucky. His eyesight is failing and his reflexes have slowed up considerably.

I've asked him to give up driving and suggested several alternatives. He becomes furious and accuses me of trying to make an old man out of him.

He loves his independence and I hate to hurt his pride, but when I think of him driving a carload of white-haired ladies to church I get sick in the knees.

Last month I thought my problem was solved when he told me he had to get his license renewed and would be taking a "test." Unfortunately it was only a written test and he passed with flying colors. What now?—Worried

Dear W.: I get this same letter every week at least 10 times. Only the signatures are different.

The solution lies with the state legislatures. Some already have made the driving test a mandatory part of the renewal procedure for citizens over 65. All states should do so.

Dear Ann Landers: I have been thinking about the woman whose doctor had prescribed tranquilizers to "relax" her. She impetuously took an extra pill before going to a wedding reception. To her shame, she blacked out an extensively warm compliment to the bride. Immediately after, she felt like a fool.

You assured her that a genuine compliment is always appreciated and you admonished her to stop chasting herself. But you ignored the central problem which the writer also chose to pass over.

People who are on tranquilizers should be aware that the medication might affect their judgment. Some pills tend to make people talkative and uninhibited. They sometimes say things they wish they hadn't.

It is important for the doctor to hear about all side effects, both physical and psychological. Unless the patient informs him he cannot know.

Please, Ann, retrace your steps and advise the woman to tell her doctor that the extra pill loosened the hinges on her tongue.—Corpus Christi

Dear Corp: Thank you for the suggestion. I've retraced—and here's your letter.

Dear Ann Landers: Come out of the clouds, for Lord's sake, and get down here with us humans. I am sick to death of your holier-than-thou attitude toward women whose husbands give them a well-deserved belt in the mouth.

Don't you know that a man can be pushed to the brink and something's got to give? A crack in the teeth can be a wonderful tension-breaker. It's also a lot healthier than keeping all that anger bottled up.

My husband hauls off and slugs me every few months and I don't mind. He feels better and so do I because he never hits me unless I deserve it. So why don't you come off it?—Real Happy.

Dear R.H.: If you don't mind a crack in the teeth every few months, it's all right with me. I hope you have a good dentist.

'Pill Only For Imbeciles'

OTTAWA CP — The birth control pill is a trick played on women by men who consider women "imbeciles," Dr. Michele Guy of France said here Friday.

Dr. Guy is in the country to participate in the 46th Congress International des Medecins de Langue Francaise International convention of French language doctors.

The pill "simply puts the ovary system of the woman to sleep," she said in an interview.

There is complete atrophy of the uterine mucous, ovaries and the size of the uterus." The woman's menstrual cycle become "false" while she takes the pill regularly.

The pill was "invented by men" and "takes women to be imbeciles."

From her experience in clinics, there are four reactions after a woman stops taking the pill:

—The glands return to their normal function;

—The ovulating gland still does not work and must be stimulated;

—The ovaries are blocked and must be reactivated;

—The woman is sterilized because the ovaries are so shrivelled, as they are during menopause.

Lobbyist Says Loan Made Ford

WASHINGTON (AP) — A former lobbyist has submitted a sworn statement to a Senate committee accusing Vice-president-designate Gerald Ford of not repaying an alleged $15,000 personal loan made several years ago. Ford was quoted as calling the charge "a categorical lie."

The affidavit of Ralph Winter-Berger was given to the Senate rules committee, which must pass on the nomination of Ford, Republican leader of the House of Representatives, to fill the vacant office of vice-president.

Columnist Jack Anderson, who published an account based on the document in Sunday's newspaper editions, supplied a copy of the document to The Associated Press at The AP's request.

Winter-Berger is a former Capitol Hill lobbyist and author of a book called The Washington Pay-off. Many of the statements in his book have been disputed or denied.

In his affidavit, Winter-Berger said:

"Between 1966 and September of 1969 I personally loaned Gerald Ford in the neighborhood of $15,000. This money was delivered to Ford in cash to cover an illness and hospitalization of his wife. . . . This money came from my personal income and I paid taxes on it. This money was never repaid. I never asked for repayment and it was never offered."

A spokesman for Ford told The AP on Saturday night that Ford called Winter-Berger charges about a $15,000 loan "a categorical lie." The spokesman, Paul Millich, said Ford had insurance which covered virtually all the medical expenses and he had no need for cash.

Cox Planned To Probe Four Areas

NEW YORK (AP) — Time magazine says Archibald Cox was fired after the White House challenged his intention to pursue four areas of investigation, including a 1970 campaign fund-raising operation called the "Town House Project."

The project raised up to $4 million in campaign funds for "Nixon-favored congressional and gubernatorial candidates in the 1970 election," Time said Sunday.

It said Cox's investigators believed this operation, conducted out of the basement of a Washington town house, was potentially explosive, but that White House lawyers had declined to provide information on the grounds that Cox was empowered only to investigate the 1972 election.

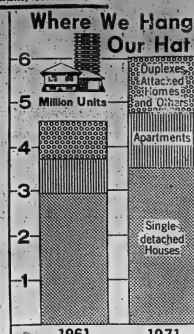
The magazine said details of the operation presumably are still contained in a satchel of reports that former White House employee Jack Gleason, who directed the project, delivered to Charles Colson, former White House special counsel.

Three other areas of Cox's investigation that especially upset the White House, Time said, were investigation into the handling of anti-Nixon demonstrators at 1972 rallies, activities of the special White House investigative unit known as the "plumbers," and telephone taps on administration employees and reporters.

Julie Says Her Father Dismayed

CHICAGO (AP) — Julie Nixon Eisenhower says her father, President Nixon, sometimes "gets very discouraged."

"Sometimes he doesn't even want to get up in the morning," she said. "But he is willing to go through any pain to do what he thinks is right."



She was in Chicago Sunday for ceremonies dedicating the Dwight D. Eisenhower junior high school.

"I am upset over the mood of the country that questions my father ordering a military alert because of the Mideast crisis, and my father's health," she said during a news conference. "There have been too many major events in too short a time for people have time to judge.

"My father is not a man who has ever tried to hide anything. But the principle of confidentiality is crucial to the President. The people must have patience to judge for themselves about Watergate. The tapes will speak for themselves."

In answering questions, Mrs. Eisenhower said: "There never has been an issue between me and my father that I disagreed with in public—he is a very persuasive man. I agree with his policies."

Where We Hang Our Hat

Fewer Singles

The total number of households shot up to more than six million in 1971 from about 4.5 million in 1961, creating a demand for more housing. Land costs have undoubtedly encouraged developers to move away from construction of single-family homes. In 1961, 63.4 per cent of all dwellings were single-family detached houses. In 1971 this figure had dropped to 58.5 per cent. (CP Newsmap).

Convention Gimmicks Not Impressive

TORONTO (CP) — Donald Deacon had intended to present a big stock to chairman Joe Crudeo, whose timing error fouled up the candidate's keynote speech to the Ontario Liberal party leadership convention Saturday night.

His advisers talked him out of it at the last minute but there were plenty of gimmicks highlighting the more bizarre moments of the party's weekend battle to find a new leader.

Both Mr. Deacon and Robert Nixon departed from the normal procedure in their convention speeches by using their allocated time with film presentations.

The three-minute films were marred by poor timing and shadows and streaks caused by glaring television lights in the packed convention hall of the Royal York Hotel.

It Cost Deacon $60,000 to Lose While Nixon Paid $15,000 and Won

TORONTO (CP) — It cost Donald Deacon $60,000 to run third in a four-man race for leadership of the Ontario Liberal party.

It cost Norman Cafik in excess of $20,000 to place second, and he said is suffer the indignity of having his personal financial problems made a public issue.

It cost Michael Houlton, a fringe candidate, $20 and some razor blades—he shaved his beard—to finish a dismal fourth.

Robert Nixon's campaign cost about $15,000. He was re-elected.

The losers said it was worth it, and Mr. Nixon said he emerged an "older and wiser" winner.

For Mr. Cafik, the Liberal member of Parliament for Ontario riding, his losing campaign vaulted him from the relative unknown of his federal position to within a hair's breadth of being provincial leader.

Using all the hoopla of a modern-day convention tactics, Mr. Cafik's fiery speechs and mixed metaphors had an appeal to the nearly 1,000 people attending the convention.

When asked later if he would consider running for provincial seat in 1975, Mr. Cafik replied:

"I don't think I'd cross that bridge until I come to it. I don't burn bridges after I've crossed them and I don't cross them until I come to them."

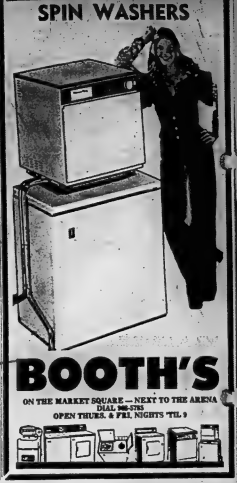
Mr. Cafik, first elected in 1968 in Ontario riding, squeaked back into Parliament in the 1972 general election after a recount gave him a four-vote margin.

He used bands, paper hats, balloons, videotape television shows and a horde of workers to put his message across to the Liberal convention.

Mr. Cafik, 44, had to counter the adverse publicity given to time he had been in provincial politics and it might not be the last.

In the meantime, Mr. Cafik said he plans to stick to federal duties and continue working as parliamentary secretary to Health Minister Marc Lalonde.

Mr. Deacon said he was pleased with the impact he had created and said he would continue in provincial politics.



Mr. Deacon, an investment broker before he entered the legislature, explained to reporters that he put $20,000 of his own money into the campaign.

Bobcats Claw Toronto Nats

TORONTO (Special) — The Belleville Bobcats went out-shot, 45-40, short men due to penalties many times and were out-scored in powerplay goals, but in the over-all score, the Cats finished Coliseively on top as they trounced the Toronto Young Nationals by a score of 10-4 here Saturday night.

The win in theMetro Toronto Junior B game gave the locals a 5-1 record for the season and moved them into contention for top spot.

Belleville got 12 of the games' 19 penalties and the Young Nats took full advantage of the infractions as they scored three of their four goals on powerplays, while the Cats managed only one tally with a man advantage.

Toronto moved into the lead early in the opening frame as Dave Currie fired one home on a power play at the 2:18 mark.

At 5:20 Barney Holmes tied the game up when he combined with Paul King and Jim Richardson.

Belleville went ahead 2 — as Al Garrison, the newest member of the Bobcat family, tallied at 11:58. Bob Foster and Holmes did the spade work on that one.

Less than a minute later it was 3-1 as Cats Andy Ricketts scored with assists going to Wally Dalnard and Dave Taylor.

The score ended in a 33 tie at the end of the first however, as Steve Taylor and Ray Hartz evened things up for the Nats.

Senior Soccer Final Matches BCI, Bayside

The big questions in tomorrow's Bay of Quinte senior soccer championship final between Belleville Collegiate Institute and Bayside Secondary School are:

Can the Bayside defence add by Ron Woods, with the brilliant goaltending of Glen White, hold off the strong BCI forward line which has scored all but four of the team's 24 goals in league play?

To for plenty of attention from the Bayside defenders will be BCI's Charlie Nesterovski who scored 15 goals in the seven games.

Can Bayside forwards led by Paul Dessylva and Bob Mathews recover their scoring power? They have only produced four goals in their last three games.

According to Bayside coach Harold Hinkley's side, since the Moira game which his squad won 5-0, the forwards have been unable to cash in on many excellent scoring chances.

Who will control midfield? If the BCI trio of Garry Donovan, Gary Adams and Dave Wright can control the ball in their usual efficient way, Bayside could have a problem.

All in all, the game shapes up as one of the more exciting Bay of Quinte finals in years.

Referee-in-chief is Tuesday game at Bayside are Tony Gonzalez and John O'Neill.

Old Boy Gets by Lancer

Terry Thompkins, foreground, beats Loyalist Lancers Harvey Sharpe to the inside on a sharp dribbling job in Saturday night's Old Boys - Lancers contest at the college gym. Thompkins, a guard, was just one of 13 former Lancers' stars, and Loyalist graduates, who returned for the match against the college's present team. Terry beat Sharpe on this play but the Old Boys couldn't quite get up the steam to beat the Lancers as the grads lost 59-36.

Loyalist Old Boys Earn Split

By MIKE BRADSHAW
Sports Staff

Something old; something new ... That was the case for the Loyalist Lancers basketball and hockey teams Saturday night, as the teams of today took on the college's stars of yesterday.

Both games were filled with excitement and some laughter but for the most part were serious contests with surprising results.

The basketball match came out with the expected finish, the Lancers beating the Old Boys 59-36. In the hockey game however, the Old Boys upset the Lancers 5-4.

Thirteen of Loyalists' ball players came back to compete in the contest and all the players held their own through much of Saturday night. It was conditioning that paid off for the Lancers, as the Old Boys appeared to tire somewhat during the second half.

Former Loyalist coach, Mike Dollach, returned to the college gym to navigate the graduates, but even his rapid substitutions didn't seem to help as his squad just ran out of steam.

Rob Stinson's well disciplined crew held a nice easy pace throughout, never pushing very hard and waiting for the direct opportunities to arise.

The Lancers were led in their victory by Harvey Sharpe, the Ontario College Athletic Association's second highest scorer last year, with 14 points, Bill Kyle, Ontario College Athletic Association's fourth highest scorer last year with 11 and Jim Sutton, a newcomer to Loyalist who should be one of the league's highest scorers this year, with 11.

Retaliating for the Old Boys were Rick Webster with nine, Blair Oldham 7, and Hubert Hicks five.

In a somewhat closer contest, the Old Boys proved they hadn't lost any of the finesse they had gained during their days at Loyalist by defeating the Lancers 5-4.

Bruce Cameron, coach of the Lancers just said, "I don't even want to talk about it", when it was all over.

Cameron didn't really lose face with the coed in the loss, as his team took it relatively easy on the Old Boys. Besides, how can you hit some of your former teammates?

There were only 8 penalties in the game, all minors.

The Old Boys tallied three times in the opening 20 minutes and twice in the second.

Loyalist took the lead after 6:53 of the first, but it was the last time they were in front. Barry Rountree tallied that one.

Gary Thompson tied the score up, at 1-1, on Ron Woods assists going to Bob Saunders and Gary Goyer. Three minutes later Brian Remington combined with Gord Johnston to put the Old Boys ahead.

Dave Ferguson tied things up at 2-2 as he fired one home unassisted at 14:40. Goyer scored with less than a minute left in the period to put the Old Boys back in front; his marker was also unassisted.

Reid Mallory evened things up again as he tallied an unassisted goal for the Lancers at the 11:27 mark of the second.

That lead was shortlived though, as less than two minutes Old Boys had gone ahead 3-3. Remington picked up his second of the night at 12:01 with assists going to brother Barry and Jim Blastorah. Seah Gergin got what proved to be the winning marker at 13:19 with Goyer helping on it.

Saunders' - minding was key to the Old Boys' victory as Mike Caine sparkled in goal.

With only 59 seconds gone in the third frame, the Lancers made it 5 - 4 when Paul Wartman and Floyd Crawford combined. That was all the Loyalist team could manage as Caine made two great saves to shut them out over the remainder.

Two Soccer Upsets

Friday was a day of upsets in the Bay of Quinte, junior high school soccer semi-finals both the east and west Division champions were beaten by second place teams.

Trenton edged Moira by a score of 2 - 1 and BCI downed and undefeated Centennial in overtime 1-0.

Moira jumped into the lead after five minutes of play against Trenton when Dennis Thiffault scored.

Mid-way through the first half however, Dean Emery tied the game at 1-1.

With only minutes remaining in the half, Mike Day headed home the winner for Trenton. Both teams fought to a scoreless tie in the second half.

It took two regular periods and the same number of overtime periods before a winner was finally decided between BCI and Centennial. When it was all over, BCI's Gord Van Vliet proved to be the hero as he booted home the only score of the contest.

The two junior teams are scheduled to play off Wednesday at Zwicks Island for the championship.

Frankford In 3-3 Tie

BOWMANVILLE (Special) — Two third period powerplay goals, earned visiting Frankford Huskies a 3-3 draw with Bowmanville in an Ontario Hockey Association Junior C game here Sunday. Both teams are members of the Lakeshore Division.

Frankford owned a 1-0 lead after one period of play but the home side roared back to pot the only three goals of the second frame to make it 3-1. That set the stage for the Frankford comeback in the third.

A rash of penalties marred the game as well. Bowmanville drew 10 minors, eight majors and five game misconducts while Frankford players picked up 12 minors, seven majors and four game misconducts.

Frankford goal scorers were John Masterson, John Locke and Rob Arbuckle. Bowmanville got one each from Bill Wagar, G. Rice and R. Gibbs.

The Frankford team makes its first home start of the season Friday night when Cobourg Cougars will supply the opposition. Game time at the Frankford arena is 8 p.m.

Huskies hold down fourth place in the league with a win, loss and tie in three starts.

Although the shots on goal were not recorded on the game sheet, according to Eagles' coach Larry Mavis, Belleville did hold a wide margin in the shots department.

"We hit the goalpost so many times," stated Hughes, "we don't know why we didn't win this game. It was the best game we've played all year."

Dave Brown Skips Winner

The Bay of Quinte Curling Club concluded its Opening Club Bonspiel Saturday with winners being decided in each of the four divisions.

A total of 40 rinks were matched for the four event competition, which started last Tuesday evening and went through to the Saturday wrap - up.

Dave Brown's rink took the A division crown, as they beat Charles Lovett Memorial Trophy for their win over Bill Bird's rink.

Brown defeated Clare 9-3 to finish the tourney with five consecutive wins for the championship.

Members of the winning rink were Janice Clarke, lead, Paul Clark, second, Kathy Brown, vice and Dave Brown, skip.

Perreault Breaks Leg

Buffalo Win A Costly One

By GLENN COLE
Canadian Press Staff Writer

The 15,848 fans at Buffalo's Memorial Auditorium sat in stunned silence and stared at a patch of ice below.

There lay their idol, Gilbert Perreault, after he collided with team-mate Mike Robitaille, who had been dealt a solid check by Brian Spencer of New York Islanders with five minutes gone in the second period.

The smooth-skating Buffalo Sabres' centre had to be removed on a stretcher. And, for about the next eight weeks, the Sabres will be without Perreault, who suffered a broken left leg in the Sabres' 5-2 win over the Islanders.

Elsewhere, New York Rangers were humbled 7-0 by Pittsburgh Penguins in New York; Chicago Black Hawks and Toronto Maple Leafs battled to a 1-1 tie, Minnesota North Stars tied 3-3 with Boston Bruins and Philadelphia Flyers slipped California Golden Seals 3-2.

Saturday, the Rangers dropped a 3-2 decision to the Islanders while Montreal Canadiens defeated the North Stars 4-2, the Bruins edged Toronto 3-2, Philadelphia blanked the Penguins 5-0 as Bernie Parent recorded his third shutout, Detroit Red Wings nipped Los Angeles Kings 3-2 and St. Louis Blues tied Chicago 4-4.

There were divergent opinions on how Perreault's injury occurred. Linesmate Richard Martin said he felt it happened because Perreault's skate caught in the ice while Robitaille said he thought the leg broke when he fell on his team-mate.

Perreault and Gerry Meehan scored within the space of 14 seconds for the Sabres in the first period and other goals by Lorne Henning and Andre St. Laurent.

Al McDonough and Lowell MacDonald scored a pair of goals for the Penguins, who had just scored 19 times in seven games in the season before their visit to New York.

Meanwhile, the Rangers announced Wayne Hicks had acquired winger Jack Egers from St. Louis in exchange for Glen Sather and a player to be named later. Egers started his professional career with New York but was traded to the Blues in a multi-player deal Nov. 15, 1971.

In Chicago, a goal by Mike Walton at 6:54 of the third period gave the Leafs their draw with the Black Hawks. Dennis Hull scored his fourth goal of the season for Chicago in the second period of a game dominated by goaltenders Dunc Wilson of the Leafs and Tony Esposito of Chicago.

Esposito Ups Lead

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Centre Phil Esposito of Boston Bruins scored three goals in a pair of weekend National Hockey League games to increase his lead in the scoring department to five points over team-mate Ken Hodge.

Esposito has 11 goals—best in the league—and nine assists for 22 points. Richard Martin of Buffalo Sabres and Bobby Orr of Boston share third place with 16 points each.

Nightingale And Cranston Show the Way

CALGARY (CP) — Lynn Nightingale of Odessa achieved the transition from schoolgirl to champion Saturday night before about 6,000 fans in the free-skating segment of women's individual competition in the first annual Skate Canada event.

A full six Miss Nightingale completed a difficult triple salchow took little from her performance. She streamed past Jean Scott of Renfrew, Scotland, who had led after two rounds, and second-place Barbara Terpenning of North Vancouver, B.C.

Miss Scott sagged to third place in the over-all standings and Miss Terpenning, held on to second.

Canadians won five medals in the three days of formal competition, paced by Toller Cranston of Toronto and Miss Nightingale.

Ron Shavers of Cambridge, Ont., was a close second to Cranston in men's combined standings while Louis and Barry Soper of Vancouver earned silver medals for second place in the dance competition.

Miss Scott finished fifth in the 1973 world championships at Bratislava, Yugoslavia, while Miss Nightingale finished 19th. The Ottawa youngster was particularly brilliant under the pressure caused by her overall place finish Thursday in compulsory figures.

Blues Trade Jack Egers For Sather

ST. LOUIS (AP) — St. Louis Blues have traded Jack Egers to New York Rangers in exchange for Glen Sather and a player to be named later.

The National Hockey League team announced the trade Sunday.

Sather, 30, has appeared in only four games with the Rangers this season and has no record. Last year he had 11 goals and 15 assists.

The five-foot-11, 175-pound left winger spent three years with Pittsburgh Penguins before being traded to the Rangers Nov. 16, 1971.

Egers, 24, was the Blues' second-high scorer last year with 36 goals and 34 assists. This year the six-foot-one, 190-pound left winger had one assist in six games.

Except for Edmonton Oilers

Home Ice Is No Advantage

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

The so-called home ice advantage only worked for Edmonton Oilers in World Hockey Association action Sunday.

The Oilers took a 7-6 win over Vancouver Blazers—Edmonton's second triumph in a row over the same club—to strengthen their first-place lead in the West Division.

The win put Oilers on the road because most of the other clubs have bigger ice surfaces, and coach Billy Harris, whose Toronto Toros lost at home 3-3 to Chicago Cougars.

It was the sixth game without a win—including two this one—for the Toros in Toronto's Varsity Arena.

Both Winnipeg and Vancouver are bigger and that allows players like Wayne Carleton and Pat Hickey to fly," Harris said.

In other games, Quebec Nordiques took an away-from-home 3-2 win over Houston Aeros and the Los Angeles blanked the Golden Blades 3-0 in New York.

Saturday's results were: Edmonton 7 Vancouver 2; Minnesota Fighting Saints 5 Winnipeg Jets 2; New England Whalers 5 Los Angeles 1; Cleveland Crusaders battled to a 2-2 overtime tie with Houston Aeros.

The results left New England leading the East Division with 15 points, followed by Quebec and Cleveland. Edmonton has 12 points in the West, followed by Winnipeg and Minnesota, both with nine.

Ron Climie scored twice for the Oilers who won their sixth game in 10 starts. The club's only loss was Oct. 19 when the Blazers beat them 3-1.

Danny Lawson, the league goal-scoring leader last year with 61 goals in three in a losing cause for the Blazers to raise his total to 11—best in the WHA early this season.

The Oilers outshot the losers 39-34 and would have scored more if not for netminder George Gardner, who joined Vancouver late last week in a trade with Los Angeles for Ron Ward.

Bob Whitlock's goals, a third of the year, at 8:31 of the final period gave Chicago its win over Toronto before 4,851 fans. It was Chicago's ninth game this year—six on the road—and the win gave the club a 4-4-1 record, good enough for fourth place in the East.

The Cougars were forced out of their building by a circus and Disney on Parade. They will play two games at the Chicago Amphitheatre before going on the road again.

Tom Simpson's ninth goal of the season late in the second period tied the score 2-2.

"I think we threw only two bodychecks the whole night," said Toronto manager Bob Haggert. "That's our problem."

Defenceman Dale Rolfe scored goal at 3:31 of the third period gave the Nordiques their sixth win in 10 games. Murray Hall scored for Houston less than two minutes before the winning goal.

Goals by Ron Walters, Blair Los Angeles.

Finley Will Appeal Two of Three Fines

NEW YORK (AP) — The with only 36 men instead of the legal 25. A front-office misunderstanding had cost the Athletics a player for the next two games.

For that announcement, against Kuhn's wishes, Finley was fined $1,000.

Finley then got Kuhn mad by turning on the lights at the Oakland Coliseum to help his hitters in the bottom half of an inning. The rules say the lights should be switched on at the top half of the inning so both teams can be helped, not just the home side.

For that indiscretion, Finley was tapped for $1,000 more.

Finley reached at his Fort Worth, Tex., home called the fine "grossly unfair." He said he would appeal the fines through the executive council of baseball—the Andrews' fine and the announcement penalty.

Riders Complete Great Comeback

OTTAWA (CP)— The only thing for certain in the wacky Eastern Football Conference today is that Ottawa Rough-Riders will finish first and their rival Alouettes will make the playoffs.

Tuesday, Toronto Argonauts could finish second or eat of post-season play altogether.

Hamilton Tiger-Cats can only finish third and to do that they'll have to beat the Alouettes while the Argos lose to Winnipeg Blue Bombers in the final weekend of regular play.

The Riders left their fans shouting "We're No. 1" Sunday by blanking the Alouettes 18-0 while Hamilton dropped a 9-8 decision to Saskatchewan Roughriders in Regina.

Ottawa 10, Montreal 18, Montreal 13, Toronto, Hamilton 12.

If Hamilton and Toronto were to tie for third place, the Ticats would get the last playoff spot because of a regular-season edge over the Argos.

The Riders took full advantage of four Montreal turnovers to clinch first place before 28,794 homefield fans.

A stubborn Montreal defence twice stalled Ottawa within the Alouette five-yard line. But Montreal coughed up the ball twice on fumbles, once on an interception and once on a fouled-up third down punt.

One of the fumbles came on the Als 18-yard line when Montreal decided to gamble on third down with inches to go. Defensive back Dick Adams gobbled up the ball fumbled by Larry Smith and went on to a touchdown.

What made the play a heartbreaker for the Als was that moments before Montreal had taken over the ball when a third-down Rider gamble from mid-field punt out failed.

It marked a great comeback season for Ottawa, which lost its first four games of the schedule.

"It is a great, great feeling."

Big Weekend for Braves

BY THE CANADIAN PRESS

It was a profitable weekend for Bob McAdoo and Buffalo Braves, currently 15 percentage points out of first place in the Eastern Conference of the National Basketball Association.

McAdoo, NBA rookie of the year last season, scored a career high of 44 points to lead the Braves to a 112-108 victory Sunday night over injury-riddled Kansas City-Omaha Kings. Saturday, the Braves won 111-101 over Cleveland Cavaliers.

In other Sunday games, Los Angeles Lakers whipped Portland Blazers 111-98, the Cavaliers beat Boston Celtics 102-99, Capital Bullets downed Philadelphia 76ers 119-99 and Detroit Pistons topped Seattle SuperSonics 111-95.

Saturday, it was New York 96, Philadelphia 90 Chicago 102, Houston 101, Milwaukee 104, Phoenix 85; Detroit 111, Phoenix 98 and Atlanta 125, Golden State 118.

San Diego Conquistadors, led by Chuck Williams' 34 points, blasted Memphis Texas 46-133 in the only American Basketball Association game Sunday.

Ottawa coach Jack Gotta said after the game.

The Riders now are idle for three weeks while the last playoff spots are decided and the second-final game is played.

Ottawa Kicker Gerry Organ makes them count. He booted him establish a Canadian Football League mark for the most field goals in a single season— 32 — said it was a dream come true.

"But the record was basically unimportant," he added. "The championship was what counted."

Organ also converted Adams' touchdown to bring his season's scoring total to 132 points, and a probable second 100 scoring title in a row.

Montreal also might lose the services of running back John Harvey who had his ankle injured after its fumbled in the fourth quarter.

Ottawa quarterback Jerry Keeling also had to come out of the game in the second quarter when he was hit hard after completing an 80-yard pass to Hugh Oldham.

A 30-mile an hour wind gave both teams trouble throughout the game.

Montreal's Alouettes held the Riders to nine first downs and a total net offence of 228 yards, 177 coming on and only 62 rushing.

The Montrealers got 15 first downs and a total net offence of 330 yards, 196 of them rushing.

"We had bragged to pass more than we did" Montreal coach Marc Levy said.

"But field position was the problem. We'd get six or seven yards on first down and we'd come up short a yard on second-down plays."

Keeling completed seven of nine passes for 131 yards before he was forced to retire. Rick Cassata came on to complete two of 11 throws for 41 yards.

A favorite target was Oldham who grabbed three throws for 138 yards.

Montreal's George Mira was good on 14 of 24 throws for 141 yards while Rodgers caught three for 34 yards.

Secretariat Says Goodbye in Style

TORONTO (CP) — Secretariat tied goodbye to horse racing fans shortly before 5 p.m. EST Saturday, about 45 seconds after he crossed the finish wire at the end of the first leg in winning the Canadian International Championship Stakes.

Running a comfortable second in front of Secretariat was Mrs. Art Stollery of Toronto. Secretariat parked into passing gear three furlongs from home and won going away in two minutes, 47.4 seconds, one of tenths off the record on the Marshall turf course at Woodbine race track.

His handy win—he was 6/day's win.

"Certainly we'll miss campaigning such a wonderful racehorse. I'm certainly glad it's over," said Penny Tweedy, owner of Secretariat.

Secretariat went out a big winner, boosting his earnings by $92,755 to bring his bankroll to $1,316,808, the best ever for a thoroughbred.

Only Kelso, Round Table and Buckpasser earned more, but they also ran more often than the magnificent Big Red.

Sunday when he made his farewell, the crowd of 35,177 was his special — fans who the Secretariat they had come to see and make a 1-to-5 favorite despite the fact he had never gone 1¼ miles before.

He paid $2.40, $2.10 and $2.10. Big Spruce, ridden by Angel Cordero, paid $4.60 and $3.20, while third-place Golden Don, ridden by Mike Manganello, returned $4.20.

The rest of the 13-horse field—Secretariat started from the outside post—finished in the order: Presidial, Fabe Count, Triangular, Top of the Day, Swing Latch, Kentucky Bell, Don't Donate, Roundhouse and Fun Go Too.

At the start, Kennedy Road, a local sprinter, took the early lead with Secretariat running a close second. The two pushed away from the field for the first quarter-mile and Kennedy Road's early speed was too much for the Canadian-owned horse, Mrs. White. Secretariat, streaked to victory, Kennedy Road faded to a mid-place position.

Maple, asked if he had any doubts about winning and being able to shake Kennedy Road, said:

"He hung tough, but not tough enough. I had the feeling we had him. . . . No Sir, I never let him at all."

Secretariat, apparently not bothered by the cold, rainy, windy weather, probably ended his first season of racing in the Year Award with the win. Horse of the year, by won the Dwyer Lasker, Kentucky Derby, Preakness and Belmont Stakes.

Ironically, in the Canadian International Stakes he beat Cougar II, probable Invertie, he carried only 117 pounds—the same as Secretariat. Don and Top of the Day Don's Donate is the only mare, carried 122 pounds and the other 126.

Bombers First Team Out

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Winnipeg Blue Bombers replaced a first in the Canadian Football League Sunday but it wasn't something to be happy about.

The Blue Bombers became the first team in the league to drop out of the playoff picture when they lost a Western Conference game 23-17 to British Columbia Lions.

The rest of the WFC playoff picture will have to wait until the regular season ends next weekend, with the third and last playoff berth up for grabs when the Lions face Calgary Stampeders in Victoria for the Lions, who now trail Calgary by two points, would give them third place because they won first, have two wins in three games with the Stampeders during the season.

Already assured of a playoff position—although first and second place still are question marks—are Saskatchewan Roughriders and Edmonton Eskimos. A victory for the Riders, who can take first place with a victory over the Roughriders in Edmonton next Sunday, were defeated 14-10 by Calgary Saturday.

Johnny Musso stepped through the middle of the line for a six-yard touchdown at 11:36 of the final quarter to give the Lions their victory Sunday. It was his second touchdown of the game.

The winning play followed a successful fake punt by the Lions and a costly rough-play penalty against the Bombers.

Ivan Mackilwain accounted for eight of B.C.'s points with two converts and a pair of field goals. Guthrie boomed two long six-ties with the help of a 30-mile-an-hour wind.

Bob Larose got the only Winnipeg touchdown on a six-yard pass from Don Jonas in the fourth quarter. Jonas kicked two field goals and a convert while Walt McKee added a field goal and an 85-yard single.

Both clubs accumulated close to 400 yards net offence but not until the final 30 minutes could Jonas or B.C. quarterback Don Moorhead move their clubs in for a major score.

Moorhead was left in the East-ern Division cellar when the Roughriders upset Ottawa for three touchdowns in the final three-wheeling quarter Sunday.

Jerry Cain managed two touchdowns in the final quarter to couldn't make spectacular long pass-and-run plays by Saskatchewan.

Bob Brown set up one Rough-rider touchdown with an 80-yard pass-and-run play while Bobby Thompson got another with similar 94-yard play.

Ron Lancaster scored two touchdowns, both in the final quarter, on one and two-yard runs. Then Lancaster hit Ed Hamilton on a 25-yard pass from Ron Lancaster for the other Saskatchewan touchdown.

Thompson scored a second touchdown on a 29-yard pass from Lancaster while Steve Molnar ran two yards for another third-quarter touch-down. Jack Abendschan con-verted four of the five Saskatchewan touchdowns.

Hamilton's touchdowns came on a 25-yard pass from quarter-back Chuck Ealey to Garney Henley, a 16-yard pass to Steve Conley and a 45-yard pun by Andy Hopkins.

Ian Sunter converted all three touchdowns and added a 31-yard field goal and a single on a missed 16-yard field goal attempt.

The final minute of the game was marred by a fight between Hamilton's Lewis Clare and Saskatchewan's Bill Manchak.

Lewis Parker of Hamilton tried to intervene, setting up a general melee which ended in Parker and Lancaster-mate John Williams being thrown out of the game. Ilher was sidelined for the Roughriders.

The decisive play for the Stampeders came when Calgary punter Jim Furlong conceded a safety with less than four minutes remaining in the game, allowing the Stampeders to retain possession at the 25 and delaying Edmonton's last chance for a touchdown.

Calgary's points came on a touchdown by halfback Rick Cabon on a two-yard run in the second quarter and two field goals and a single by Larry Robinson, who also converted the major.

Robinson's kicking won him the Stampeders' most valuable player award as he moved within one single of the Canadian Football League record held by Dave Mann of Toronto Argonauts who booted 38.

Fullback Calvin Harrell, who replaced injured Sam Scarber, scored Edmonton's only touchdown off a 16-yard pass from quarterback Tom Wilkinson. Dave Cutler converted and lofted a single. Scoring was completed by the fourth-quarter safety.

It was one of the few games this season in which the Stampeders demonstrated a balanced offence as they rushed for 162 yards and passed for 118, accumulating a net total of 280 yards.

The Eskimos registered 86 yards rushing and 189 passing for a 271-yard net total.

Super Brute, '74.

This is what better engineering looks like.

At Alouette, "better engineering" isn't just a catchphrase. The new Super Brute, for example, combines advanced design with dozens of detail refinements.

The chassis 1 is all-aluminum, one of the lightest built, with receiver-proven front-end structure. The front-mounted Sachs engine 2 gives a low centre of gravity, for easy handling. 3

The new transmission includes a special heavy-duty chain 4, running in a cast aluminum chain case, and double-sprocket, free-wheeling track drive 5, for minimum power loss.

Then there are Alouette's exclusive Ski-Sorber™ suspension 6, with a new wide stance. And our slide suspension 7 is fully adjustable to your weight, and to snow conditions. Plus a track tunnel 8 designed to be self-clearing, not-clogging.

We could go on, about the new handlebar control module 9 with a headlight 10 that swivels to throw the beam where you're turning. About the wrap-around windshield 11 that gives more protection. About the adjustable controls 12 and posture-contoured seat 13 that makes this a really comfortable machine to drive.

But we'd rather you saw the Super Brute for yourself, at your Alouette dealer's. Look at the engineering—the harder you look, the better it looks. You'll see that we're not putting you on when we say . . . Alouette delivers.

Vikings Remain Unbeaten in NFL

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Minnesota Vikings disrupted Los Angeles Rams' game plan en route to a 16-0 National Football League victory Sunday.

"I tried everything, but they just out-executed us all day," said Los Angeles quarterback John Hadl.

In the fourth quarter when the Rams attempted a counter-attack, Viking middle linebacker Jeff Siemon blitzed through the Rams' line twice to harass Hadl and then added the Los Angeles ace for a 15-yard loss.

The Vikings improved their record to 7-0, the only unbeaten blend record in pro football, and also improved their lead in the National Conference's Central Division. The Vikings moved to a four-game lead over Green Bay Packers, 3-3-1, who dropped a 34-0 decision to Detroit Lions.

The Rams, 6-1, lost a game off their National Conference Western Division lead to Atlanta Falcons, who trimmed San Francisco 49ers 17-3.

Two upsets punctuated the schedule as New Orleans Saints turned back Washington Redskins 19-3 and Philadelphia Eagles hammered Dallas Cowboys 38-14. Washington maintained a one-game lead in the National Conference's Eastern Division.

Elsewhere, the division leaders in the American Conference lived up to expectations. The East-leading Miami Dolphins stopped New England Patriots 30-14, the Central-leading Pittsburgh Steelers stopped Cincinnati Bengals 28-13 and Oakland Raiders, leaders in the West, trimmed Baltimore Colts 34-21.

In other games, San Diego Chargers and Cleveland Browns played to a 16-16 tie; Denver Broncos slapped New York Jets 40-20; St. Louis Cardinals beat up New York Giants 26-17 and Chicago Bears routed Houston Oilers 35-14.

At Hempstead, N.Y., Fred Cox kicked a 15-yard field goal and Fran Tarkenton clicked on a nine-yard scoring pitchout to Chuck Foreman to give the Vikings a 16-0 lead and then their British defense made it stand up.

Pollution Fighters Shut Plant

TORONTO (CP) — On orders from the provincial environment ministry, the Canada Metal Co. plant in Toronto's east end closed down Saturday and a company official said there were no plans to reopen.

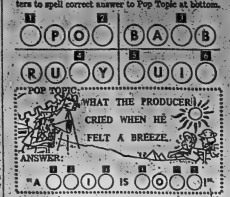
The ministry's air management branch ordered Canada Metal to shut down lead smelting operations after the first results of 720 blood samples were received from the Environmental Science Associates laboratory in Burlington, Mass., showing at least three area residents were in need of immediate treatment.

Company president Carleton Smith said Friday the lead smelting plant received a verbal order from the environment ministry to halt operations.

Jim Vesina, personnel manager, said company operations had stopped at 7 a.m. Saturday and there were no plans to reopen.

Jack Lawr' 38, Barbara Fulcher, 12, and 38-month-old James Sowey were taken to hospital after blood tests showed extremely high lead levels. Two were released but Mr. Lawr' was kept in hospital for further tests, with a lead level reading of 200 micrograms in every 100 millilitres of blood. The child had a level of 93 and Miss Fulcher had a level of 76.

Networks Deny Nixon Allegation



NEW YORK (AP) — Executives of the three major United States television networks rejected Saturday President Nixon's charge of vicious and unfair reporting on the part of the electronic media.

"I am very sorry it all started up again; I had thought that it had gone away," said BC News President Richard Wald. "I honestly feel the president is making a mistake—the old mistake of blaming the messenger for the message."

CBS News President Richard Salant said: "We are familiar, of course, with all of our own news broadcasts, as well as those of other networks. And we are convinced that none of the network reporting justifies the adjectives the president used Friday night."

Lake Trout Take To Be Cut to 3

THUNDER BAY, Ont. (CP) — The Ontario ministry of natural resources is giving high priority to the province's fishing industry, both commercial and private, and is taking extensive measures to ensure it is not abused, minister Leo Bernier said Saturday.

Mr. Bernier told about 200 people at a regional policy conference sponsored by the Ontario Progressive Conservative party, that the government is taking steps to ensure the continued existence of the industry.

He reiterated the ministry's decision, announced in the legislature, to limit daily catches of lake trout to three fish down from five, effective Jan. 1.

The minister added the government also is seriously considering prohibiting fishing during the lake trout spawning season—Oct. 1 to Dec. 31.

Mr. Bernier said an in-depth study undertaken across the province indicated "a definite decrease in the number of lake trout."

Lamprey eel and the winter accessibility to many lakes now possible with snowmobiles are two of the major causes of the decline, he said.

Mr. Bernier said the ministry is employing about six unmarked aircraft "in a Gestapo like manner" to keep the movements of "fly-in fishermen," many of whom come from the United States, under surveillance.

In an interview later, he said many pilots load the pontoons of planes with fillets to escape detection by authorities.

Restaurant, Bulldozer Said Offered Official

TORONTO (CP) — An Ontario government hearing into alleged bribery of environmental ministry officials heard Saturday of offers of a restaurant business and a bulldozer as inducements for favors from ministry officials.

Det.-Sgt. Colin Cousens of the provincial police testified that Ross Mackenzie, 33, an air management branch inspector based at Sudbury, Ont., said a man from an air-polluting company offered to set him up in a restaurant business with two liquor licences and also offered the bulldozer.

Mr. Mackenzie is on trial for his job in the hearing before Deputy Environment Minister Everett Biggs. He is charged with making unfounded allegations of bribery against a ministry official.

The public has been excluded from the hearing, but reporters are admitted on condition they identify no persons or companies linked with unsubstantiated charges of bribery.

Det.-Sgt. Cousens told the hearing his investigation found no support for primary allegation that a ministry official had solicited and got a $2,500 bribe from an air-polluting company.

In a letter Mr. Mackenzie had tried to file with a superior, he suggested the unnamed ministry official had obtained Florida land from one of the companies and that the same company provided a house mortgage for yet another employee of the air management branch.

The employee, against whom the charges have been made, told the hearing he never took a bribe in his life. Det.-Sgt. Cousens said the man also denied even owning land in Florida at any time.

The provincial police official found the house mortgage in question to be held by a bank. Although he admitted he had not searched the house title to discover any second mortgage.

He had interviewed a list of individuals suggested by Mr. Mackenzie, some of them company officials, and all had denied any bribery.

Det.-Sgt. Cousens said he had not gone to such lengths as examining the accused ministry official's bank account. All but the $2,500 bribe allegations were outside his investigation. He had not found any evidence to justify such actions as questioning the official's neighbors over the man's finances or seeking a search warrant into his bank account.

Gerald McManus, a Toronto district inspector for the air management branch, told the hearing he has been offered bribes "from time to time." It's usually liquor, not money, he said.

He told the hearing of two such incidents, neither connected with the hearing's immediate targets.

Hunting Banned

MADRID (Reuter) — The Spanish government has forbidden the hunting and killing of several species of mammals, birds and reptiles in a bid to prevent them from extinction. The protected animals are Pyrenean goats, bears, wildcats, mountain cats, stoats, mongooses, otters, eagles, vultures, falcons, spoonbills, owls, turtles, tortoises and chameleons.

Davis Promises North It Is Not Forgotten

THUNDER BAY, Ont. (CP) — The citizens of Northern Ontario were assured Saturday that the North is not a forgotten entity and that there is a new awareness within the Progressive Conservative Party as to its needs and ambitions.

Premier William Davis, three of his cabinet colleagues and a Conservative backbencher travelled to this lakehead city Saturday, "anxious to find out new issues . . . and deal with new problems."

Mr. Davis told about 300 people attending a regional policy conference sponsored by the party that his government is concerned and does recognize the problems facing Northern Ontario.

"An 11th province is not the answer," to the ills of the North, Mr. Davis said following remarks made by Ed Debol, leader of a secessionist party.

The North Bay, Ont., motel and trailer park operator said he was collecting 25,000 signatures on a petition and would then request the premier to allow the holding of a plebiscite on the separation issue.

Last year we gave you the rotary and super quiet snowmobiling.

This year, JX performance.

Last year we revolutionized the snowmobile. We introduced the first North American rotary engine and the first truly quiet snowmobile.

Now we offer you another radical concept. A new dimension in performance. The JX. This machine isn't a rehash of warmed-over parts and tired claims. It's totally new. It's an exciting blend of breath-taking speed, balance and control. It has performance so new, we needed to build a new line of snowmobiles. JX performance ("JX" for Johnson, "X" for extra everything) takes snowmobiling beyond the obvious.

Each red and black JX 650, 440 or 400 houses newly designed alternate-firing twins. High horses of compact size make the JX lighter. To help it go faster. You get reed valves for sustained power. Wide range transmissions. Extra long one-piece moulded track for sure grip. And controlled-ride suspension for even smoother performance. Driving one is the only way you'll really appreciate JX performance. And it's all backed with the know-how that made Johnson famous for dependability.

Get the whole story from your Johnson dealer. Try any of the seven members of Johnson's snowmobile family, from the fun-lovin' 21 hp to the competitive 650/50hp. And get on to something great.

The revolutionary rotary comes in two exciting horsepowers. The proven 35 and new 45.

SuperQuiet

The "Golden Ghost". It's only 73 dB(A) and some people can talk louder than that.

Make Johnson '74 thing.

Property Mistress Gets Briefed

Property mistress Elinor Hipkin listens attentively Sunday as Montreal set designer Jeffrey Sisco describes the eventual placement of furnishings in the Belleville Theatre Guild's second production of its current season. Peter Coke's Midsummer Mink. The professional designer has been commissioned to create a set for the play, to be directed by Peter Kircher, as well as The Anniversary, the Guild's third production. The model of the Victorian flavored set, the third version Mr. Sisco constructed, is built to a scale of a half-inch to each foot. All that is not built into the set — overstuffed chairs, domed plant stand and grandfather clock — must be found in the Quinte area by Mrs. Hipkin.

Volunteers Shape Up Stage Set

The sounds of power saws ripping through fresh lumber and hammers banging home nails echoed in the Pinnacle Playhouse over the weekend as members of the Belleville Theatre Guild learned their way through the construction of a set under the supervision of a professional designer Jeffrey Sisco.

Rising amid the sawdust of the stage floor was the set for the guild's second production of the current season, Peter Coke's Midsummer Mink, directed by Peter Kitcher. Credit for the Victorian flavor of the 10-foot-high walls of the single room that will serve as the only scene of the play's action goes to the Montreal designer who oversaw its construction over the weekend.

Basically, it was a design members seem to be, from theoretical. Mr. Sisco was as pleased by the energy guild members put into the work as members seemed to be from working from a scale model and plans.

Before that model was constructed, however Mr. Sisco had spent time talking to the director about the play several weeks ago. The discussions led to an odd - shaped room with a Victorian flavor. Secret hiding places for the stolen furs, that several old ladies "fence" — the proceeds going to charity — are built into the set.

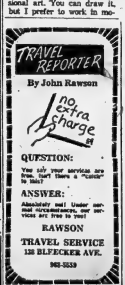
"I wanted to avoid a box," said Mr. Sisco. "The play is static, in that all the action takes place in one room." To give it a feeling of movement and depth, he "fooled around with the walls" until he was able to come up with a workable method of making them at angles to each other.

Speaking of his scale model, he says, "Set design is like sculpture. It's a three - dimensional art. You can draw it, but I prefer to work in models. That way the director has a concept of the shape and the depth of the set he has to work with.

"With this workshop, I'm looking for people who will be able to catch on (some) that I have to say and will be able to work on when I'm not here," he said Saturday. Mr. Sisco will be in Montreal again today to return in two or three weeks for a set painting workshop.

His search had proved to be successful at the end of work Sunday. The division of some 30 people into building, prop finding and carpentry groups allowed several necessary tasks to be performed simultaneously. The result was that by end of the weekend, construction of the flats, the door jambs and the fireplace had been accomplished. The covering of the flats with greenboard, a heavy cardboard material, still has to be done.

After the set painting will come the final technical work with lighting days before the start of the comedy's run Nov. 28 to Dec. 1 and Dec. 5-8. Painting with light Mr. Sisco called it. The basic light will be white—focused on the furniture most used during the course of the play's action. Amber lights will warm the set.



Cost of materials has run the guild about $350 so far, but this will be offset somewhat by the use of some parts of the set in the third production of the season. William MacIlwraith's black comedy, The Anniversary, with director Flo Yanover. Mr. Sisco will design the fragmentary set for the contemporary British play.

Mr. Sisco returns to his duties teaching a set design course with Montreal's Theatre Workshop, an association of artists meant to instill an appreciation of the theatre in its students. He is soon to undertake the designing of the interior renovations of the workshop's old loft building in old Montreal.

Corner the Market

The Guaranty Trust Co. has just cornered the market on the corner of Front Street and Bridge Street East. After renovations, the Company has expanded its operations so that now they operate from the whole of the building on the corner. Here, two of the company's employees, Robert E. Lee and Linda Cork make a last minute check to see if everything is ready for the open house to be held Oct. 30 - Nov. 2.

Swords Slash Way To Sixth AHL Win

Cincinnati remained the scourge of the American Hockey League after a weekend of activity that saw the unbeaten Swords trim Boston Braves 4-2 Sunday night after being held to a 3-3 tie by Hershey Saturday.

The Swords lead the Southern Division by seven points over Hershey with a 6-0-1 record.

In other games Sunday, New Haven Nighthawks whipped Providence Reds 5-2, Springfield Kings edged Rochester Americans 4-3 and Baltimore Clippers 4-1 whipped Virginia Red Wings 6-2. Providence is the worst side, but remained in first place in the North with a two-point edge.

Randy Wyrozub paced the Swords Sunday with two goals and Merlyn Myers, Jerry Robertson and Morris Titanic each got one. Pat Westlund, Dave Hynes and Pierre Boulles scored for the Braves.

Terry Holbrook's pair of goals highlighted the Nighthawks' four-goal rally that took them out of the Voyageurs' sails in the third period.

Jack Norris, John Rogers, Pete Sullivan and Larry Fullan were other singles for New Haven. Dave Lee, Glen Goldup, Don Hoenes and Jerry Byers supplied Navy Scotia's goals.

Rochester needed a goal by Bryan Brelik and 11 second left in the game to secure the tie with Springfield. The Kings have a 2-0 lead on power-play goals by Reg Kinch and Wayne Cashman before Billy Dobbin got the Americans on the board with a power-play marker late in the second period.

Moore Leads Montreal

Rick Moore, leading scorer for Sir George Williams University in Montreal in the Quebec University Athletic Association hockey conference last season, has not lost his scoring touch.

Sunday night, Moore, who decided to use his final year of junior eligibility this season rather than return to the Montreal university, scored two goals and assisted on four others as Montreal Juniors defeated Drummondville Rangers 12-7 in one of five Quebec Major Junior A Hockey League games.

In other action, Shawinigan Dynamos upset Quebec Remparts 7-2, Chicoutimi Saguenays dumped Sherbrooke Beavers 8-4, Cornwall Royals topped Laval Nationals 7-4 and Sorel Black Hawks scored a 6-4 win over Hull Festivals.

Moore's outburst moved him into a tie for seventh spot in the league's scoring race with 13 goals and 13 assists.

Robert Sirois with three, Normand Dupont and Jean-Luc Phaneuf with two each, Pierre Richard, Mario Tremblay and Allen Pike scored the other Montreal goals. Sirois now has 18 goals and 18 assists for the season and fifth spot among the league's scorers.

Marc Tessier scored three times for the Rangers while Claude Larose and Jacques Chiasson each had two.

At Shawinigan, Carl Gagnon scored twice and team-mates Richard Pelazac, Jean-Paul Gilbert, Louis Lornager, Benoit Gosselin and Jean Bernier added singles as the Dynamos delighted a crowd of 2,273 with its win over Quebec.

Real Cloutier and Jacques Locas scored for the Remparts, who now sandwich 7-4 record.

Yves Preston scored three times as Chicoutimi dispatched Sherbrooke. Michel Tremblay, Pierre Dube, Yvon Verreault, Marc Amiot and Paul Chicoine each scored the other goals for the Saguenays.

Denis Marlet with two, Michel Brisebois and Richard Muiberri scored for Sherbrooke.

At Cornwall, the Royals scored three unanswered goals in the second period to break a 2-2 tie and went on to beat Laval. Gary MacGregor scored a pair of goals for the Royals while John Duncan, Mike Gresley, Kevin Tracy, Bob Geoffrion and Allan Kasparian scored singles.

Claude Dupuis, Jean Trottier, Jean Desjardins and Claude Gigure got Laval's goals.

Two goals by Michel Bergeron led Sorel to their win over Hull. Jacques Cossette, Pierre Mondou, Larry Lovasz and Robert Ritchie added singles for the Black Hawks with Dave Boyd, Gary McFadyen, Greg Rayson and Scott Hunter scoring for Hull.

The Festivals were dealt a blow during a weekend meeting of the league when the board of governors decided Rick Garcia was ineligible to play for Hull.

Garcia played last year in the Provincial Junior A League in Ontario and was drafted by St. Catharines Hawks of the Ontario Hockey Association's Major Junior A series.

6 Straight For Donohue

RIVERSIDE, Calif. (AP) — Mark Donohue drove a record sixth straight Can-Am road racing event Sunday and announced he is retiring from competition.

Donohue, 36, said he will participate in the final round of the International Race of Champions (IROC) at Daytona Beach, Fla., in February, then become chairman of the board of Penske, for whom he has driven six years.

He already has clinched the 1972 Can-Am Championship, his fifth driving title in eight years.

He picked up $13,200 from the IROC series and $17,200 from the Can-Am. His money total from the Can-Am season reached $113,995.

Wheeling a 1,200-horsepower turbocharged Porsche, Donohue finished off from the pole position at the head of a 36-car field on Sunday and ran away from the field in a 75-mile section of the race.

Then he almost lapped the field to win the 125-mile second.

Red Wings Move to Third

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Greg Hickey scored three goals Sunday, leading Hamilton Red Wings to a 6-2 victory over Kingston Canadians in Ontario Hockey Association Junior A action.

Hamilton moved into fifth place in the 11-team league with six wins and four losses in 10 decisions.

In two other, league games Sunday, Kitchener Rangers edged St. Catharines Black Hawks 6-4 and Toronto Marlboros won their second game of the season, 4-3 over Ottawa 67s.

Saturday night action saw Oshawa Generals beat Ottawa 4-3 and Peterborough Petes down Sudbury Wolves 4-3.

At Kingston, 3,816 fans watched Hamilton count two goals in each period for the victory.

Mike Hobin scored two Hamilton goals and Mark Evans got one.

Mike Crombeen and defenceman Michel Blas scored for Kingston.

Hamilton goalie Rick Szabo, who has played all but one of 20 regular season games, was kept busy, handling 45 shots—20 in the second period.

defenceman Dave Maloney scored his first three goals of the season in Kitchener's victory over St. Catharines.

Maloney scored all three goals in the second period when Kitchener notched four goals after a 1-1 deadlock in the first period.

Dave Gorman and Wilf Paiement scored twice in the final period as St. Catharines made a vain attempt to get back in the game.

In addition to Maloney's goals, Brian Bye, Mike McKegney and Rick Shortrow added singles.

Other St. Catharines goals went to Greg Craig and Kevin Kennory.

Kitchener outshot St. Catharines 35-26.

Sunday afternoon at Maple Leaf Gardens, Toronto Marlboros took a 4-1 lead into the final period and allowed Ottawa to tie the score before winning.

Ottawa opened the scoring in the first period on a goal by Jim Roberts, but Gark Napier and Jim Kirkpatrick replied to give the Marlboros a 2-1 lead after 20 minutes.

Second-period goals by Brian Dillon and Bruce Boudreau gave Toronto all the insurance they needed. Peter Lee scored Ottawa's third-period goal.

Toronto outshot Ottawa 32-29 but had no edge on sharp goaltending by Barry Ashby.

Saturday night in Oshawa, the Generals extended their unbeaten streak to three games in their 6-4 conquest over Ottawa after breaking a 3-3 tie in the last period. Oshawa's game scorers were Peter Vandermark with two, Gene Maine, Tom Newton, Dean Neuman and Brian Kinsella.

Scoring for the 67s were Glen McCloud, Bruce Baker, Tom McDonell and Dave Smith.

Ottawa outshot the winners 29-21 before 1,227 fans.

Bob Russell scored two goals for Sudbury Saturday night in a losing cause to Peterborough. Dave Staffen scored the other at Sudbury goal.

It was the 11th victory in 14 starts for the Petes, who have also have a mount.

Kennedy Favored

EDWARD KENNEDY

PRINCETON, N.J. (AP) — Senator Edward Kennedy would be victorious in a United States presidential race now against Gov. Ronald Reagan of California, the latest Gallup poll says.

The poll shows Kennedy, Democrat from Massachusetts, receiving 58 per cent of the vote and Republican Reagan getting 33 per cent. Two per cent of the persons polled said they preferred other candidates and five per cent were undecided.

In a separate poll released earlier this month, Reagan was the leading choice of Republicans for their party's 1976 nomination, Kennedy was the top choice of Democrats in a mid-summer survey as their party's 1976 candidate.

Prices to Rise

NEW YORK (AP) — Many U.S. newspapers, already economizing because of a newsprint shortage, have indicated that a 14-per-cent price increase announced last week will probably force them to raise advertising and circulation rates.

Loans Curbed

MEXICO CITY (AP) — Mexico has ordered public and private banks not to grant credit to companies "which have sufficient resources, which can ask for loans abroad, which hoard or speculate with their products or which take money out of the country."

Finance Minister Jose Lopez Portillo, making the announcement during the weekend, said it is government policy that loans should be given only to "small companies which want to grow and invest within the country."

Girl Hurt

OTTAWA (CP) — A female trapeze artist with Ringling Brot. and Barnum kid Bailey Circus was in satisfactory condition Sunday following a fall of more than 22 feet during a performance here Saturday.

CENTER LINE, Mich. (AP) — A strike by 650 United Auto Workers (UAW) members in Chrysler Corp. Center Line parts depot ended Sunday when workers unanimously ratified a new local contract.

Want Control

WATERLOO, Ont. (CP) — The province will consider alternatives to an appointed health council for the Waterloo region, Robert Welch, Ontario's secretary for social development, said Saturday.

Jack Young, chairman of the regional municipality, said the health councils should be composed of elected members.

He suggested an advisory committee in the health and social service fields which would be responsible to regional council.

Acting on a suggestion from Mr. Welch, the conference set up a steering committee to meet with provincial cabinet ministers to decide the form of such a regional advisory committee.

Chancellor

PETERBOROUGH, Ont. (CP) — Senator Eugene Forsey was appointed to the office of chancellor of Trent University Saturday during the fall convocation exercises.

In a short speech to graduation students, Senator Forsey said he was not sure he could fill the footsteps of former Ontario premier Leslie Frost, the university's previous chancellor who died earlier this year.

Senator Forsey was a sponsor of the university and has been on the board of governors since 1966.

Office Entered

MONTREAL (CP) — The campaign offices of Union Nationale candidate Andre Corneau were broken into Sunday, hours after a polling station in the same riding was destroyed by fire.

Mr. Corneau, a 30-year-old lawyer contesting Montreal St. Jacques, said vandals broke into his headquarters through a rear window.

United Church Boards Are Called Incestuous

TORONTO (CP) — Toronto-based church boards "become incestuous" and "reflect the bland management outlook of corporate capitalism," says Rev. Ben Smillie, professor of church and society at St. Andrew's College of Saskatoon.

In a letter in the November issue of the United Church Observer, Dr. Smillie proposed that the United Church of Canada move its headquarters to Montreal from Toronto.

Dr. Smillie says his suggestion might be an attempt by which the church would expose itself to something outside the Anglo-Saxon milieu.

He says the United Church does little to indicate that it lives in a bilingual, bicultural scene.

"Its French is limpied to its letterhead. A move like that would face the church with the quite swelling ferment in Quebec."

"I would like to see the church become something reflecting Canadian identity, its struggle with the issues of Canada.

He said he calls the church boards incestuous because officials usually pick chairmen and executives from the Toronto-Hamilton-Kingston area, which reflects only the urban culture.

"In Montreal, at least there would be a counter culture."

Paulin Backs Vitamins

VANCOUVER (CP) — Dr. Linus Pauling says North American doctors are not stressing preventive medicine techniques, such as vitamin diets, which if administered properly could reduce aging over a lifetime by up to 20 years.

Toronto's Isle Airport Backed as STOL Base

TORONTO (CP) — The Toronto Harbor Commission is planning to give politicians in southern Ontario municipalities a first-hand look at how Toronto's Island Airport can become the hub of a short takeoff and landing (STOL) network.

Commissioners expect to announce next week a date in mid-November when the politicians will be flown to the Island Airport for the demonstration, which follows a first-ever behind instrument landing experiment conducted last Thursday.

Twin Otter aircraft, manufactured by de Havilland Aircraft of Canada Ltd. of Toronto, will be used in the planned demonstration.

The instrument landing experiment was conducted at the Island Airport by the federal transport ministry using a portable microwave landing system set up on the 4,000-foot east-west runway.

De Havilland officials have held recent discussions with Claude Bennett, Ontario's industry and tourism minister, about the Island Airport's STOL potential.

"I have had discussions with de Havilland officials about the STOL proposal as recently as last Monday," Mr. Bennett said Sunday.

"As a person who is forced to take Air Canada (transportation) in Ottawa a couple of times each week, I feel very strongly that we need to provide some alternative air services. I'm very impressed with the potential of the Island Airport."

The lack of an instrument landing system at the airport has always ruled it out for regularly scheduled air services.

Appeal Ordered Dropped

NEW YORK (AP) — The Times says former U.S. attorney-general Richard Kleindienst told Watergate prosecutors that President Nixon ordered him in 1971 to halt an appeal of the government's anti-trust cases against the International Telephone and Telegraph Corp. The appeal was held up and the government agreed to an out-of-court settlement that allowed ITT to retain the $1 billion Hartford Insurance Co. while giving up Canteen Corp. and other holdings.

Trudeau Elated

OTTAWA (CP) — Prime Minister Trudeau was elated Monday night as returns on the Liberal election landslide rolled in from Quebec. "It's a great triumph for federalism over separatism," he said in a brief interview outside the Commons.

MONTREAL (CP) — Premier Robert Bourassa retained power Monday in a stunning electoral sweep and promptly proclaimed federalism as the choice of a "clear majority" of Quebecers."

The Bourassa Liberals won at least 96 of the 110 ridings on Quebec's updated electoral map. The premier had described his party during the campaign as the only truly federalist party in the four-sided fight.

Rene Levesque's separatist Parti Quebecois became the official Opposition and increased its popular vote in the election, which saw all three opposition party leaders defeated.

Mr. Levesque went down to his second personal defeat. Gabriel Loubier, leading the Union Nationale in an election for the first time, and Yvon Dupuis of the Parti Creditiste, also a first-time leader, were defeated in their home ridings.

The once-mighty Union Nationale was obliterated and Quebec returned essentially to a two-party system, with the Liberals upholding federalism and the Parti Quebecois driving for an independent Quebec in economic association with Canada.

The Parti Quebecois seemed likely to wind up with seven seats in the Quebec national assembly—the same number it won in 1970—while the Parti Creditiste skidded to a low of two seats.

Those two parties made their first appearance at the Quebec provincial polls in 1970 when Mr. Bourassa toppled the Union Nationale regime of the late Jean-Jacques Bertrand.

When vote-counting passed early today, the party standings from Monday's election were:

Creditiste	2	0	2

Mr. Levesque protested bitterly in 1970 that his party won only seven seats though it captured 23 per cent of the popular vote—second to the Liberals.

Though a new electoral map has since been drawn, constituency boundaries existed strictly revised and two new ridings added, Mr. Levesque reiterated Monday night that his party won only the same number of seats though it increased its popular vote to 30 per cent.

Mr. Bourassa said he believes a protest vote went to the Parti Quebecois, adding: "I think the election is a defeat of the separatist option despite the increase in the PQ's popular vote."

Mr Dupuis said chances rallied for Liberals to avoid breaking up the federalist vote and Mr Loubier, a former Union Nationale cabinet minister commented:

"The people were scared and did not take any chances They voted for the Liberals in order to beat the Parti Quebecois."

Some of the brightest stars of the Parti Quebecois went down to defeat, including Camil Laurin, the party leader in the national assembly; Claude Morin, former deputy minister in the Quebec department of inter-governmental affairs and Jacques Parizeau, economist and former adviser to Levesque and federal government — Jacques-Yvan Morin, a University of Montreal professor and expert on international law, won a seat for the first time.

All Bourassa government ministers in the race were victorious along with Rex Lise Bacon, president of the Quebec Liberal Association.

Three Party Leaders Defeated in Election

MONTREAL (CP) — Defeated leaders of three, major Quebec political parties reacted swiftly to the resounding victory of Premier Robert Bourassa and his Liberals in Monday's provincial election.

Mr Bourassa himself pronounced the landslide a "victory of common sense" and a clear mandate that Quebecers prefer federalism.

But Rene Levesque, leader of the Parti Quebecois, said he feared the Liberal sweep would lead to excessive power in the hands of a single party.

Gabriel Loubier, leader of the now-defunct Union Nationale, said he felt much of the vote was not so much for the Liberals as it was against the Parti Quebecois.

Creditiste leader Yvon Dupuis said he believes the landslide will make it difficult for the Liberals to govern.

Mr Levesque, Mr Loubier and Mr Dupuis all were defeated in their home ridings by Liberals. Of 110 seats being contested, Liberals won 99, the Parti Quebecois six, the Creditistes two and the Union Nationale none.

Mr. Bourassa said the result was "certainly the greatest victory in Quebec history."

The voting shows that federalism is the choice of a "clear majority of Quebecers," Mr Bourassa said.

Mr Levesque told a post-election gathering of supporters it's necessary now to hope that the Liberals won't abuse their great mandate.

"The several elected Parti Quebecois members carry 30 per cent of the Quebec vote on their shoulders. They hold for the coming society the only hope for a French Quebec. We must make of this campaign a springboard for the future."

Ottawa Valley to Coast Faces 6-cent Gas Boost

OTTAWA (CP) — Soaring crude oil prices in Venezuela and the Middle East could boost gasoline prices in the Ottawa Valley and east of it by six cents a gallon before the end of November.

This was the bleak assessment of one federal source Monday after a staggering 56-per-cent weekend increase in the base price the Venezuelan government uses to calculate oil taxes.

Energy Minister Donald Macdonald refused to guess how much prices will rise, or how fast, but warned eastern consumers to prepare for major increases in the months ahead.

There is "really no choice" but to pay the higher prices if consumers are to be supplied with enough oil to meet their needs, he said.

The government source, who asked not to be named, said it will cost about two cents a gallon at the retail gasoline level to offset the first of two sales price increases announced in September and early October. Another retail increase of about four cents a gallon will be needed to cover the latest increase, he estimated.

This would push premium gasoline prices to about 70 cents a gallon in some areas and above the price of regular gasoline past 60 cents for many consumers.

Mr. Macdonald said the government may approve price increases before the end of the week to cover the September and early-October import cost increases.

Venezuela, taking its cue from Arab states, bounced its base price for taxing purposes to $7.35 a barrel from $4.65 during the weekend.

The result will be an increase of roughly $1.30 a barrel in the cost refiners pay for Venezuelan crude at Montreal, Mr. Macdonald said. More than half of the 800,000 barrels of oil imported daily to eastern Canada comes from Venezuela.

Consumers living in and east of the Ottawa Valley rely almost totally imported oil. All areas to the west of the valley are supplied by Alberta crude.

The impact on heating oil prices was unclear but corresponding increases seemed likely.

Although eastern increases are unavoidable, Mr. Macdonald said, the freeze still will apply west of the Ottawa valley.

Price Raised

TORONTO (CP) — Gulf Canada Ltd announced Monday an immediate increase of one cent a gallon on all fuels supplied by its Montreal refinery, which serves Quebec and the Ottawa Valley in Ontario.

Thieves Erect Tent To Conceal Robbery

COPENHAGEN (AP) — Nobody thought of asking questions when a group of men put up a tent and roped off the sidewalk in front of a wine store in this Danish capital after closing time late Friday afternoon.

The tent had the markings of the Copenhagen Telephone Co. and the men put up official-looking signs asking pedestrians to use the opposite sidewalk while repair work was going on.

Later, a van with the markings of the telephone company drove up in front of the tent. After a while it drove away, but the tent remained on the sidewalk until Monday morning.

Soon afterward the wine dealer called police and told them burglars had torn down an iron grate from a basement window hidden by the tent, and had gone away with $10,000 worth of whisky and cognac.

Cox Says White House Staff Unhappy With Course His Investigation Took

WASHINGTON (AP) — Archibald Cox says he has no evidence that he was fired as Watergate special prosecutor because the Nixon administration feared his investigation was getting too close to the White House.

But he said that on several occasions White House staff members complained about the course of the investigation, and the complaints were related to him by then Attorney-General Elliot Richardson.

"The attorney-general never put pressure on me," Cox told the Senate judiciary committee Monday. "In fact, he was caught in middle . . .

"He tried to reason some of these things out together."

Cox said he has evidence that the political files of some White House personnel may have been dumped into President Nixon's own files to protect them from subpoena. Nixon contends his files are immune to subpoena:

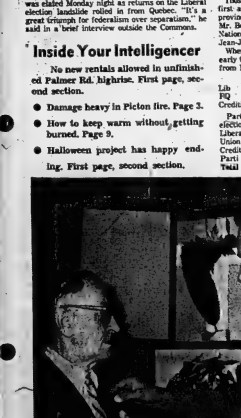
Cox was scheduled for another day of testimony today before the committee, holding hearings on his dismissal. He was fired Oct. 20 by Nixon's order because he refused a presidential directive to halt efforts to obtain White House documents relevant to the Watergate investigation.

Senator John McClellan (Dem.,Ark.) asked about rumors that Cox was dismissed because his investigation was pointing toward the White House.

"I have no evidence to support any of the rumors of this kind," Cox said. "I have seen evidence that some on the president's staff were disturbed by the breadth of the guidelines of the investigation."

Cox's firing resulted in the resignations of Richardson and Deputy Attorney-General William Ruckelshaus. Both are expected to testify this week.

The judiciary committee has custody of a bill, backed by a majority of the Senate, that would direct the federal courts to name an independent prosecutor to succeed Cox.



Cox told the committee that he is convinced the measure provides the widest method of creating a special prosecutor who would be totally independent of the executive branch.

He said his successor should be given clear authority to file suit seeking White House evidence.

President Nixon has ordered Acting Attorney-General Robert Bork to name a new prosecutor, but has said the new man would still have access to presidential records.

The Justice department said Bork is trying to nail down details on Nixon's guidelines but "Mr. Bork wants to be sure the special prosecutor is not precluded from seeking evidence he is legally entitled to."

Elsewhere today, the Senate Watergate committee scheduled an executive session to prepare for Wednesday's resumption of its public hearings.

Shoplifting Goes with Christmas

By PETER GOOSPEED
Staff Reporter

The working day will soon be a thing of the past for many store clerks throughout Belleville.

Crowds will thicken, mothers, trailing whining youngsters, will slip from counter to counter; piped-to music will pick up a Christmas tempo and cash registers will ring notes that increasingly sound like sleigh bells.

Store clerks will not be the only busy people, though. Shoplifters will step up their Christmas hunting season.

Store security forces, the police and the courts will also find their workloads increasing.

Shoplifting is a year-round problem for Belleville merchants, but during peak selling periods it takes a noticeable bite out of store profits. It also leaves a lot of people with regrets, worries and a criminal record.

According to Inspector Ralph Hatchford of the Belleville police department, shoplifting is a serious problem here.

"It's a problem for the store owner. It's a problem for the consumer, who has to pay higher prices, and it's a problem for the people caught stealing," he said.

"In Canada, we don't have a good body of statistics to go on, but it would be safe to say that we are talking in the millions of dollars each year."

The shoplifter is faceless. He may be a child or a wife with a sweet tooth, a mother of five with a tight budget or a well-respected professional man with a careless urge for the forbidden.

"You can't draw a statistical profile of the shoplifter," Inspector Hatchford continued. "Young people who do it may be looking for an identity with their peers or they are trying to get money to compete in society. Older people may do it simply because they can't legitimately purchase something they want. And then there is a great host of people who do it simply because it's a challenge."

About the only thing that is certain is that the problem exists.

The problem exists almost anywhere goods are placed on sale. Food stores, drug stores, department stores and specialty stores are all equally susceptible to the deft and not-so-deft sticky fingers of the shoplifter.

Surprisingly enough, however, the value of goods stolen are usually individually insignificant. According to Inspector Hatchford, articles of clothing, patent medicines, household articles, sports equipment, workshop tools and auto accessories are the usual fare of the amateur shoplifter.

They usually are targets simply because they are small, easily concealed and prominently displayed in stores.

Amateur shoplifting is also a strange phenomenon in that it doesn't seem to follow any of the economic trends present in the market place.

In an age of rapidly rising food prices both the police and store owners say there has been no significant change in the number of thefts from food stores:

The occasional piece of merchandise may find its way into a gaping purse or under a bulky sweater, but, generally, the amateur shoplifter sticks to small inexpensive articles that catch his fancy.

The professional shoplifter poses a completely different problem. He usually works with a gang and has a definite plan of attack when entering a store and steals high priced items that are in demand and therefore, easily disposed of.

While Belleville has not been immune to the occasional visit from professional shoplifters, it has generally been ignored simply because it lies beyond the urban belt surrounding Toronto.

An amateur can do as much as a professional, however, and Belleville police have been taken elaborate measures to insure themselves against loss from theft.

Some of the major stores have trained staff in the latest methods of shoplifting to better help them guard against it. Others have hired special security forces that do nothing but patrol the stores looking for people with sticky fingers. Still others carefully arrange displays, aisles and sales counters to discourage theft and aid apprehension.

In fact, shoplifting has struck so deeply at store owners that they have begun to organize courses at Loyalist College to help fight the problem.

Dave Paice, an instructor at the College, got together with the police department and members of the Chamber of Commerce to run a four-day course on shoplifting at the College last year. He sees a bright future for similar courses in the future.

"Last year's course was the first of its kind in Belleville and it was well received by the merchants," he said. "We had merchants from Belleville, Picton and Trenton attending the course. They spent their time studying the methods employed by shoplifters, how to improve their own situation in their stores and the methods of apprehension and arrest. If the various merchants in the area are interested in continuing this type of program, the college will be willing to supply the facilities and course material."

George Poupard, the manager of the Quinte Mall is confident that almost all of the tenants in the mall have a policy of prosecuting people they catch stealing.

"The percentage of profit a shoplifter makes on an article is less now than it has been," he said. "Store owners just can't tolerate anything that cuts deeply into their profits. They have to prosecute to protect themselves."

Prosecution as a means of deterrence has its pitfalls.

"The vast majority of shoplifters do it on impulse," Mr. Poupard continued. "But, they seldom get caught. The Shoplifting isn't something new. There are only so many ways you can do it and our staff is familiar with all the methods."

"When you think about it, it's a stupid thing to do. It isn't a very profitable business. The thrill of shoplifting fades quickly after you've been getting caught."

Under the Criminal Code of Canada, a person convicted of theft under $200 — the charge most frequently laid against shoplifters — is liable to receive a prison term of two years.

Animal Clinic Coming

The Ontario Humane Society will be staging a 'mobile animal welfare clinic on October 31 at its Quinte area headquarters west of the city.

The clinic, intended to provide treatment, minor surgery, diagnosis and advice, will be staffed by Veterinarian Dr. Kenneth Easton, who joined the Humane Society this year after being in private practice since 1952.

Dr. Easton will be performing surgery, diagnosis and vaccination by appointment from 9 a.m. until noon, following which the clinic will be open on a first come, first served basis.

Appointments may be made by calling the Belleville branch of the Society at 967-1423. All persons attending the clinic will be asked to make a donation.

The clinic is housed in a motor home vehicle and in addition to living space for Dr. Easton contains storage, a operating and examination table, instrument trays and refrigerator. Dr. Easton recently returned from a pioneering trip with the clinic into Northern Ontario.

A native of Hamilton, Dr. Easton is a 1958 graduate of Ontario Veterinary College and following year established a private practice in Mississauga, later forming a partnership with two practices. He joined OHC this year as staff veterinarian.

Down-to-Earth Park Investment

The city parks board is spending approximately $6,000 for rough grading and seeding of the East Zwick's Island park area.

But whatever the direct cost of the city's earlier sanitary land fill program and the tab for future park development, another $1,700 in actual cash can be added to the total.

Four years ago when the East Zwick's area was still being used as a sanitary land fill site for garbage, a city business man had the misfortune of having $1,700 accidentally dumped in his garbage.

The cash was picked up with the normal garbage collection and was dumped at East Zwick's. The money was never recovered.

Rezoning Refused

TRENTON — Council concurred with the Quinte Planning Board last night in refusing approval on a rezoning application that would have extended Trenton's downtown commercial waterfront.

There was some mixup in the vote taken with a show of hands which caused both councillors John Boros and Bob Patrick ot demand a recorded vote.

Voting nay were councillors Boros, Patrick and George Green. Councillors Ed Todd and Ron Price voted in favor of the development.

Wold Realty with its principal, Gerald Weaver, applied for the rezoning of land on Dundas Street west directly west of Division Street. Wold Realty wished the residential zone be lifted and replaced with commercial. Mr. Weaver in the past had argued the town's commercial property was shrinking.

Councillor Patrick, speaking for the Trenton Planning Board, urged council to hold its approval of such rezoning until land in the present central core is developed to its maximum.

Despite his and the Quinte Planning Board's reasoning the committee of the whole endorsed the rezoning change. This approval was reversed last night.

Peter DeGroot, the final member of council was not present to cast a vote last night.

Impaired Twice

A Deseronto man, convicted of two charges of impaired driving, was fined $375 in provincial court yesterday.

Lester Hamilton, 44, was brought to trial before Judge J. L. Clendenning after being arrested by the Ontario Provincial Police on July 11 and Aug. 11 for impaired driving.

On July 11, the police, acting on a tip they received from someone who had stopped by their detachment office, found Hamilton driving a dump truck on the wrong side of the street in Deseronto.

When tested at the station he had a breathalyzer reading of 200 milligrams of alcohol per 100 millilitres of blood. The criminal code calls for a conviction for persons with a reading greater than 80 milligrams.

On Aug. 11, Hamilton was arrested after he ran into a parked car in a Deseronto shopping centre. At that time he had a breathalyzer reading of 250 milligrams.

$700 Damage In Collision

TWEED (Special) — Property damage of $700 resulted from a collision here Monday as two vehicles were in collision on Highway 7 near the Delora turn.

Provincial police at Madoc said the mishap involving two westbound cars resulted when one vehicle turned out to pass but as the first vehicle attempted to make a left turn.

The first vehicle was driven by Shirley Wilman, 28, of RR2, Marmora, while the passing car was driven by Lobor Jan Zink, 53, of Otjawa.

First Snow At Tweed

TWEED (Special) — With overnight temperatures dropping to 33 degrees, Tweed area had its first snowfall of the season this morning.

The report was that mixed with the overnight rain was a slight bit of wet white stuff.

The rainfall since Monday morning was reported as just over an inch, but district farmers are hoping for much more rain before the fall freezeup.

The Moira River at Tweed is two feet below its June level and several area farmers are running short of water for their livestock.

With wells running dry, some farmers are already beginning to draw water for their stock, it is stated.

Arena Roof 'Dangerous'

TRENTON — According to an architectural report received by town council last night, portions of the Memorial Gardens roof could cause crashing down over seating sections with even a "relatively light snow load."

H. W. Holmes, responsible for the report and the accompanying engineering analysis, said some sections of the roof were already under 85 per cent maximum stress with no snow on the roof at all.

He found the sections most critical were those toward the perimeter of the building over seating sections and walkways.

Council for some time now has been soliciting opinions from a number of sectors searching for a solution to the reports is sagging in places.

"We've been talking about this for a month. We might be sitting on a bomb shell," warned Councillor John Bonn.

Council endorsed a recommendation that Mr. Holmes be brought to a meeting where he could discuss the problem and possible solutions. "It was originally intended any necessary retrofitting be done in the spring.

Members of council were interested to know if there was a possibility the roof need not be completely removed during the work.

"I don't think we have any choice", said Councillor Bonn. "If there is a buildup of snow we'll have to direct the recreation director to close down the arena."

Damage Heavy in Picton Fire

PICTON — Heavy smoke and water damage was reported today at the Wright block on Main St. following a fire that gutted Hodgson's Photographic Studio on the second floor.

The blaze broke out in the studio shortly after 11 p.m. and rapidly spread to an apartment on the same floor. Two women were evacuated from the building by firemen.

Picton fire chief Leonard Tripp said the fire was contained on the second floor although it did break through briefly to the third storey. An aerial ladder was rushed to Picton by the Belleville fire department and was used to reach the third floor.

After the top storey of the building had been thoroughly doused, firemen were able to enter.

Don firefighter Reginald Havery, was taken to Prince Edward County Memorial Hospital and treated for smoke inhalation. A second fireman, Mel Begbie, received a two-inch gash in his hand during the blaze.

Chief Tripp said there was "a terrific amount of smoke and water damage" to Wright's Drugstore located on the ground floor of the building. However, no flames reached either the drugstore, owned by Dr. John Pearce, or the adjoining Star Cafe.

Hodgson's Studio, operated by Mary Kinney of Picton, had been closed prior to the fire as the photographer was out of town.

Chief Tripp said that he has not yet begun his investigation of the fire and its cause is as yet undetermined. He expects reports of damage figures to the building to be high.

OVER OR UNDER-SPENDING

Some people spend more than they can afford when buying a house. Equally painful is the mistake of buying the most economical possible house and then suffering through its shortcomings.

How much expense can afford for a house may vary. This is a very personal decision. There are guidelines, of course, strategies that budding families use for building expenses. But - like the "height weight" charts printed on scales - these are only averages.

Don't hold back if you feel you can exceed the guidelines. When you are reasonable and sufficiently disciplined to economize on other expenses, you can get a better house than the average calls for. A good house may seem costly, but the rewards are well worth it. Investing in a house that's a little more expensive gives you an excellent inflation hedge while your whole family enjoys a better place to live. And often, the resale opportunity is brighter.

Three-car Crash Includes Cruiser

PICTON — A three-car collision involving a police cruiser on Highway 14 early today caused an estimated $1,625 damage and minor injuries to one passenger.

Constable Arthur Wetherup, 22, of RR1, Bloomfield, was checking a parked vehicle from his cruiser after midnight when it was struck by an oncoming car driven by Gerald Mountenay, 22, of Picton.

The impact of the collision forced the parked vehicle into 23, of RR2, Milford, received a severe head blow in the accident.

The police cruiser. Damage to the parked car owned by Beverley Smith of Dover Bell was estimated at $300. Approximately $700 damage was reported to the Mountenay car. The police cruiser received an estimated $125 damage.

Prisoner Bled White

KINGSTON, Ont (CP) — The body of Cobbles Bay penitentiary convict Terrance M Landry, 34, had been "bled white" by multiple stab wounds, a prison surgeon testified Monday.

Dr. John Jarvis of Kingston told an Ontario Supreme Court jury that Landry had been dead for several hours—his body stuffed under a cell cot—when the doctor was called March 18 to the medium-security prison.

Dr. Jarvis was one of nine witnesses who have testified at the non-capital murder trial of prisoners Curtis J Agnew, 28, and Leo M Mallett, 36, both of Sault Ste Marie, Ont, charged with Landry's death.

A prisoner, whose identity was withheld by the court, testified that he "observed blood tracks and footprints—which extended from cell 28 all the way down to cell 15—which is Mallett's cell"

Earlier, the prisoner testified he had seen both Mallett and Agnew washing blood off their hands shortly after a disturbance erupted in the cell block to his.

The murder weapon was identified by Constable James D Ryan of Belleville, Ont., as an 11-inch hunting knife with a six-inch blade sharpened on one side. The knife was found in a wastepaper basket at the west end of the cell-block range. It had been placed in a paper bag with the blade through the bottom of the bag and the handle wrapped in tissue paper.

Another prisoner—also identified by the court, testified that he too observed blood on Mallett's clothes immediately after the disturbance.

The trial continues today before Mr. Justice Abraham Lieff.

Storm Damage Closes School

PICTON — Prince Edward Collegiate Institute was closed today following storm damage to a transformer mechanism supplying power to the building.

Ernest Short, business administrator for the Prince Edward County Board of Education, said that electrical storm repairmen were needed to assist the Public Utilities Commission in restoring the transformer.

All classes at PECI were cancelled today since there was no light or heat in the school. Mr. Short said that necessary repairs probably will be completed by today and night school classes will continue as usual.

'Belle' For Sale

The possible closing of the Belle theatre is a blow to the downtown area and to entertainment in the city.

But the declining economics of movie entertainment, plus the fact there are three other cinemas in town make such a move readily understandable.

Then too there must be something in the quality of the entertainment itself which is affecting attendance. Times of course are changing and we change with them, but it is not a fact that movie fare in general today is less appealing than it was in the past. Aside from the occasional presentation from Walt Disney's studios there is not much any more that passes for "family entertainment." The stars who graced many a film in the not so distant past are retired or semi-retired or involved in television, itself a medium that militates against cinemagoing.

The Park theatre reportedly is being retained, in which case it will be advantageous if the present fare being offered there is broadened to include all types of story themes.

Within our own memory The Park once offered considerable variety. We seem to recall an amusing color film there featuring Elizabeth Montgomery of "Bewitched" television fame and a re intelligent Swedish film, in black-and-white, which combined Scandinavian realism with humor and sensitivity.

However we can count on one hand the number of times we have been to The Park in the last five years: Bonny and Clyde back at the beginning of 1969, Fanny Hill (also with a Swedish cast) and a couple of travelogues which attracted a fair following.

Even if Belle falls and there will still be three theatres, The Park and the two at The Mall. Between them there should be variety enough for everyone.

Community Effort

The United Way campaign still has a fair distance to go on the road to its $140,000 objective. Costs are up, as everyone knows, and the needs of the various organizations involved are greater than ever.

As we lit it is a community campaign that depends on community support. Let everyone give then to the best of his ability.

Another worthy community effort coming up is the Canadian Cancer Crusade November 8-10. No fewer than 19 Quinte-area sporting and recreational groups are participating and the $25,000 it is hoped to raise will benefit them as well as Rotary's other community initiatives.

The second Skatathon is going to be fun for the youngsters and each lap they complete or each donation of 50 will add to the coffers pledged by community sponsors.

These are two major community initiatives in Belleville and they deserve all the support they can get.

Police Action

Notice that short paragraph the other day about police in London ordering a shot of a machine-gun wielding Arab removed from a film being made at Heathrow airport?

In the nature of things these days such action — in effect censorship — may be deemed justifiable. The death in Munich recently of a young woman after she had been doused with gasoline and set alight by a gang of youths was followed in Miami recently by a similar incident involving three derelicts. One died from his injuries and two boys aged 12 and 13 have been charged in connection with the affair.

The Boston tragedy itself followed showing of a movie in which the whip which apparently included a scene of such a happening.

It is really no wonder acts of violence occur in our society when all around, in movies and magazines and literature, people are exposed to lurid and suggestive behavior. This cannot help but result in further manifestations of offbeat and erratic behavior, especially on the part of the unstable. Society must reap the consequences.

Lucky In Our Institutions But No Room For Smugness

By JOHN D. HARRISON
Foreign Affairs Analyst
Thomson News Service

Canadians have often taken an unprovincial, ballot-box-thou attitude about many American institutions: do not misunderstand me, chiefly the presidential form of government.

This has often centred in the past on the arrogant and suffering expression "thank God we still have British institutions in this country."

Well, arrogant though it may be and infuriating to whatever liberal form of a constitution we will have in Canada by the end of the century, the incredible Agnew-Nixon performance in the U.S. and the resultant constitutional crisis would be impossible here with our British parliamentary system.

And perhaps given the unique, bizarre and once-considered totally impossible events which have unravelled in Washington since the spring, maybe we should "thank God" for the radical British system we live under.

God knows too that we have had political leaders in our past who have thrown the country into turmoil, not the least being the distinguished and too often drunken poet, Sir John A. Macdonald, the Father of our Country who brought on the Pacific Scandal of 1872 and his own temporary debacle.

By comparison with events then and since the Pacific Scandal was perhaps the worst prime ministerial crisis. It came in conjunction with the 1873 Wall Street crash, the first of its kind of modern times and it was like the crash and depression of 1929.

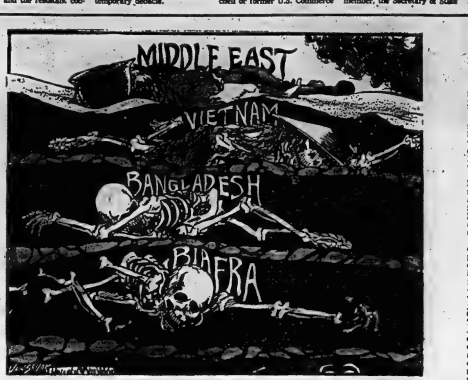
But a wilful prime minister flouting the constitution, setting up posts which would be elective in this country with powerful business and political cronies who have turned out to be crooks and thieves?

That identical phenomenon of nepotism and corruption would be impossible under our system. Veal men like former U.S. Attorney-General John Mitchell or former U.S. Commerce Secretary Maurice Stans both now facing trial, would long ago have been exposed in Parliament since they would not have had equivalent high office in Canada (justice and industry, trade and commerce ministers respectively) unless they had the temerity to take a seat in the House of Commons.

We have no equivalent to a vice-president who is the only executive branch as such separated by the constitution from the legislative branch. (In the U.S. the Congress of Senate and House of Representatives).

When the prime minister is abroad or cannot function in his role, the senior cabinet member, the Secretary of State for External Affairs, functions as acting prime minister.

Presumably he could be as corrupt as former Vice-President Spiro Agnew. But once found out, he could not try and manipulate the courts, the press, even the prime minister and congress measures to stay in office.



He would lose his House of Commons seat and with it his high office before events had moved as far along as in Agnew's case.

And yet we should not be too harsh on Americans in their terrible travails, Watergate and Nixon's deceits falling immediately on a nation already shaken and split since the late 1950s over the Vietnam war.

Our own history has been one writ large with deals, corruption, under-table arrangements made outside of and without the knowledge of legislature. Our nation-binding iron roads were built as a result of horrendous wheeling and dealing.

Newfoundland's former premier Joseph Smallwood has never been contrite about some of the deals he made and some of the cronies he encouraged. Remember his massive Caldmanite scandal of the early 1950s? Perhaps you don't.

In the face of America's travails we should practice caution not complacency.

Electrification Study Under Way by CP Rail

By JOSEPH MA
CALGARY (CP) — Canadian Pacific Railway, studying the feasibility of electrification for the fifth time in its history, says it is only a matter of time before electric locomotives replace diesel-electric units.

CP Rail first considered electrifying its locomotives in 1925. Other feasibility studies followed in 1931, 1935 and 1954 but for one reason or another the railway never got wired to the idea.

Changing conditions and technological breakthroughs now have made electrification more attractive.

Laurie Tufts, CP Rail's supervisor of research engineering, says electric locomotives are far more powerful than diesel-electric ones-up to 10,000 horsepower compared with 4,000 for diesel-electric. Tests also show electric locomotives could achieve traction levels 50 per cent higher than the locomotives now used by CP Rail.

Electric locomotives could be in service for 20 years, almost double the normal life of diesel-electric locomotives, and require less maintenance.

Mr. Tufts said Canada is developing the traffic density required to make electrification a cost-efficient. Railroads needs heavy investments—an estimated $150 million to electrify the Calgary-Vancouver run, which may be one of the first sections to be electrified should CP Rail decide to go ahead.

"As diesel locomotive operators, we are the prisoners of a single fuel — oil," says Keith Campbell, Canadian Pacific's corporate vice-president in charge of rail operations.

"It is a fuel that is fast becoming a pawn on the chessboard of international politics."

With electrification oil would still be required, but coal, natural gas, hydro-power and nuclear energy could also be used, giving the railway flexibility in time of need.

The economic and traffic aspects of the current electrification study were completed in 1971. CP Rail says electrification "could be feasible" for 840 miles of main line between Calgary and Vancouver, and 220 miles between Golden, B.C., and Sparwood in the Crowsnest Pass.

"This is the area which can benefit most from electrification because it is experiencing the fastest traffic growth rate and because of the special tractive advantages of electrically-powered locomotives in mountainous regions."

The size selected for a pilot project of the study is Rossland Peak near Revelstoke, B.C., an area where the annual snowfall and snowslides are common.

A one-quarter-mile-long section of overhead catinary—the electrical wiring structure that would transmit power from plants to electric locomotives—has been constructed at Ross Peak. The test section is suspended from laboratory hardware, but is not being energized.

We fully expect to have difficulty with the equipment because of the weather," says Robert Klein, CP Rail's director of technical research and development.

"But this is precisely why we choose this area. These would be the most difficult conditions we would encounter in the overhauling of electrification. Should we decide to proceed, it will be desirable to have experience in wintertime repair and maintenance of the catenary."

With its advantages, what's stopping electrification?

"A cost of perhaps $30,000 per track mile is a reason that speaks for itself to any investment analysis," said Mr. Campbell.

"I do not suppose that there is any major railroad in North America which should generate funds from internal sources at a sufficient rate to convert itself to electric traction within a decade without substantial injections of external funds."

Pollution Factor

Dr. Shulman's Analysis

Editor,
The Intelligencer.

In your issue of October 18, the Belleville Utilities' Commissioner, one Gerry O'Connor, is quoted as saying that the figure which I gave of 168.3 annual deaths per 100,000 people due to cancer in Hastings County was incorrect. According to Mr. O'Connor "The true figure is only 7 per 100,000 and the provincial average is 8.3. The newspaper and radio stated that 49 in each 100,000 or double the provincial average died each year here of pneumonia and influenza. I presume that they were quoting Dr. Shulman for there are no figures available on this — to Dr. Shulman or anyone else".

I am sure that your readers will be interested to know the source of my figures. After my visit to Belleville I wrote to the provincial department of health, which is headed by your own Dr. Potter to supply me with comparative figures of the cancer and influenza and pneumonia death rates for all Ontario and specifically for Hastings County. I was dismayed but not surprised to find the cancer death rate significantly higher in Hastings than elsewhere and the pneumonia and influenza death rate in Hastings to be almost double that of the rest of the province. If there is any doubt in your minds as to whether your Utilities' Commissioner or myself is misleading the public I would suggest a reporter down to the Department of Health, as the most recent figures are available to me are available to anyone who cares to look.

MORTON SHULMAN M.D. MPP

Editor's Note: Local medical officers (Intelligencer, October 30) have produced statistics to refute, in effect, challenge statements on deaths from cancer and respiratory ailments which Dr. Shulman made, with possible Belleville area pollution.

At the same time Hastings and Prince Edward health officer Dr. C. R. Lenk cautioned against "taking out an interpretation of all statistics for a small area" when hospitalized and have died in area hospitals. As is the case of a Marlitimer, a cancer victim, who died in Trenton.

Dr. Shulman cited figures of arsenic levels in the Moira River basin and of cancer and influenza figures in Hastings and Prince Edward exceeding the provincial rate. The Moira flows through three counties, but Prince Edward is not one of them. In any event there is no proof of any link between these levels and the statistics of illness in either county.

Today In History

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Oct. 30, 1973.

The United States Congress repealed the Neutrality Act, virtually putting the country on a war footing, 35 years ago today—in 1941.

The action was taken because of the sinking of the U.S. destroyer Reuben James by a German submarine off the coast of Iceland, claiming the death of 100 men.

1941—The U.S.S.R. exploded a hydrogen device of at least 50 megatons.

1957—Albertans voted for a wider variety of liquor outlets.

1935—George Marshall, the American soldier-statesman, was awarded the Nobel Peace Prize.

1899—The first Methodist church was dedicated in New York City.

Focus On Pollution Analysis

Editor,
The Intelligencer.

The report published Oct. 23 stating no pollution was coming from the hospital was misleading to say the least.

The Health Officer stated that investigation by that office proved no contamination although the Ministry of the Environment tests on Sept. 26 showed drain No. 1 had a 5-day B.O.D. of 75. parts per million and suspended solids at 238. No. 2 drain was B.O.D.: 152 Suspended solids at 1200. The recommended safe levels is 25 parts per million.

The drain behind Mead Johnson and the test from Corbyville were astroonomically higher. If the problem at Corbyville is "some sort of growth" why is it flowing from the bank into the river?

This health office was wrong in the incidence of Recovirus Desoronis drinking waters and I am sure they are wrong about the quality of water here.

Inspecting these two outlets with hospital officials Oct. 25 we ask the politicians coming out from both drains. Heavy oil was running out from one drain and a smelly, sudsy fluid was coming from the other.

I have in my possession analysis reports dating from Feb. 11, 1972 up to the last report. All show considerable polluting.

Let's stop this nonsense and the politicians.

Inflation Tightening Grip

By VINCENT EGAN
Business and Economic Affairs Analyst
Thomson News Service

Inflation is the world's No. 1 problem.

It is approaching 10 per cent a year—and that could bring on "major social strains."

That's the warning of the one man in the world who is in the best position to know: Emile van Lennep, the secretary-general of the Organization for Economic Co-operation and Development (OECD).

The OECD, the 13-year-old Paris-based group of 24 free-market countries including Canada and the United States, said in a recent report that the public is becoming fed up because anti-inflationary policies don't seem to work.

Mr. Van Lennep, the OECD's operating head, held out little prospect for the success of any of the latest such policies—linking, or "indexing" governments' pensions and income-tax exemptions to the cost of living—in isolation, and seek instead a joint meeting of the Empire Club and the Canadian Club of Toronto.

"It is illusory to imagine that everyone's income can be indefinitely assured by indexation arrangements against a 15 per cent or 15 per cent inflation rate, and not to expect by particular interests to try to jump the queue," said the former Netherlands finance minister.

"This would require an indexation of wages, price, profits, professional fees, investment income, pensions and allowances which no government is equipped to manage.

"This is why I say that recent inflation rates, if continued for long, could bring us to the point of no return—to the point at which the only likely change in the rate of inflation would be upwards."

The major new feature of 1973's inflation is the boom in commodity prices—and the OECD's secretary-general says this boom is not a simple, isolated "accident" of the business cycle.

Rather, he sees a link among the commodity-price boom, the general course of inflation, and the changes in foreign exchange values following the international swing to floating exchange rates.

In a world economy where all countries are meeting more and more in the same business cycle, Mr. Van Lennep contends, that any individual country, on its own, is powerless and that international co-operation is economic affairs is indispensable.

The trouble is that individual countries do see their problems in isolation, and seek national solutions to international problems.

Even more troublesome is the tendency of special-interest groups within each country to anticipate future price rises, and then to assure that their own incomes are increased by more than enough to offset those price rises.

"Familiarity can breed indifference," said the OECD's latest report, "and lead the public to decide that instead of supporting government policies which appear to be inadequate, they are better advised to concentrate on the ultimately selfish objective of trying to keep one move ahead of the neighbors."

Hunters Prey on Dogs

Editor,
The Intelligencer.

At this time of the year again, when families that have pet dogs, looking a little like a wolf, should be warned that their dogs are well protected.

Hunters are not murderers (the ones that can't be bothered to feed and keep a dog all year) plant looking, and any dog that even faintly resembles a hunting dog — becomes their prey. They don't care that it might be the pet of a child, or the companion of a senior citizen, they could care less, they think only of themselves.

The tragedy of the whole thing is that when they find out the dog is not a hunting dog they shoot it or leave it back north, to starve to death.

The fact that a child cries Bambi to sleep at night, or that the heart of an elderly person is broken, means nothing to these cold, spiritless individuals (they hunters and sportsmen!!). They have no disgrace to the word sports-men.

If the person that has kicked the pet in the face had it in their home, we would all be grateful — but I guess that is too much to hope for in this day and age.

After all, our dog had our name, address and phone number on its collar — but I guess that is too much to expect.

So youngsters make sure your pets are safe and secure from these so - called hunters.

NDP Praises Pension Changes But Wants Age Cut to 60

OTTAWA (CP) — The New Democrats plan to press for increased Canada Pension Plan benefits despite a Commons ruling Monday that the plan can be amended only by the cabinet.

House Leader Stanley Knowles (NDP—Winnipeg North Centre) told the House Monday night that his party intends to ask Welfare Minister Mave Lalonde to make further changes when amendments to pension legislation go to the welfare committee for clause-by-clause study.

Mr. Knowles called the proposed amendments excellent and said "as far as I can ascertain, I think a pretty good job has been done." Mr. Lalonde "need not look for much trouble in getting it through."

However, he hoped the minister could be persuaded to lower the pension eligibility age to 60 from 65 because if the person is out of the labor market, that is a fair way to do it.

Mr. Knowles also wants equal rights for housewives. They do not receive pensions under the plan.

The veteran NDP pension spokesman said a husband's wages should be counted as joint income if his wife does not work and she therefore should be entitled to contribute in the pension plan.

Parts of the legislation applying to the public service also need amending, he said, especially sections applying to the widows of public servants.

A man collects a 100-per-cent pension on retirement and, if his wife dies, he still collects full pension. If he should die, however, the pension is cut to 75 per cent.

"The sense of that," Mr. Knowles, "really escapes me."

The bill Mr. Lalonde will take to committee contains none of these changes but Mr. Knowles said he and other opposition MPs will press for them. Inclusion despite Commons Speaker Lucien Lamoureux's ruling.

Mr. Lamoureux endorsed the government claim that the bill is a money bill and, as such, can be altered only to cabinet.

Mr. Lalonde said the bill contains the most urgent reforms to the Canada Pension Plan.

It gives retroactive cost-of-living increases to persons retired since 1967 and whose pensions previously were restricted to two-per-cent annual increments. This means a maximum 30-per-cent increase in pensions for those who retired in 1967 and a minimum eight per cent for those retiring this year.

Desire to Keep Family Farms Faces Pressure

WINNIPEG (CP) — Canadian agriculture faces a conflict between the desire to preserve the family farm and economic and technological pressures for change, the Canadian Bankers Association was told Monday.

Prof. J. C. Gilson of the University of Manitoba said present credit policies of government and commercial lending agencies are designed in a large extent to freeze the existing structure of agriculture.

But if more fundamental changes are desired in the farm industry's organizational pattern, including developing alternatives to the family farm, "it is doubtful of present credit policies are adequate."

He said political arguments for the family farm probably won't be as convincing in future, because of the steady decline in rural population and the shift of power to the urban centres.

Farmers Face Labor Shortage

WINNIPEG (CP) — The president of the Canadian Cattlemen's Association said Monday farm credit must be tailored to the needs of farmers, and an integral part of the farmer's dollar worries is the shortage of farm labor.

George Morris told a Canadian Bankers Association conference on farm credit that before farmers can use capital intelligently, "we must solve the farm labor problem."

Contractor Forced To Drop Projects

TORONTO (CP) — Tiling contractor Gino DaRe, saying there is an apparent conspiracy to shut him out of large contracts, told a royal commission Monday he may be going out of business in a few months after suffering heavy financial loss.

Mr. DaRe accused the Toronto and District Tile, Marble, Tile and Terrazzo Contractors' Association of freezing him out of this group, and he said the union in the trade had forced him to give up lucrative contracts as the price of getting a labor agreement.

Another part of the price of labor peace, he said the Ontario royal commission on crime in the construction industry, was his $4,051 purchase of a 1971 car for Danny DeMonte, business agent of Toronto Local 31 of the Tile-Setters and Terrazzo Mechanics Union.

Mr. DaRe testified that his firm found a "splendid change" in its labor relations after he bought the car.

Mr. DaRe also said he and three other contractors outside the association raised $2,500 in 1968 in response to a "demand" for $5,000 from someone connected with Local 31. He had seen $1,875 of the money—for "unspecified services"—turned over to Chester DeTorri, representative of a union branch supplying Local 31 with helpers.

Other testimony of the contractor included statements that:

—His firm—Mercury Terrazzo Ltd.—had bought round-trip tickets to New York for Mr. DeMonte and Mr. DeTorri at their request.

—A group of fellow contractors who had organized themselves into the Metro Marble, Tile and Terrazzo Association had paid about 1900 to a union member to organize their workers for the union after signing a labor agreement in 1968. But the agreement fell through.

Mr. DaRe said it was not until early 1971—after about three years' of trying—that his firm got a workable contract with Mr. DeMonte's union, after a long period in which the union had "slandered" his firm to general contractors and had harassed his labor force.

In return, the union had forced his company to divest itself of all jobs it had obtained before it had the union agreement.

"I saw about $500,000 worth of work go down the drain," he said. The union had restricted him mainly to smaller residential jobs and kept him out of large commercial jobs.

As a result of the sudden loss of volume, he said, his personally-owned firm had an operating loss of $80,000 for the year ended Feb. 28, 1971.

Wholesale Food Costs Post Drop

OTTAWA (CP) — Wholesale prices of food and industrial goods posted its biggest drop in more than three years in September, Statistics Canada reported Monday.

A companion report also showed some food products manufacturers selling at lower prices last month, particularly for meat, flour and vegetable oils.

However, the drop of seven-tenths of one per cent in the government's general wholesale index last month offset only a fraction of the previous month's 7.5-per-cent increase, steepest for a single month in more than 4 years.

The food manufacturers price reductions in September were also smaller than their previous month's increases.

Hot water—one way to avoid wasting it

Many Ontario families enjoy the dependable service provided by the Cascade electric water heater.

But like all water heaters, it uses energy. So it makes good sense not to waste it.

For example, at one drop per second, a dripping hot water tap can waste approximately 175 gallons of hot water a month; waste that a new washer in the faucet will easily stop.

Lewis Says Mission Includes Arms Firms

TORONTO (BP) — New Democrat Leader Stephen Lewis reserved his assault Monday on a government trade mission to South Africa with the charge that armament dealers and military suppliers are included on the mission.

While 35 blacks chanted protests in the rain outside the Legislature, Mr. Lewis again called for the province to scrub the mission.

Representatives of eight companies are scheduled to visit South Africa Oct. 31, and Mr. Lewis charged that three of them have dealt in defence commodities.

Claude Bennett, minister of trade and tourism, had said the mission could help improve the quality of life in both South Africa and Ontario.

Mr. Lewis said in view of the commodities these companies have dealt in, the mission should be stopped.

He said that Ward Leonard of Canada Ltd., and Perfection Automotive Products of Windsor Ltd., are both listed in the Canadian defence products catalogue or the Canadian defence commodities catalogue.

Another company, MacPhar Geophysics Ltd., has been receiving unclassified contracts for defence equipment under Canada-United States production-sharing agreements.

Mr. Lewis appealed to Premier William Davis to suspend the trip.

Premier Davis said what was relevant to this trade mission was whether the companies are going to South Africa to deal in military supplies.

"We'll never know," shouted Mr. Lewis.

The trade mission has already been the subject of fiery exchanges in the legislature, and church groups have asked the government to stop the mission.

Nixon Seeking Boost In Aid to Pensioners

TORONTO (CP) — Opposition Leader Robert Nixon called Monday for increased financial assistance to all old-age pensioners and the disabled in Ontario to bring their guaranteed monthly income to $218.00.

He told the legislature that the provincial government must go much further in its assistance to pensioners than the proposed annual $50 bonus to those over 65 years of age, who currently receive assistance geared to their circumstances.

He also called for free prescription drugs, dental services, hearing aids and eye glasses for senior citizens currently receiving free service under the Ontario Hospital Insurance Plan (OHIP) and to recipients of the provincial family benefits allowance.

Premier William Davis announced Oct. 4 the $50 bonus to pensioners receiving the supplement—those with incomes of less than $3,100 yearly for a single person and $5,400 for a married couple.

Bill Sets Up Rules For Credit Reports

TORONTO (CP) — Government legislation aimed at providing stiff rules for consumer credit reporting was given committee approval Monday night in the legislature.

If finally approved, it would force credit reporting agencies to open their files to people they are investigating.

During the committee stage, consumer matters, both the New Democratic Party and the Liberals presented numerous amendments, most of which were turned back by John Clement, consumer and commercial affairs minister, as unacceptable.

The nub of opposition criticism has been directed at the fact that it allows agencies to report on personal as well as

Lead Firm Hearing Adjourned

TORONTO (CP) — Opposition leader Robert Nixon lashed government's handling of a lead-poisoning controversy Monday and said Premier William Davis must accept personal responsibility for the matter.

Canada Metal Co. Ltd., was ordered to close a Toronto plant Saturday by the ministry of the environment and the city of Toronto health department after three area residents were found to have excessive amounts of lead in their blood.

Canada Metal appealed the stop-work order which threw more than 300 employees out of work Friday.

At a hearing Monday before Mr. Justice D. A. Keith, testimony was presented by medical experts, company officials and executives of the International Chemical Workers Union, Local 433, as the company sought to have the stop-work order rescinded.

Mr. Justice Keith adjourned the hearing until Tuesday.

INDUSTRY HAS VOICE

The Liberal leader noted that Premier Davis introduced the environmental rights bill two years ago.

Application was so lax, he said, that three persons are in hospital and it wasn't until blood-tests reports were received that a stop-work order was issued.

Too Lenient

Shoplifting — It's A Bummer

Dear Ann Landers: Today I my life. He said, "I believe you.

And, when I think of how close I came to wrecking my self over a rotten $1.95 book I could just die. How lucky I was that the manager was so understanding. Please print this letter for every kid out there who has ever toyed with the idea of lifting. It's a bummer.—Lucky Fool

Dear Lucky: Good letter. Good advice. Thanks for sharing.

Dear Ann Landers: As an amateur astrologer in my fifth year of study, I am accustomed to hearing people who know absolutely nothing about the subject tell me what a lot of garbage it is. These individuals are completely devoid of any knowledge of such elementary things as the Twelve-House System, the Ten Planetary Influences, Lunar Cycles, and so on. They feel they are eminently qualified to decide an art that dates back to the time of the Chaldeans.

In the face of such presumptuous arrogance, the only answer that seems to quiet the vehement clods is a quote from Sir Isaac Newton, who was a prominent astrologer in addition to his other pursuits. When asked why a man of his intelligence and scientific accomplishment believed in such "disreputable nonsense," he replied "Because I have studied the matter. You have not."

Thank you for equal time Ann.—Sea Is The Ninth House.

Dear Sea: Several readers have written to say, "A plague on all your houses," but I am not so quick to pass judgment on a subject that has so many supporters. Thanks for writing.

Dear Ann Landers: I married a man my parents didn't like. I was sure I could change him and that he would be the perfect husband. He had been married twice before and swore that he had learned from his past mistakes. Immediately after the wedding he got into a big argument with my dad. He was drunk and struck my father with his fist. Dad told him never to come into the house again. I said, "That means me, too, Goodbye."

When our child was born I never let my folks know. Dad died the following month without ever seeing his only grandson. I went to his funeral and nearly collapsed when I saw how old and frail my mother had grown in only two years. I was sure I had contributed to it.

My husband left me for another woman a few months later. I am back home now, living with my mother, trying my best to make up for the last years, but it can't be done. Never.—Olive Branch With-

Dear Friend: If ever a letter said it all, yours does.

Shop at A Co-Op

By DORIS CLARK

Are food prices just too much for your budget? Then shop at a Co-Op — or if there isn't one in your community, start one!

That's what a mother did in the town of Lincoln, Ontario. Frustrated with trying to shop on her limited Mother's Allowance, she quickly took up a social worker's suggestion, and started to organize a food co-op. It took 8,000 phone calls and 300 letters, but the original group of 14 members finally got their project launched.

They campaigned for members at $2. per, and also for donations of paint, lumber. Then they rented an old store, and with volunteer help they were in business.

Shoppers will pays small weekly fee of about a dollar, but they'll save much more on staples and other goods sold on a non-profit basis, and without all the frills.

Food co-ops are operating successfully in many towns and cities. Perhaps your community could use one, too!

Dorothy Turcotte.

Dear Doris: My parents came from Europe and took up a homestead in 1908 on the bald prairies where there were yet no roads and it was 11 miles from the nearest town. Oxen were the mode of travel. Many lived in sod houses and the hardships can only be imagined.

My father and mother could only write names in their native handwriting. Their philosophy was to work hard manually and work hard they did. We were the poorest of the poor.

In the depression my father lost everything he had. I only got as far as grade five, but by prayer and good luck I became fairly well off.

Then I had my spinal column fractured and have been on my feet for 19 years. I am confined to a wheel chair, drive my car equipped with hand controls. Have never been on social aid.

Our new house is three years old. I am 62 and now I wonder if I could still learn more! giving up is the beginning of the end.

Where do I get the book "Learning To Learn"?

More To Come

Dear More: I wish everyone had your spirit. You could rise above anything! You can certainly keep right on learning until the day you die.

In spite of pain, paralysis and a poverty-stricken past, you've made $1 lm. heading for the address to write to for "Learning To Learn". It can help people like you no matter what age they are.

There are also correspondence courses. Ask about them by writing to the Department of Education in your province.

World Watchdog

Quality Checks Food

GENEVA (Reuter) — A United Nations commission of 99 food and health experts is continually watching over the quality of the world's food to ensure that it is fit to eat.

It has the task of drawing up international safety standards for all types of food, particularly canned goods.

It also evaluates health hazards arising from anything added to food either intentionally, through the use of such additives as coloring matter, or unintentionally, through residues of pesticides or minerals.

The commission, known as the Codex Alimentarius Commission, was set up jointly by the UN's Food and Agriculture Organization (FAO) and the World Health Organization (WHO) in 1962.

Its recommendations are put into practice by more than 30 countries, mostly in Europe.

So far it has drawn up standards for 100 products, including milk, cheese, meat and a large number of canned fruits, vegetables and fish.

Standards are embodied in a massive codex, which lays down exact criteria for each category of food.

The commission has also evaluated about 400 food additives, such as solvents, colors, preservatives, sweeteners, synthetic flavors and thickening elements, to determine whether they are harmful to man.

Wherever possible the commission makes an estimate of the Acceptable Daily Intake (ADI) of any food additive.

Deliberate and gross adulteration of foodstuffs will harmful chemicals, once practised in many countries, has largely disappeared through the enforcement of food legislation.

But an increasing variety of chemicals is being used to protect crops, livestock and stored food and may present a serious danger to man if improperly used.

Agricultural products may contain minute traces of arsenic, lead and mercury or residues of pesticides applied to crops in the field or during storage.

Canned products may become contaminated with chemicals from processing machinery or containers.

A freight car is useless if it isn't going somewhere.

And to get it going, it takes people.

People like locomotive engineer Al Fuller.

Al typifies the new thinking at CP Rail.

Thinking that has given us an almost 40% improvement in on-time performance on certain key trains.

We improved this service through better planning and utilization of equipment.

We added 1,860 new pieces of rolling stock last year, and re-designed and modified another 4,900.

Then we bought 40 new freight locomotives at approximately $450,000 each.

And spent $11,300,000 on ties.

This kind of commitment is part of the spirit at CP Rail.

We believe good freight service is really a question of good people.

Whether they're forecasting trends, buying new equipment, or ensuring another on-time arrival.

Women in Space - Maybe

WASHINGTON (AP) — Traits of women's response to weightlessness and re-entry stress should be taken at a back-door commitment by the United States space program to put women in orbit, agency sources say.

"That's an awful assumption that isn't supported by the evidence," one official in the National Aeronautics and Space Administration (NASA) said.

The tests at Ames Research Centre in California were announced shortly after an article critical of NASA's all-male astronaut corps appeared in a feminist-oriented magazine.

NASA spokesmen say the timing of the tests was not related to the article in Ms., and that, despite official hedging, the odds are good that a qualified American woman scientist will be in space by the end of the decade.

Dr. George Low, NASA's deputy administrator, in an interview before the testing announcement, laid down only two criteria to be met by women interested in space travel: "reasonable health" and "a reason for going into space."

NASA said the five-week testing program was for "clinical research on female physiology to develop selection criteria for women passengers in space-shuttle missions."

NASA spokesman Donald Zyistra said the tests were "to see how women would react to space flight." He added that "passengers" was a word in the carefully screened news release that did not reflect the fact that all persons aboard the craft would be crew members, that "no one's going along for the ride."

The shuttle—in effect an orbiting laboratory, observation deck and planetarium—is scheduled for first use in late or 1979.

In 1975, a joint U.S.-Soviet mission is planned, with an American astronauts probably coming from the present pool of trained but untapped men and tech pilots and scientists.

And the Spacelab project—Skylab with European partners—could go up just before the shuttle. A new astronauts corps probably will be drawn for that. NASA is now recruiting, and the next open door for women waiting to perform experiments in space.

But the door will only open then for women, Zyistrat says, if the Ames research discloses no physiological barriers to women as space travellers.

Those tests which, it was learned, some space-level NASA officials wanted kept secret, used absolute bedrest to simulate weightlessness, to determine the effects on circulatory, respiratory patterns, endocrine glands and biorhythms.

The last time around, in 1967, 17 women scientists and pilots were screened for the first astronaut-scientist slots and 60 men's names were forwarded to NASA for final selection, National Academy of Sciences records show.

The Ames tests were designed to see how well women can resist the tendency of blood to pool in the legs in space, to determine their tolerance to re-entry forces and to measure specific physiological changes.

Most astronauts to date have been robust test pilots who have experienced shrinking hearts and other bodily changes as a result of extended periods in space.

In the past, the chief of two commonly given reasons for why no American women have got above the ground-support ranks in the U.S. space program was a requirement that all astronauts had to be qualified and experienced jet pilots.

The second was indirect invocation of the budget: it would cost money for research and construction to for women and two spaceship bathrooms, along with accommodations for menstrual periods.

Low dismissed the biological-budgetary argument and said the jet-pilot requirement—dropped in 1967 as a selection prerequisite but maintained as a pre-flight requirement—could also have been waived for at least two well-trained women pilots of the early 1960s.

Low said flight training will not be required or given for the shuttles, in which six or eight scientist crew members are expected to accompany two engineers and two pilots.

He said that if anyone had raised the objection of too expensive spacecraft changes to NASA's early high-budget days, "I would have thrown him out of my office."

This year's Skylab crab incorporated bathroom and bedroom changes for the tests, style. NASA's chief doctor has called hygiene and waste collection systems "completely unacceptable" and said they need to be redone before the long crews are all-male or men and women.

Two active-duty and 10 reservist air force flight nurses were chosen for the tests, NASA said, "because of their medical and flight training. It is not required that they be in prime physical condition like Mercury, Gemini and Apollo astronauts, but their general health is like that expected of space-shuttle flight candidates."

Mountain View, Ca., — Want To Participate In Space Flight — Lorraine C. Schoen, second from right, tells a news conference about five weeks of clinical tests to determine if women were as well suited for long space flight as men. The testing program was conducted at Ames Research Centre in Mountain View, Calif. The women who took part in the tests said they want to go into space and anticipate women in space. They're Living Proof - Roles Can Change

COURTENAY, B.C. (CP) — Mr. and Mrs. Peter Sanford are living proof that a man and a woman can reverse their traditional roles and still have a satisfactory relationship.

In their marriage, the husband does many of the chores around the house and most of the caring for the children.

Karen Sanford is the New Democratic Party MLA from the Vancouver Island constituency of Salmon and chairman of the NDP caucus, while Peter recently took a one-year leave of absence from his teaching job to take over many of his wife's responsibilities.

This year's Skylab crab incorporated bathroom and bedroom changes for the tests, style. NASA's chief doctor has called hygiene and waste collection systems "completely unacceptable" and said they need to be redone before the long crews are all-male or men and women.

Two active-duty and 10 reservist air force flight nurses were chosen for the tests, NASA said, "because of their medical and flight training. It is not required that they be in prime physical condition like Mercury, Gemini and Apollo astronauts, but their general health is like that expected of space-shuttle flight candidates."

Mr. Sanford said he requested the leave of absence from teaching, which he has done for 19 years, because of his desire to help his wife and because "I just needed a change from teaching. After 19 years I felt I was getting into a rut."

He said he feels he can best help his wife by "doing a bit of housework and legwork for her, such as chasing down civil servants to get some answers."

He likes his new unpaid job, he will consider quitting teaching permanently and assisting his wife full time, he said.

"It mainly depends on how my family and I adjust to it."

Since Mr. Sanford was elected to the legislature in 1972, he has cared for the couple's three children with the assistance of a house-keeper, and taken them to Victoria on the week-ends to see her.

Mr. Sanford said he is happy his wife has got the chance "to fulfil a talent and potential she may never have had."

One problem, he said, is "my protective feeling against what I feel is unfair criticism of Karen."

"But I know she doesn't need that help. She is very capable of looking after herself."

New Ovens Hot Stuff

TORONTO (CP) — There is a lot to think about nowadays, if you are in the market for a new stove. In the last few years there have been innovations that go beyond timing devices or rotisseries.

Depending on how much money you're willing to spend, of course, you can get stoves that clean or partly clean themselves, that have smooth cooking tops, infra-red ovens or microwave ovens.

Robert Harris of GSW Appliances Ltd. says he is not convinced people think carefully over the features they want before they buy a stove.

He says; "Think about your cooking habits, and what features you would use. Some look attractive on the floor, but you'll get the range home and may use the feature once."

He says many people buy a stove and refrigerator at the same time and with an amount set in their minds to cover both. If you spend a lot on extras on one, he says, you may short-change yourself on the other.

G. D. Nedkarul, also of GSW, says the demand for self-cleaning is growing, and he says there are two versions.

It sounds complicated, but this is the way I heard it:

"The catalytic system is a continuous clean that has a catalyst in the enamel of the oven that disintegrates fat and splatter. It doesn't do a complete job. If you spill gravy, you'll have to wipe that up.

"Cleanness is a relative thing, and for some housewives, this wouldn't be good enough.

"The self-cleaning pyrolytic oven burns it away at 850 to 900 degrees. Then all you do is wipe away the ashes.

He says the self-clean feature might add $300 to the cost of a stove, depending on what other features are involved.

One of the newest changes is the so-called countertop stove.

The utensils have to have flat bottoms because there is a thermostatic sensor in the stove top that senses the temperature in the pot and turns the heat on and off. If you want to make scrambled eggs, they won't burn if you "cook them."

Mr. Nedkarul says these stoves can cost as much as $900 but that price includes self-clean.

The "gourmet" oven is an extra oven used for rotisserie and broiling. It cooks with infra-red heat, and the oven stays cool while the food cooks.

Mr. Harris, product manager for microwave ovens, says a portable microwave oven now costs about $600. He says the cost has dropped in two years and should come down more.

"What you're paying for is speed. It cooks food at six or seven minutes a pound compared with the normal 30 to 35 minutes.

"One area of limitation is that something that has to be cooked a long time to be broken down, a stew, for instance, can't be done in a microwave oven.

"The other is when you need hot, dry air, to brown a pie crust. It won't do that."

But he says the shrinkage on meat is not substantially and frozen vegetables can be cooked as is, their color and vitamins preserved.

He suggests that if you are comparing brands of microwave ovens, you check the cook book that comes with them. He says most recipes will convert once you're used to the new timing, but a good microwave cook book is a help to start with.

VD Rate Among 'Kids'

OTTAWA (CP) — Concern about the prevalence of venereal disease in the "kid" generation—ages 10 to 14—has prompted federal consideration of more preventive educational material including films.

In 1971, there were 273 young teens under 15 treated for either syphilis or gonorrhea.

"But education programs aimed at youngsters aged 10 to 14 have to be very carefully planned," says a federal health department educationalist. "They have to be tasteful and tactful—but they have to make young teens aware that there are problems associated with the facts of life."

Michael Falks, federal health education consultant, said in a recent interview two films have been approved—one called VD—Kids Get It Too, and the other, Most Common than Measles and Mumps.

More Common than Measles and Mumps was produced specially for the health department by Students Consultants. It is an animated cartoon about two students who have to research the story on VD for their class.

"The film may be used by a responsible adult as a means of initiating discussion on VD and to clear up misconceptions about the problem," says a fil release by the department.

VD—Kids Get It Too is a commercially-produced film and was prepared for Grades 6 to 8. It deals with a 14-year-old girl in hospital being treated for gonorrhea who learns that because she had ignored her infection, she may never be able to bear children.

Both syphilis and gonorrhea are dangerous if untreated. Although they may not cause serious discomfort in the early stages, especially for males, they can cause sterility and even death in later stages.

The health department also is revising and reviewing all its own pamphlets and printed educational materials on VD to ensure that the contents are relevant to today's young people, Mr. Falks said, health workers and to provincial governments for discussion.

Canada Savings Bonds Here are the facts:

Who may buy Canada Savings Bonds?
Every bona fide Canadian resident (adult or minor) may buy Canada Savings Bonds. To qualify as a Canadian resident an individual must normally reside in Canada for the major part of the year and have a Canadian address. Estates of deceased persons may also buy Canada Savings Bonds.

Is the amount which may be bought limited?
Yes. This year the limit has been set at $50,000. A registered owner may not hold or have an interest in bonds of the new Series in excess of this limit. The limit may be exceeded, however, where excess bonds are acquired by inheritance upon the death of a registered owner.

Can I cash Canada Savings Bonds at any time?
Yes. Your Canada Savings Bonds can be cashed at any time at their full face value plus accrued interest. Interest is calculated at the appropriate annual coupon rate for each full month which has elapsed since the date of the last matured coupon. To cash your Bond, just take it to your bank and complete the redemption form on the front. You'll get your money immediately. Canada Savings Bonds are instant cash.

Where do I buy Canada Savings Bonds?
You may buy your Canada Savings Bonds from any authorized sales agent including any Bank or authorized investment dealer, Trust or Loan Company and Credit Union.

Bonds can be purchased for cash, or by monthly instalments on the Official Monthly Savings Plan. Under this Plan bonds may be purchased up to and including November 15, 1973, for a down payment of 5% of face value, followed by 10 monthly payments of 8% each, commencing December 1, and a final payment of 5% on October 1, 1974, plus accrued interest at the rate of 7.54% per annum on the declining balance of the amount outstanding. This accrued interest totals $3.46 per $100 face value.

Canada Savings Bonds may also be purchased at work by regular payroll deduction. Your employer will have full details of this Payroll Savings Plan.

What is the price of Canada Savings Bonds?
You may buy your Canada Savings Bonds up to and including November 15, 1973 at face value. Up to that date there is no charge for accrued interest. After November 15, interest at the rate of 7.54% per annum will be charged from November 1 to the end of the month in which you buy your Bonds.

What denominations are available?
Coupon Bonds are available in denominations of $50, $100, $500, $1,000, $5,000 and $25,000. Coupon Bonds have interest coupons and Compound Interest Certificates attached.

Fully Registered Bonds in denominations of $500, $1,000, $5,000 and $25,000 are available in two different forms. The first form is registered as to both interest and principal, and interest is payable annually by cheque — in this form the Bond does not have the special Compound Interest feature. The second form is also registered as to both interest and principal but does offer the special Compound Interest feature. However, in this case, payment of accumulated interest is deferred until redemption of the Bond.

What happens if Canada Savings Bonds are lost or stolen?
Lost, stolen or destroyed bonds will be replaced upon satisfactory proof of loss or destruction, and the production of a bond of indemnity. Notify the Bank of Canada, Ottawa, and your local police of the loss, giving full details, the denominations, and if possible, the serial numbers.

How long are Canada Savings Bonds on sale?
Sale of the new Bonds may be discontinued at any time after November 15, 1973 at the discretion of the Minister of Finance.

Keep Warm Without Getting Burned

When was the last time you looked in your attic?

If there's less than 6 inches of insulation between that cold air and the ceiling of the living area, you could be in trouble, Mr. Chivers, the current price of oil, that's true enough.

Yet, about 30 per cent of Belleville homes have from 6 inches or less of insulation in the attic according to Norm Schaefer, Bell's Bend Chilvers.

Mr. Chivers says you can correct this problem by adding loose insulation after the house is built.

"Insulation is cheap compared to what you save in fuel."

In fact, Mr. Chivers recently insulated the attic floor of a home for about $30 — an amount he says he says he "easily" saved in one season.

That fuel is more expensive than ever is no secret.

From oil — up an estimated 20 per cent — to propane gas, fuel prices have skyrocketed.

Despite this fact, you can probably apply good old consumer know how to heat. Just like you don't throw out leftovers anymore, you can learn to conserve heat.

First step, according to Mr. Chilvers, is taking a good look at the insulation not only in the attic but in the balance of your heating system. Insulation can be pumped into the walls of the house if you think you've got a problem, weatherstripping, caulking and storm sashed should all be checked, too.

Secondly, get your fuel company to service the heating unit.

Mr. Chilvers says it takes a "good heating man's eye" to judge your system.

If your furnace is more than 15 years old, it may be ready to retire. But Mr. Chilvers adds that if it is less than 15 years old, it's exactly like today's furnaces in all important aspects.

At that, though, your furnace may need small adjustments to make it operate at peak efficiency.

"In newer homes, the workers are working against time and price," Mr. Chilvers says. Adjustments may be economical wise.

Air fans, air filters and the like should be cleaned and checked.

"Especially in a home where there are pets," he says, "the filters clog up really fast."

"And fans will load up with dust and not move any air," he says.

Be sure, when you furnace is checked, Mr. Chilvers says, that the burner adjustment is looked at.

"It's a critical point. If the adjustment isn't right, it'll burn up more fuel."

Once you've heated air, Mr. Chilvers says to be sure you're not letting it escape. There are air openings around doors, around windows and between foundations and the structure.

Plug them.

And if heat can escape through that, broken basement windows.

"It's surprising how much heat can escape through a little opening," he says.

Mr. Chilvers points out that you'll be "spending" every heat if the humidity in your house is low.

In a house without proper humidity, you'll find you have to keep the thermostat three, four-even five degrees higher than normal to get the same "comfort."

"In like summer, it is humidity, you're selling."

A bonus is that in a properly humidified home, furniture and carpets must have humidity to withstand wear and tear.

Just how much you should spend on heat is a matter of variables.

Mr. Chilvers roughly estimated that a home less than 12 years old — say a 3-bedroom bungalow with about 1200 square feet of floor space — should cost about $250 a year in heat with oil at current prices.

If you're heating your home electrically, many of the same hints for saving fuel apply.

An electrically heated home will cost from $120 to $400 annually. The prices accompass typical costs for a 900 square foot bungalow to a large "executive" home.

Electric heating, says Bill Broad, of Ontario Hydro is easier to maintain than other conventional forms of heating and there is generally not a yearly maintenance schedule.

One of its advantages, according to Mr. Broad, is that is sanitary-heaters — one of three forms of electric heat available, is home security — there is room by room temperature control.

This ultimately saves money, Mr. Broad says.

Its usually recommended that a living room be kept at about 72 degrees, a kitchen at 70 degrees and a bedroom at 65 to 68 degrees.

You can also heat your home electrically with a central electric furnace or the relatively new "heat pump."

Mr. Broad says the heat pump is a reversible system of heating and cooling a home without the direct use of fuel.

He says to simplify, it can be likened to a big refrigerator. The heat pump, in summer, draws the warmth from air in the house and releases is outside, thereby cooling the house. In the winter, the process is reversed: the pump draws warmth from outside air — even if its 10 degrees outside and releases it inside.

Several brand names of heat pumps, he said.

Chances are, if your home is new, it is insulated. Its well insulated. During construction, most electrically heated homes are made to conform to rigid Ontario Electrical League standards.

Ontario Hydro has published a booklet — The Wise Use of Electricity — which details many ways to save heat in the home.

First off, the booklet cautions against playing around with the thermostat. For every degree above about 72 degrees, your heating costs will go up about three per cent, the booklet says.

Ontario Hydro expect Bill Broad says that setting back the thermostat about five degrees overnight is not a savings because concentrated running time in the morning will use as much fuel as you saved overnight. Oil expert Basil Chilvers agrees. Several other experts, however, disagree and claim a saving. You'll have to decide that one for yourself.

Economy Checkpoints

Tips for saving fuel this winter from a variety of experts:

—Raise the shades and open the drapes during the day to let all the sunshine work for you.

—Don't expect to dress for July in November. It's wisest — act like it.

—Shut off parts of the house you aren't using; close the heating vents.

—Open and shut exterior doors quickly.

—Don't use your kitchen or bathroom exhaust fan constantly.

—Don't overheat the house so you have to counteract it by opening a window. Don't give the thermostat a shove for a shot of heat when you're chilly. Get a sweater and lower the thermostat alone.

—Keep the fireplace damper closed. Open it's like heating another room in the house.

—Make sure the thermostat is functioning well. Remove the dust cover and clean contacts. Ten-year-old thermostats may need replacing.

—Caulking, insulation, storm sashes and the like must be checked and in prime condition or you'll be heating a sieve. Weather stripping shrinks with age, remember, and a bi metallstrips after a while.

—Keep the humidity up with a humidifier. Clean it, too.

—Make sure cold air returns are clean and unobstructed.

—Change the air filter regularly; as often as monthly in peak heating season. One expert estimates this step alone can save 10 per cent on your heating bill.

—When your fuel company conducts it annual maintenance check, remember the chimney flue must be cleaned, too.

—Turn down the thermostat at night but not more then five degrees.

A properly humidified, well-insulated home should be comfortable at 70 or 72 degrees.

Adults 'Fools' on Kids TV

SASKATOON (CP) — Children should have television programs "that don't just involve them watching adults making fools of themselves," says Jo-Ann Mole of Saskatoon, chairman of a committee which has prepared a report on children's television.

The report, prepared for the Saskatoon Family Service Bureau, says there is virtually no television programming designed for children over five.

Mrs. Mole says older children should have programs that involve them in projects instead of programs that are just for passive viewing.

The committee's recommendations include a suggestion that the Canadian Radio-Television Commission set up a special department to produce a comprehensive plan for children's programs.

The department would undertake research into how television programs affect a child's behavior, set guides for children's programming and encourage the networks to increase such programming.

The report recommended creation of a national committee of parents, teachers and child development specialists that would help develop guides for broadcasters and producers.

The national committee would receive reports from local meetings across Canada where parents, teachers and local television producers would discuss the topic.

"We have to get parents more involved in children's television and give them a chance to state their views about it," Mrs. Mole says.

Copies of the Saskatoon report have been sent to Prime Minister Trudeau, Saskatchewan Premier Allan Blakeney and CRTC chairman Pierre Juneau.

High Home Interest Rates Slow from Gallop to Canter

OTTAWA (CP) — High interest rates are slowing galloping house prices to a canter in some large cities.

But the news is unlikely to cheer prospective home-buyers who still find that single-family houses are out of their reach.

It's like telling a patient he is dying of cancer, not heart failure.

Middle-income earners hoping to buy a house for the first time are squeezed by purchase prices and are being pushed out of the market.

Some housing experts predict another boom in demand as soon as mortgage rates start dropping again. So the "housing crisis" for those seeking single-family homes remains.

The situation varies across the country but in all large cities house prices are up considerably from last year. They have been rising steadily since the mid-1960s but the increase has been sharper this year.

Statistics Canada reports that shelter costs rose 7.2 per cent between July 1972, and July, 1973, the largest increase in four years.

Income rose 12.5 per cent in the same period, much faster than shelter costs. But shelter figures include apartment rents, which have risen less rapidly than single-family house costs.

In addition, the shelter figure does not separate urban from rural costs. The crisis in housing prices is considered more severe in cities than in rural areas.

For example, the average cost of houses sold in Vancouver under the multiple listing service jumped to $38,400 in July from $33,000 in January. This is a boost of 19.4 per cent in seven months.

A spokesman for the Greater Vancouver Real Estate Board said these figures are probably low because most higher-cost homes are sold under exclusive-listing by one real estate agency rather than the multiple listing service.

Multiple listing allows a homeowner to list his home for sale through a number of real estate agencies at the same time. The service is operated across Canada by 74 local real estate boards.

Sales through the service account for about 35 per cent of the residential market and include some commercial properties.

Vancouver is one of the three or four hardest-hit cities in Canada. But, all major cities surveyed by The Canadian Press reported large price increases this year.

The Toronto Real Estate Board said in late August that the average price of houses sold under multiple listing increased by only $99 in August compared with increases of $1,317 in July and $2,190 in June.

However, the average price of houses sold in Metropolitan Toronto was $38,603 in the first eight months of 1973, up from $32,513 at the end of 1972. That is an 18.4-per-cent rise.

The board said steady increases in mortgage rates have helped bring about more "realistic pricing" of houses.

But a one-per-cent climb in home-gage rates between April and August discouraged many middle-income earners from buying at a time when prices are levelling off.

A sampling across Canada reveals much the same story everywhere.

Multiple listing figures comparing the first six months of 1973 with the same period last year show an average price increase of 17 per cent in Halifax, 6.8 per cent in Saint John, N.B., 2.1 per cent in Montreal, 16 per cent in Ottawa, 23.6 per cent in Toronto, four per cent in Winnipeg, 18.5 per cent in Regina, 10.2 per cent in Edmonton and 28.9 per cent in Vancouver.

In some cities real estate agents claim price changes have actually been greater since multiple listing figures do not include all house sales.

A major reason for rising prices almost everywhere is a shortage of single-family homes to meet demand.

Central Mortgage and Housing Corp. has been reporting a steadily declining number of newly-completed unoccupied units despite housing construction at record levels.

Canadian Real Estate Association statistics indica-e that houses are being sold more quickly now than they were three years ago. The 1970 ratio under the multiple-listing service was 3.3 listings to each sale but that was cut to 1.8 in the first half of 1973.

The vacancy rate is 3Flow in most cities. It is 1.7 per cent of all housing in Halifax, less than two per cent in Toronto and about the same in Ottawa.

The apartment vacancy rate in Winnipeg is about 1.3 per cent but less than one per cent in Vancouver. A rate of 3.4 per cent is considered adequate.

Why have housing prices raced out of control? There are dozens of reasons, local and national, including some outside the control of Canadians.

Together they have helped create a climate of frustration among potential home-buyers.

Indian Wildlife Faces Extermination

BOMBAY (CP) — Naturalists fear that the fabulous wildlife of Rajasthan in central India may be exterminated within a decade if protective steps are not taken.

The desert region of the northern province attracts lovers of wildlife from all over the world. Every winter thousands of American, Canadian and European tourists visit the area to watch such fascinating species as the great Indian bustard, a big bird with a majestic gait, and the black buck.

Leopards can also be seen in their natural habitat in the desert province. Last winter, several hundred North Americans camped in Rajasthan to get a close view of this fast-vanishing animal.

Rajasthan's leopards have bright colored spots and are known for their extreme cunning.

Skin and fur merchants from all over the world have been recklessly killing the wildlife of Rajasthan.

An Indian firm has been accused of indiscriminate export of gazelle tails to the United States, Canada and Britain. The colorful tail of this small and bright-eyed antelope-type animal is highly prized as a drawing room decoration in the West.

Naturalists estimate that not more than 500 great Indian bustards now exist in the whole of Rajasthan, while their number was nearly 2,000 a decade ago. They are particularly vulnerable to poaching because of their slow movements.

In crestingly It is the superstition of an ancient tribe that is preventing the total extinction of Rajasthan's rare birds and animals.

The Vishnois, a small desert community, regard black bucks as sacred. According to their mythology, one of their ancient kings managed to escape from his enemies by riding to safety on the back of a black buck.

The Vishnois also regard the great Indian bustard as a divine creature.

When some furriers recently set up camp in the Rajasthan desert hoping for brisk business, they were surprised to find a police party surrounding them. The Vishnois had tipped off the police.

A group of animal-loving Vishnois chased members of an illegal bird-hunting expedition for nearly 220 miles before being able to hand them over to the police.

The Indian government is said to be considering plans for setting up a majestic national park in the Rajasthan desert for the protection of its wildlife.

Occupancy Now Frozen In Unfinished Highrise

Under a bylaw amendment passed Monday by city council, tenants or owners of residential properties still under construction will have to obtain occupancy permits or certificates of compliance before moving in.

The bylaw amendment was aimed specifically at the new 16-storey apartment building on Palmer Road but City Solicitor John Miller said it would apply to all residential construction where a building permit is required.

Under the amendment, the owner of the Palmer Road apartment tower will be unable to rent further apartment units until either the building is completed or occupancy permits are obtained.

Council was told that seven floors of the still unoccupied structure are partially occupied with 77 tenants, representing approximately 100 people having moved in.

MORE

Tradesmen are still working from the 8th floor up and dirty working conditions were said to present a safety hazard to tenants and their children.

The building elevator is still not working. The fire alarm system is not connected and five uncovered electrical outlet boxes were observed.

Mr. Miller said an inspection last week revealed there was no way to prevent unauthorized people from going up stairwells to the unfinished floors and the cage door of the freight elevator was unlocked.

Mayor Robin Jeffrey said that under present conditions if a fire broke out in the building, many people were almost certain to be injured or possibly killed.

"There should be no one living in the building yet," she said.

Tenants already living in the apartment will not be asked to vacate but a list of written requirements has gone to the owner and have already been complied with.

The owner of the building met with city officials late last week and expressed a desire to complete the building as soon as possible.

However, as a result of tradesmen's lions against the building, construction is away behind schedule.

Council was told the owner was prepared to complete the building in approximately three weeks if the lien was lifted.

Alderman Paul Russell suggested that while the bylaw would prevent further apartments being rented, it did not rule out indefinite of those already occupied. He was also concerned about enforcement.

In addition to passing the bylaw amendment calling for the occupancy permits, council voted to instruct the apartment owner that unless he could satisfy city authorities the building will be completed within a reasonable time, council will give consideration to revocation of his building permit.

The city building inspector will report to council in three weeks on the status of the apartment building at that time.

Resident Questions Number of Lights

That is the question being asked by a College Street resident who has suggested to the city council traffic and light committee that too many traffic lights along one artery may encourage motorists to use quiet residential streets.

Reference was to Dundas Street, where it was suggested the number of traffic lights might force drivers to use Bridge Street as an alternative.

The suggestion was referred by Mayor Robin Jeffrey who asked whether the number of traffic light installations might be defeating the purpose for which they were intended.

Traffic committee members didn't go along with the suggestion, however. City Engineer Wilbur Purcell and Police Chief Crosbie said lights were installed only where the accident rate and vehicular and pedestrian traffic warranted.

The same College Street resident has also suggested that no right turns be allowed on Dundas Street onto North Front Street.

Such a move, it was suggested, would allow equal time for traffic on both Moira and North Front Street.

Police Chief Crosbie said the suggestion was valid but City Engineer Purcell disagreed.

He said if right turns on red lights were eliminated, eastbound traffic would stack up on Moira.

The committee requested a report from the police chief on the matter.

Also referred to the police chief for report was a request from an East Bridge Street resident asking that a limit be placed on parking on Bridge Street between John and Charles Streets. The request resulted from the fact that currently motorists are using the north side of Bridge Street in the area in question for all-day parking.

Car Rolls Into Ditch

The Belleville detachment of the Ontario Provincial Police were called out to investigate one of the serious car accident during yesterday's rainshowers.

Around 6 p.m. last night, a car driven by Larry Jackson, 17, of RR 1 Westbourne, went out of control on Highway 401, one mile west of Shannonville Road, and rolled in the south side ditch.

Police report that the car was eastbound on the highway, when Jackson lost control while passing a transport trailer.

Damage was estimated at $1,000. Jackson escaped with minor cuts and bruises.

Hunting Gear Missing

Belleville police may be hunting a duck hunter.

Yesterday they received a report of the theft of a quantity of hunting equipment from an apartment at 29 Wallbridge Road.

Chief Douglas Crosbie said today that the thieves are reported to have stolen a Coleman stove, a pair of hip waders, 10 duck decoys, a tote bag, a pair of work boots and a pair of black dress shoes. The goods have been estimated to be worth $125.

In addition to investigating the reported apartment theft, police are searching for a thief who stole a stereo tape deck, valued at approximately $80 from a car parked on Ingham Street.

Window Broken

Vandals have once again broken the window at the Family Bakery, by the footbridge.

Police report that the $30 window was broken between 9:30 and 10 p.m. Sunday.

Cutting Out 'George'

With Halloween just around the corner, Elaina Maxin, 9, and her 8-year-old brother, David, make an early start on preparations for the witching hours of Oct. 31. However, not only did they start creating their Jack-o-Lantern yesterday, but it was the first time their father gave up the cutting chores. While Elaina held the pumpkin to steady it, (top left), David started the job of cutting the top of the big orange orb. But then both wanted to get into the act. Both hands went into the top of what David called "a Groovy pumpkin" (top right) as their white cat, Purity, watched from safely behind David's leg. An hour after the two started on the pumpkin, grown on their grandfather's farm, David plugged up the head of George, (right) as they named it, while Elaina sat back admiring their first effort.

Baiters Fined $475

The hunting season's first lawbreakers had their day in court yesterday, when seven duck hunters were fined a total of $475 for infractions of the Migratory Bird Act.

Convicted of hunting over a baited area were: John Lietch, William Lietch, Dave Smith, Tom Wood and Michael Lynch.

The five men were arrested by the RCMP Sept. 29 in Tyendinaga Township when they were found hunting from a duck blind on a pond that was strewn with wheat and corn rolls.

Lynch, who is 17, was fined $25, while the four older men with whom he was hunting were fined $100 apiece.

Patrick A. Hewitt and David G. Storey were fined $25 apiece after being convicted of hunting without a Migratory Game Bird Permit. They were arrested in Sidney Township on Sept. 29.

Seniors Get Luxury Tour

Executive members of the Belleville Senior Citizens Club were given a tour of Prince Edward County's wine country on the McDonald's Big Mac Bus, made available through the local McDonald's outlet on North Front St.

The bus, equipped with color TV, stereo, a bar, air conditioning and heating and pick-up windows, seats 18 people in comfortable swivel chairs. McDonald's restaurants of Canada Ltd. director of transportation Barry Williams, said the bus is the only one in its kind in Canada available for charter to any group. Twelve are located in the United States.

However, the company plans to acquire two more buses for the east coast. One will be based in Montreal and the other in Vancouver. The present bus travels out of the company's head office in Toronto.

Mr. Williams said yesterday the journey was similar in size to a Greyhound, can be made available through the local McDonald's outlet.

Manager of the Belleville outlet, Robert Saxby, said people interested in making use of the bus should contact him so he, in turn, can get in touch with the Toronto headoffice.

Mail Routes Will Change

The Post Office reports, through the realignment of carrier routes, there will be some changes in home delivery times.

Jim Wainwright, postmaster, said because of the steadily increasing size of routes, they must systematically be modified every two years. He said some homes receiving their mail in the morning could after Oct. 31, receive mail in the afternoon.

He also commented that as soon as existing delivery needs are met, carriers will be moving into the fringe areas to provide delivery for new subdivisions.

According to the postmaster, each year the number of calls increases by approximately 1,000 bringing two more carriers onto the force.

In a Post Office release, it was explained the changes were necessary and the office apologized for any inconvenience caused through delivery time changes.

Council, PUC to Meet

TRENTON Town council and the public utilities commission will meet behind closed doors Nov. 24 to discuss problems between the two bodies, it was announced at last night's council meeting.

Specifically, financial responsibility for capital costs of two service installations will be discussed. In the past, there had been some disagreement as to each body's responsibility.

This meeting comes after weeks of jockeying for a date when most councillors and PUC commissioners would be available to attend. There was no mention of where the meeting will be held but it is open to discussion. It was suggested the meeting be held in the commission offices.

Children Join Druids Tomorrow

Tomorrow, the children of Hastings and Prince Edward counties will, in their own fashion, join the ancient Druids in celebrating the Vigil of Samhain, the god of the dead.

Halloween, a festive occasion for a long time now, was once shrouded in the blood-stained customs and superstitions of the Druids.

The Druids believed that in the late fall, Samhain summoned, from the realm of animals, the spirits of all those who had died within the last year.

When the moon was full, black cats, who were believed to be altered humans being punished for their evil deeds, roamed the countryside and witches danced on hilltops while ghosts and goblins while the devil played the bagpipes for castanets made from a dead man's bones.

In recent years, the terror of Samhain has been replaced by the laughter and smiles of children.

If parents do not take an interest in their children's fun, however, Samhain and his grisly friends may return to haunt the last night of October.

No magician spell has been found that will ward off accidents and tragedy.

Therefore, Sgt. Robert Hall and PC Brian Turner, the safety officers with the Belleville police department and the Ontario Provincial Police, recommend that parents try their hand at casting out evil by practising the following safety rules:

When outfitting your children, whose light-colored costumes that will be easily seen by motorists. If, however, your children insist on being dark demons, enhance their appearance by adding a ghostly glow with trimmings of reflecting tape.

— Avoid obstructing your child's vision with a mask. Paint them a ghoulish face using cosmetics and burnt cork.

— Make sure your child's costume is not long enough to trip him or to be caught on a fence or bush.

— Haunt a familiar neighborhood and never let young children go out unaccompanied. The best idea is to have children grouped together in groups of four or five under the supervision of a head spook.

— Before you let your children out for the night, throw both a boundary and a curfew and see that they stick to the arrangement.

— Watch out for the safety and the concern shown by children collecting for UNICEF.

— Never allow your children to enter a house or an apartment.

— Insist on having your children bring their treats home for inspection before they eat them. To ensure they stick to this rule, feed them a good meal before they go

Contrary to popular belief, the medals of deceased persons may not be worn by anyone, and is in fact illegal, according to the Director of Ceremonial, National Defence Headquarters.

Hospital Admissions Increase

Admissions to Belleville General Hospital continue to increase but at the same time there is a reduction in the number of patient days.

A statistical report to the hospital board of governors Friday showed that for the first nine months of this year (to September 30) there were 8,199 admissions compared to 8,169 for the same period last year.

However, the number of patient days decreased by 3,868 from 77,6623 to 73,755, resulting in a reduction in the length of stay from 9.51 to 9.03 days.

The number of births at the hospital for the first nine months of the year was up slightly — to 879 this year compared with 858 for the same period in 1972.

Queen's Self Care Unit saw 11,248 admissions as compared with 1,091 to September 30 last year.

Canada's Cancer Control Said Best in the World

"If you're going to have cancer, the best place to have it is in Canada."

That's the advice offered by the director of public education for the Canadian Cancer Society, Mrs. Alice Phillips at the 19th annual meeting of the Belleville and District Cancer Society, last night.

There are three reasons why Canada is the best place to have cancer," continued Mrs. Phillips, "because we have the most active voluntary agency of any country I know of.

"Second, we have built in our doctors and treatment as in no other country. In every province, there is coordination of experts working as a team, surgeon, radiologist, physicists and others.

"And, third, there are the patients themselves. Thanks to the cancer societies, more than 90 per cent with cancer patients enjoy a co-operative patient attitude," said Mrs. Phillips.

And just to show how fortunate, and in some cases unfortunate Canadians are when it comes to cancer, Dr. Phillips provided us with an insight into the effects of cancer in Vancouver.

"I want to take you away from the back yard and have a look instead on the street so you can get an appreciation of our methods when you see what is going on elsewhere.

"First there is the phenomenon of stomach cancer. During the 1900s, this type of cancer was struck at 80 in 100 people in Canada. Now this has been cut to 20 out of every 100 people within a period of 20 years," said Mrs. Phillips. "We don't know the reason for this but in Japan the cancer rate is one of the stomach," he said.

Nine per cent of those stricken with stomach cancer survive five years.

Studies were done on Japanese Nisei grants in Canada who shifted in British Columbia. It was found that among them this cancer was reduced by half to those who stayed in Japan.

The second generation Japanese in Canada were studied and it was found that cancer of the stomach in them was half that of their parents born in Japan.

And in the third generation, it was found they had the same high incidence of this disease as native-born Canadians.

From the diet that was determined as cause of this cancer as further studies soon showed.

"An opposite effect comes from the eating of raw fish.

"This is the most common cause of cancer in Japan but is relatively unknown to Canadians," said Dr. Phillips. "It was thought that the milk and natural curding of tables — was the cause as Japanese women nursed their babies," he said.

"But this was not found to be a cause. Even Japanese women who come here retain their immunity and the milk is not the cause of the breast. The exact cause of the difference is unknown," he said.

Dr. Phillips also told the group of about 75 attending the supper meeting at the Sun Luck Gardens that since the birth of the cancer society it become what is known as "total" society.

For example, natives of Ceylon and India have a form of cancer from chewing what is known as a betel chew, which is a mild drug and is covered with slaked lime and chewed habitually as we might smoke cigarettes.

"Eventually it was found that the slaked lime was the irritant and was causing the cancer of the mouth. It was a social habit difficult to break," he said. "It would take years and years to change. We'd have to think in terms of a generation."

Other racial cancers mentioned by Dr. Phillips were a cancer of the mouth common in India because of the habit of packing the lit end of a cigar into the mouth and cancer of the cervix which is non-existent among orthodox Jewesses.

It seems that when people immigrate they bring their cancers with them, except for cancer of the breast: among Japanese women and cancer of the cervix among orthodox Jewesses.

A problem common to both Australia and Canada is skin cancer caused by exposure to the sun.

"Australians have the highest incidence of skin cancer in the world. The white men working outside is constantly exposed to the sun and this led to blisters. Skin cancer causes a problem for the marine farmers who in the main all day or the construction worker without his shirt all summer.

"The exposure of ultra violet rays is important to lots of skin cancer. The sunbathing factor is not really that important. It is really an occupational hazard," said Dr. Phillips.

Dr. Phillips said there is no country in the world where leukemia (blood cancer) does not occur. Even the Eskimos who were once thought to be immune to cancer, have been found with the disease.

"But all in all our track record is amazing," Dr. Phillips told the Belleville and district representatives of the Cancer Campaign.

We've raised 28-million in Canada this year. We've never failed in this organization. Our clinics have expanded as well as our research and campaign.

In Canada, 165,000 cases of cancer are diagnosed each year. Of this total, about 25,000 will die from cancer from cancer. For women, cancer of the breast is the most easily cured form and hang cancer from cigarette smoking said Dr. Phillips.

"There's something that drives us to help them," Dr. Phillips told the group. "There's something in that we can all do to feel as well as we do. We have an inborn feeling of concern as to others the health we enjoy," said Dr. Phillips.

He summed up his reasoning for helpfulness of the volunteer workers in the closing remarks. Drawing upon an old Arab proverb, he told them: "Each of us has a hole in the head of a healthy man. But only the sick can see it."

Esposito and Parent Setting Pace in NHL

MONTREAL (CP) — Despite off-season knee surgery that left many hockey observers thought would slow him down, centre Phil Esposito of Boston Bruins today is off to his best-ever start in the National Hockey League scoring race.

Esposito has scored 13 goals in Boston's first nine games, and while he led the league in goals last season with 55, he had scored only four in an equal number of games one year ago.

In the 1971-72 campaign Esposito had seven goals after nine games and led at the end of the season with 66. Three seasons ago when he set an all-time record by scoring 76 times, Esposito had only seven goals at this point in the season and didn't score his 13th goal until his 17th game.

If the crazy native of Sault Ste. Marie, Ont., continues at his current pace for the remainder of the season he would finish up with 113 goals.

But Esposito won't get a chance to improve his position tonight as only three games are scheduled. The first, Detroit Red Wings visit Toronto Maple Leafs. New York Rangers travel to Vancouver to face the Canucks, and Los Angeles Kings are at St. Louis against the Blues.

Goal-getting is not the only prowess displayed by Esposito. No team Boston has faced in its nine games thus far has been able to keep him off the score sheet.

In only two of the nine games was Esposito limited to one scoring point. In each of the other seven he managed two or more points.

As a result of his scoring feats, Esposito leads the current scoring race with 22 points—a five-point edge over his nearest rival, line-mate Ken Hodge, who has 17.

Starting third place are Richard Martin of Buffalo Sabres and defenceman Bobby Orr of the Bruins, both with 16 points. Orr leads the league in assists with 12.

Right-winger Yvan Cournoyer of Montreal Canadiens is alone in fifth spot with 15 points. Cournoyer is runner-up to Esposito in the goal-scoring department with nine.

Bernie Parents of Philadelphia Flyers continues his stellar work in the net and leads all other goaltenders despite the fact he has played in all nine games his club has contested.

Parent has a 1.44 goals-against average and has shut out the opposition three times. He needs one more shutout for equal his previous high of four recorded with the flyers in their initial season.

DANNY LAWSON

Lawson Leads WHA

SANTA ANA, Calif. (CP) — Things were beginning to look a lot like last season in the statistical leader department as the World Hockey Association rounded out another week of hockey activity.

Danny Lawson was leading the league in the goal-scoring department with 11. Last season Lawson was the pacesetter with 61. He had his first three-goal performance of the season Sunday in Edmonton, despite his teams' 7-5 loss to the Oilers. Last season Lawson led the WHA in three-goal nights with six.

Cleveland Crusaders' Gerry Cheevers and Bob Whidden are co-leaders in the goaltending department. The lanky twosome had a combined goals against-average of just 2.14.

In the scoring race, A C Tremblay of Quebec Nordiques paced the league last year with 75. This season he has seven to his credit, the league leaders point out.

Last year John Schella was the penalty leader, but he is far down the list this season with only 14 minutes. The current leaders are both from Los Angeles Sharks, Steve Sutherland with 56 and Ted McCaskill with 46.

Davidson Resigns

CHICAGO (AP) — Gary Davidson, the pied piper of new pro sports ventures, Monday resigned from presidency of the World Hockey Association to concentrate on his projected World Football League.

The detonist 39-year-old promotional whiz tendered his resignation as the WHA opened its two-day meeting, saying: "It would be impossible to combine both jobs."

Davidson is president of the new football league planned for 1974 in opposition to the National Football League, just as he founded the American Basketball Association and World Hockey Association as rivals to long-established pro circuits in those sports.

A WHA successor will be named within two months, with Davidson leaving his resignation open until the selection is made by a screening committee headed by owner Nick Mileti of Cleveland Crusaders.

A First For CTV

OTTAWA (CP) — The CTV network has been awarded exclusive Canadian television rights for the 1976 Winter Olympic Games in Innsbruck, Austria.

The network said in a news release Monday that the contract is the first television agreement between the Innsbruck Olympic committee and any television network in the world.

Dr. Karl-Heinz Klee, secretary-general of the Innsbruck Olympic Committee said that a bid for the Canadian rights was also received from the CBC. He declined to name the amounts of either bid, but said that other factors besides the monetary bids were considered before accepting the CTV bid.

PADRES IN LIMBO

SAN DIEGO (AP) — Mayor Pete Wilson said Monday the proposed sale of San Diego Padres to Hollywood Park racetrack owner Marjorie Everett was off, but added that two other possible buyers have been talked to. Him. Meanwhile, he said, the city will push its $12-million damage suit in the event the National League baseball club leaves, breaking its stadium agreement.

Belmont Welcomes Secretariat

NEW YORK (AP) — Secretariat returned Monday to Belmont Park, where he will make his last public appearance Tuesday, Nov. 6.

The New York Racing Association announced it will honor the Triple Crown winner, who won the Canadian International Championship in his final race Sunday, by having him parade through the stretch Nov. 6 at Aqueduct.

But it was at Metropolitan New York's other track, Belmont Park, where Secretariat scored his "greatest" triumph.

"I have to think the Belmont was his outstanding race by far," said trainer Lucien Laurin in recalling the big chestnut colt's performance which made him thoroughbred racing's ninth Triple Crown winner and first in 25 years.

Secretariat won the 1¼-mile Belmont by an incredible 31 lengths in the time of 2:24, which broke the record by 2 3-5 seconds, the equivalent of 13 lengths.

Helen Tweedy, operator of Meadow Stable, admitted after the International Sunday that if Secretariat had lost, she might have considered racing him one more time. But the strapping 3 year-old went out a winner and will head to stud at Claiborne Farm in Paris, Ky., with a host of honors:

—He will be Horse of the Year for the second straight year.

—He is the champion 3-year-old.

—He could be grass champion. His last two races, both victories, were on the turf—the Man o'War and the Canadian International.

Weaver Manager of Year

A Landslide Winner

NEW YORK (AP) — Earl Weaver was a landslide winner, who remodeled Baltimore Orioles from a slow, slugging team into a fast, opportunistic club that recaptured the 1973 American League East division pennant, was chosen today as AL manager of the year.

Weaver was a landslide winner in balloting conducted by The Associated Press before the playoffs and World Series. He received 178 votes from sports writers and broadcasters in outpolling Jack McKeon of Kansas City Royals, who had 91 votes.

Dick Williams, who apparently has left Oakland Athletics after directing them to their first American League and World Series championships, finished third with 41 votes.

Del Crandall of Milwaukee Brewers was fourth with 13 votes, Frank Quilici of Minnesota Twins, Ralph Houk, former manager of New York Yankees, Bobby Wiggles of California Angels, Chuck Tanner of Chicago White Sox and Billy Martin who piloted both Detroit and Texas, got one vote each.

Tanner was last year's winner.

This is the first manager of the year honor for Weaver, although he directed the Orioles to three straight pennants more than 100 victories each year beginning in 1969. After that string, Baltimore slipped to third in the AL East in 1972, but bounced back for its fourth East title in five years this season.

The Orioles, after a slow start, didn't pull away from the field until putting together a 16-game winning streak during the latter part of August. They wound up eight games in front of the second-place Boston Red Sox.

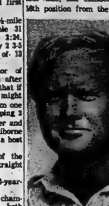
Their 97-65 record gave Weaver a remarkable .542-337 mark for a .617 percentage since he replaced Hank Bauer as manager July 11, 1968.

Weager, 43, is convinced the future might be just as good.

"I said earlier this year that our farm system has produced enough outstanding players for this team to win six division championships in the next 10 years. I see no reason

Mahaffey Moves Up To 16th Position

NEW YORK (AP) — John Mahaffey, winner of Sunday's Sahara Invitational for his first tour title, has climbed to the 16th position from the 35th on the money list with earnings of $118,808 on a record of 16 wins, three seconds, one third and a fourth in 21 starts.



the Professional Golfers' Association money winning list.

Mahaffey's first prize of $27,000 gave him $93,338 for the year, PGA figures revealed Monday.

With an eighth-place finish in the Sahara, Hubert Green added $1,985 to his yearly earnings and regained 30th place among the money leaders with $105,052.

Jack Nicklaus leads with $298,194 followed by Bruce Crampton's $272,301. Tom Weiskopf is third with $240,463 and Lee Trevino fourth with $210,017.

The rest of the top 10 included: Lanny Wadkins, $127,533; Billy Casper, $127,142; Hale Irwin, $118,005; John Schlee, $110,892 and Green.

School Stresses Hockey Basics

By MIKE BRADSHAW
Sports Staff

How many of you fathers out there can tell your sons the proper way to take a wrist shot or slapshot? How many of you can explain the proper way to skate or how to keep your balance on skates? How many of you can actually improve upon them up and coming pros of yours the importance of team play rather than individual glory?

Well you don't really have to worry about having all the answers to your sons' questions because, right now in Belleville there is a hockey school where you can take those stars of tomorrow to learn the correct answers to all their questions.

The place is the Belleville Basic Hockey School: run by four local men all of whom are very knowledgeable in the sport.

Chief instructor, Dr. Lionel Dockrill, says, "we stick to the basics of hockey to its essentials and then when the boys have those down pat we begin to build on them."

Other instructors, Lionel Bolly and Floyd Crawford and administrator Sy Bocchetti along with Dockrill, are trying to teach the basic fundamentals of hockey with the emphasis on skating and the proper use of equipment.

The program consists of two 12 week courses with 100 boys

Quintes Lose

Mark Horwood teamed up with Trevor Powell to score the lone goal as Belleville Quintes goal in an 8-1 Ontario Minor Hockey Association Triple A game minor loss to Oshawa Sunday.

Tops for the Oshawa club was Brian Grey with three goals. John MacLean supplied two singles for Jeff Steffen, Gary Island and Mark Bryant.

also taught dressing room discipline, the right different directions in which to skate and proper balance on skates. Correct use of sticks for shooting, passing and checking is another of the basic things the boys learn.

Straight, sticks are emphasized as they allow more mobility for the player in taking a back hand shot or receiving a pass.

Boys are also taught the rules of a defenceman and forward both offensively and defensively.

One father described the course as "great."

The instructors really know what they're doing."

Another said, "I'm glad they finally got rid of those blessed sticks and learn how to skate and balance themselves on skates properly."

Stretch Streak

The Doctors stretched their undefeated streak in the Gas House Hockey League to five wins in as many games as they defeated the Yardmen 7-3 last night in one of four games played at Memorial Arena.

In the other games, Rollies' Lumber topped Stewart Warner 6-2, Golden Mile downed the Intelligencer 6-1, and Constellation and Chuckwagon Foods tied 4-4.

snowmobile buyer's guide

It doesn't take a lot of money to get a lot of fun out of winter.

Choosing a snowmobile isn't easy. Especially with so many machines to choose from. But Ski-Doo has an idea that'll help you make up your mind. It's called Elan.

Compact size, compact price

Elan is a different kind of snowmobile. A compact. Because it's shorter than full-size snowmobiles, it's more maneuverable in tight situations. And because Elan is lighter than full-size snowmobiles, the whole family can handle it, safely and easily.

Good handling makes Elan a great machine to own whether you're an experienced rider or a newcomer. But, whether you're buying your first snowmobile or your fifth, you'll like the best about the compact Elan is the compact price. It'll take you anywhere the big ones go, for a lot less money.

Full-size track, full-size traction

Although Elan is shorter and lighter than a full-size snowmobile, its track is a full-size snowmobile track. And its ski-stance is a stable 25-1/2 inches wide.

Elan sits on the snow with a ground pressure of less than a third of a pound per square inch. And, carries you through deep snow conditions that leave some other heavy machines wallowing.

A lot of machine for the money

Found for dollar, Elan is a lot of sled. Because Ski-Doo put a lot into it.

A tough and reliable Rotax engine. An endless rubber track reinforced with flexible embedded rods. A comfortable 3-layer foam sandwich seat. Easy access controls. Tinted windshield. And a full one-year warranty.

There are 3 Elan models, from the economy 250 single cylinder (with choice of electric start) to the 250 twin deluxe and the hot T294SS: five ways to get a lot of fun out of winter for a little bit of money. See them at your Ski-Doo dealer's.

Marks Fall To O. J.

O. J. SIMPSON

BUFFALO (AP) — Coach Hank Stram of Kansas City Chiefs said: "Incredible, was the best way to describe it."

He was talking about O. J. Simpson who cracked the 1,000-yard barrier and broke a 30-year National Football League single-game rushing record as Buffalo Bills whipped the Chiefs 34-13.

Simpson, all-American Heisman Trophy winner from Southern California, reeled off 137 yards rushing to increase his total to 1,025.

For O. J., the output was a seven-game NFL record—34 yards more than Jim Brown posted for Cleveland Browns in 1963. Simpson set another mark, carrying 39 times to better by one the number of carries by Harry Newman in 1934 and Jim Nance in 1966.

"I really don't think about records," Simpson said in the dressing room. "Instead, you've got to run and that's what I'm doing. You don't run for records. You just run and the records come."

But Simpson, pointing to Brown's single-season high of 1,863 yards, seemed to be kidding.

"We got 1,000 in the first seven games and we'll go for another 1,000 in the next seven," Simpson said.

The "we" referred to by Simpson were his team-mates, especially the young, aggressive offensive line which has been paving the way for his ground-gaining.

For Coach Lou Saban, it was a big game.

"We had to win one pretty quick."

Buffalo kicked off, the Chiefs missed on a pass and then fumbled. Middle linebacker Jim Cheyunski recovered for the Bills on the Chiefs' 15.

Finley Charges Unfair Treatment

NEW YORK (AP) — The other shoe finally fell Monday for Charles O. Finley in the form of $7,000 in fines, but the headstrong, maverick owner of the Oakland Athletics vowed he wouldn't take the punishment lying down.

"I will appeal two of the fines," the Chicago Insurance executive said from his home in LaPorte, Ind. "It is grossly unfair."

Thus baseball is headed for another fight between the head man of Oakland's World Series champions and the game's commissioner, Bowie Kuhn.

Finley said he is appealing to baseball's 8 six-man council, consisting of the two league presidents, Joe Cronin of the American League and Charles Feeney of the National League, plus four club executives—Walter O'Malley, Los Angeles Dodgers; John McHale, Montreal Expos; Calvin Griffith, Minnesota Twins, and Bob Reynolds, California Angels.

Kuhn said Finley must appeal to the commissioner, that the commissioner is the final authority. The executive council would be unlikely to go against the commissioner.

Kuhn announced the fines in a formal one-sentence statement from his office, verifying what had been anticipated for days and what became common knowledge a day in advance through leaks.

The commissioner's statement merely said the fines were for conduct during the World Series and it remained for Finley to disclose the specifics of his set-down.

He was fined $5,000 for his conduct in the Mike Andrews case. Finley said, $1,000 for an "embarrassing" announcement made over the loud speaker at the Oakland Coliseum during the series, and another $1,000 for arbitrarily turning on the stadium lights when his team's Athletics the 12-inning game. Andrews was left off the team plane, which flew to New York for resumption of the series. The next report was that the infielder was being placed on the disabled list with an injured shoulder.

Liverpool Over West Ham In Cup Play

LONDON (Reuter) — A goal by John Toshack after 22 minutes gave English League champions Liverpool a 1-0 victory over West Ham United in their League Cup second-round replay Monday.

Liverpool's third-round opponents will be either Football Association cup-holders Sunderland or Derby County, who drew 1-1 after extra time in their second-round replay.

Sunderland's biggest crowd of the season, 39,875, saw Derby goalkeeper Colin Boulton save a penalty taken by Denis Tueart in the 39th minute, but 14 minutes later Tueart scored to give Sunderland the lead. Archie Gemmill scored Derby's equalizer in the 79th minute.

An extra-time goal by Mick Wdneasky a 2-1 win over Bournemouth in a tie which went to a total of 300 minutes' play. Wednesday is away to Queen's Park Rangers in the next round.

Celtic edged Motherwell 3-2 in a Scottish League Cup second-round play.

GOES UNDER KNIFE

VANCOUVER (CP) — Don Tannahill, left winger for Vancouver Canucks of the National Hockey League, will undergo back surgery Wednesday. The club said he will be sidelined for at least two months.

Court Lets Firm Reopen

TORONTO (CP) — Mr. Justice Donald Keith of the Ontario Supreme Court Tuesday threw out a stop-work order issued by the ministry of the environment which forced the closure of Canada Metal Co. Ltd.

The order, issued Friday, came after three residents near the plant were sent to hospital with suspected lead poisoning.

In a brief summary, Mr. Justice Keith said his decision was based on the fact that "there was no evidence to warrant that order, having regard to the officer acting in a semi-judicial capacity, not an administrative one."

He said the stop-work order was invalid because the ministry had "not done it judicially" and the plant could begin operations immediately.

Company officials later called production staff back to work.

Mr. Justice Keith said high lead levels in three of 720 persons tested did not constitute an emergency situation or justify closing the plant.

Canada Metal employs about 300 and manufactures lead and lead alloys, including lead oxide for use in batteries and paint pigments.

In the legislature, NDP Leader Stephen Lewis accused the government of deliberately losing the court case.

"You were determined to lose that court case by not calling evidence."

Earlier, Mr. Lewis had charged the ministry of the environment had developed a cordial working relationship with the "industrial polluters" of Ontario.

Environment Minister James Auld said he was "quite disappointed and a little surprised by the court decision."

Mr. Auld said his ministry would not fight the decision but would immediately start further medical examinations.

Peace Role Accepted

Canada Okays Request by UN

OTTAWA (CP) — External Affairs Minister Mitchell Sharp has announced government agreement to take part in the United Nations peacekeeping force in the Middle East.

He told the Commons Tuesday the government has approved UN Secretary-General Kurt Waldheim's request for Canadian logistical support on the United Nations Emergency Force (UNEF).

Defence Minister James Richardson later told reporters the first several hundred Canadian forces personnel could be in the Middle East within about a week.

He said Canada could provide up to 1,200 men to UNEF, although discussions are continuing with UN officials.

As-of-now first UNEF operation of 1956, the Canadians will operate transport, communications, engineering and supply facilities.

Mr. Sharp said he does not expect front-line to take part in patrol activities in which UNEF will oversee implementation of security council ceasefire resolutions on both sides of the Suez Canal.

Opposition spokesmen in the Commons immediately supported the decision, which will come under full House debate Friday. Mr. Sharp told reporters he hopes the first Canadians will be in the Middle East by then.

The UN request for Canadian involvement—and the government acceptance—had been expected even before Mr. Waldheim officially asked for a contingent last Saturday.

The secretary-general considers it vital to the effective operation of the force that Canada provide the logistic support," Mr. Sharp told the House.

He said Egypt and Israel have agreed to Canadian participation, along with Austria, Finland, Sweden and Ireland.

The secretary-general would be limited to the Suez area, although the 13-year-old UN Truce Supervisory Organization (UNTSO) still mans observation posts on the Syria-Israel front. Twenty Canadians are with UNTSO.

Mr. Sharp told reporters UNEF's mandate meets Canada's conditions for involvement: It will be under the authority of the UN, make public reports of findings and enjoy acceptance of the combatants.

He also noted that its estimated $30-million cost for the first six months will be paid from the general UN budget, not a special levy on members.

Core of the Canadian contingent will be supplied by the Canadian Airborne Regiment in Edmonton, although specialists will be drawn from other units, Mr. Richardson said.

Cox Fears New Prosecutor Will Have His Powers Curbed

WASHINGTON (AP) — Archibald Cox has expressed concern that any new special prosecutor named by President Nixon might not have authority to look into campaign-financing violations, wiretapping and and the International Telephone and Telegraph case.

Nixon has promised that a new special prosecutor will be named this week to investigate "what is called the Watergate matter." Cox, fired as special prosecutor on Nixon's orders, told the Senate judiciary committee Tuesday he considers the president's phrase to include only the break-in at Democratic national headquarters and the subsequent cover-up.

"I do not think that definition covers my full jurisdiction," Cox said.

Cox contends his successor operating under Nixon's definition of Watergate would be without authority to investigate allegations that the Nixon administration improperly settled an anti-trust suit against ITT; engaged in illegal wiretapping, and acted improperly in accepting campaign money from the dairy industry.

Cox told the committee Monday that he received, through then Attorney-General Elliot Richardson, numerous complaints from White House staff members about the breadth of his investigation.

Cox was scheduled to testify again today in the judiciary committee's inquiry into his firing. He was dismissed Oct. 20 for refusing to halt efforts to obtain White House documents relating to his investigation.

In testimony before the Senate judiciary committee Tuesday, Cox said he may have been the indirect source of a news leak about a conversation between Nixon and then-Deputy Attorney-General Richard Kleindienst about the ITT case.

The New York Times carried a story Tuesday saying Nixon ordered Kleindienst not to appeal one phase of the ITT anti-trust case.

The story said Kleindienst had related the conversation to Watergate prosecutors.

Cox told the committee he had discussed that conversation with Senators Philip Hart (Dem., Mich.), and Edward Kennedy, (Dem., Mass.), and two of their aides. He said he had been assured neither was the source of the leak.

Cox called his breach of confidence "an error of carelessness" and apologized.

At the White House, a spokesman said Cox's testimony illustrates "the partisan attitude that characterized his activities in recent months."

Kissinger Will Visit Mideast Lands

WASHINGTON (AP) — State Secretary Henry Kissinger will visit Cairo and other Mideast capitals next week as the United States tries to promote peace negotiations between Israel and its Arab foes, officials said.

The trip, to be formally announced today, is considered a prelude to talks between Israel and the Arab states like this year or in early 1974.

Mideast Not Like Vietnam

OTTAWA (CP) — Canada is going into a new peacekeeping venture in the Middle East in a far easier frame of mind than it went into a truce observation mission to Vietnam only 18 months ago.

Canada sent observers to Vietnam, mostly military but some civilians, at the request of the United States, North and South Vietnam and the Viet Cong. It joined the International Commission of Control and Supervision (ICCS) made up of Canada, Poland, Hungary and Indonesia.

It went with extreme reluctance, complaining that the terms of reference were weak and there was no central authority, such as the UN, to report to.

But one constructive thing did come out of it. Canada's objections to the ICCS operations and its inadequate terms of reference were being considered for the UN Middle East force, External Affairs Minister Mitchell Sharp indicated Tuesday.

As described by Mr. Sharp in the Commons, the new UN force will have the things that Canada wanted in the ICCS.

Mr. Sharp said UN Secretary-General Kurt Waldheim says the force must have the full confidence and backing of the Security Council, operate with the full co-operation of the parties concerned, maintain an integrated and efficient military unit, enjoy freedom of movements and other facilities necessary for the performance of its duties and be granted diplomatic immunity.

If Canada had had any guarantees like that in Vietnam, it still might be there.

It Would Be Easy to Beat West-bank Israelis--Sadat

BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

President Anwar Sadat of Egypt said today Egyptian forces could easily defeat Israeli units on the west bank of the Suez canal.

"Militarily this is easy," he said. "The east bank forces of the Egyptian 3rd Army are well entrenched while the rest and larger part of this army is now behind the Israeli forces on the west bank."

But he said he was holding back to avoid more war and bloodshed.

Ben Wicks

"We're winning!"

Sadat's view of an endangered Israeli force conflicted with Tel Aviv's claim that it has the Egyptian 3rd Army surrounded and at its mercy on the east bank of the canal.

Sadat also told a news conference in Cairo that Israel must pull back the troops on the west side of the canal to the lines they held at the time of the first ceasefire on Oct. 22 before he will exchange any prisoners of war. Israel had reported Tuesday that an exchange of wounded POWs was imminent.

Sadat said his officers were pressing him to let them wipe out the Israeli forces on the west bank of the canal but he was holding back to give President Nixon time "to prevail on the Israelis to withdraw.

He indicated Nixon and State Secretary Henry Kissinger, in their talks this week with his acting foreign minister, Ismail Fahmy, agreed that the Israelis should withdraw.

"Despite all the help the United States has given Israel," Sadat said, "I must say that up to this moment it has taken a constructive stand for peace."

Defence Minister Moshe Dayan told the Israeli parliament that Egypt has provided a list of 82 POWs, 45 of them injured, and promised a list of all its POWs within three days.

He said there will be an immediate exchange of wounded prisoners, and Israel will take the first step by freeing 75 wounded Egyptians.

"We asked them for a full prisoner exchange but they have no promise on this," Dayan said. "But once the wounded are back and once the visits of the International Red Cross are taking place and the lists have been exchanged, I believe the full exchange would follow."

However, Egypt's official Middle East news agency said the Egyptian high command ordered a prisoner exchange only after the Israelis "return to the lines of Oct. 22, in accordance of the Security Council resolution."

It was on Oct. 22, before the second Security Council ceasefire resolution, that Israeli forces on the west bank of the Suez canal advanced past the south end of the canal and completed the encirclement of the Egyptian 3rd Army.

Macdonald To Outline Oil Prices

OTTAWA (CP) — Energy Minister Donald Macdonald will make a statement Thursday in which he is expected to announce gasoline and heating-oil price increases for all areas from the Ottawa Valley eastward.

He told the Commons Tuesday his statement will cover the full range of energy subjects raised by recently-imposed increases in the price of crude oil imported from Venezuela and the Middle East.

He also criticized Gulf Canada Ltd. for violating a voluntary price freeze agreed to by all major oil companies Sept. 5. Gulf announced a one-cent-a-gallon increase Monday for all fuels produced at their Montreal refinery.

Museum Threatened By Mountain Fire

LOS ANGELES (Reuter) — A mountain fire leaping from ridge to ridge in the Santa Monica Mountains swept up to the edge of the heavily-populated Pacific Palisades area today and threatened priceless art treasures.

No homes were burned and only one minor injury to a policeman was reported.

A total of fire units fought the blaze which broke out early Tuesday afternoon in the picturesque Topanga Canyon area, a leading artist and hippie colony.

They provided a protective firefighting line for the wealthy Pacific Palisades suburb and special units were assigned to protect the John Paul Getty Museum with its priceless collection of Baroque and impressionist paintings.

More than 200 residents were evacuated from one fire-threatened tract in the Sunset Mesa area Tuesday afternoon.

When a wind change sent the fire racing westward jumping Topanga Canyon Boulevard police moved in to evacuate the town of Fernwood.

All coastal traffic between Los Angeles and the exclusive suburb of Malibu was blocked off.

Judge Rules Car Stolen

A Belleville man was yesterday fined $401 and placed on probation for two years after he was convicted in provincial court of stealing a car from a rent-a-car agency.

Peter E. Vance, 22, of 17 Bridge Street West, was brought to trial before Judge J. L. Clendenning on a charge of theft over $200. He pleaded not guilty to the charge.

In presenting the Crown's case, Assistant Crown Attorney Glenn Doiloe, told the court that Vance had rented a 1973 Chevrolet, valued at $4,000, from Budget Rent A Car of Belleville on July 31 and after signing a contract and paying a $25 deposit, had failed to return the car on Aug. 1.

Vance was arrested by Belleville police Sept. 3 when it was found, after he had been stopped for speeding, that the car he was driving had been stolen.

In testifying on his own behalf, Vance told the court that he had taken the car to Niagara Falls to seek employment and was unable to return it, since he had run out of money. He maintained that he intended to return the car when he had sufficient funds to make the trip to Belleville and to pay the costs of rental.

In passing sentence, Judge Clendenning noted that Vance admitted he knew the car had to be returned on the day specified in the contract and also that he had made no attempt to notify the rental agency of his intention to return the car.

In addition to being fined the equivalent of the month-long rental charge, Vance was ordered to make restitution to the company for the use of their car.

Trailer Hits Truck District Man Killed

A two vehicle-accident on Highway 37, four miles north of Highway 401, claimed the life of a Thomasburg man early yesterday evening.

Edwin George Albert Post, 27, of RR 1 Thomasburg was killed when the pickup truck he was driving north along Highway 37 was sideswiped by a pup-trailer being hauled by a southbound transport, driven by Harry J. Brush, Ewich, 29, of Scarborough.

The Belleville detachment of the Ontario Provincial Police reported that the tractor trailer was rounding a curve in the highway, just south of O'Brien's Bridge, when the pup-trailer swung out and collided with the Post pickup.

Damage to the left rear of the trailer was estimated to be $200, while the pickup truck sustained approximately $2,000 damage to the entire left-hand side and front.

The accident occurred around 4.45 p.m.

Lewis' Questions Industry's Loan

Robert Aitken, manager of the local plant of Allied Chemical, is not aware of any problem in connection with the Ontario Development Corporation loan it received to assist in construction of its Belleville plant.

The comment was made today following a statement in Toronto Tuesday by New Democratic Party leader Stephen Lewis, who said the Belleville plant had not met the five - year employment figures it promised when ODC granted it a forgiveable loan five years ago.

Mr. Lewis said Allied Chemical received a $500,000 loan and has been forgiven payment of one tenth of the total each of the past five years.

The company now stands to have the outstanding total of $250,000 absorbed by the government but Mr. Lewis said it now employs only 39 persons, while five years ago it promised to create 60 jobs in the interval.

The New Democratic Party leader asked the provincial government to provide an accounting for its forgiveable loan program.

Mr. Aitken said he couldn't comment on the company's Ontario Development Loan as this is handled by its head office in Montreal.

"But I'm not aware of any problems," he told The Intelligencer this morning.

Mr. Aitken did say, however, that the Ontario NDP leader was incorrect when he said Allied Chemical had promised to create 60 jobs in the five - year period.

The original job commitment was no more than 40 jobs, not 60, he said.

Mr. Aitken ... official press release on the Lewis statement would be made from Montreal.

Mr. Lewis asked the minister to go through all companies "involved" with forgiveable loans in the first year of the plan when five-year job targets were set and give an accounting.

He said many of the job targets were not met and the government should recover 50 per cent of the loans.

Industry and Tourism Minister Elinor Eamont said the matter would be taken under advisement.

Three Cars Pile Up

TWEED (Special) — Pulling to the side of the highway out of respect for a passing funeral proved costly for three Centre Hastings motorists Tuesday afternoon.

The three cars, all northbound on Highway 62 just south of Moira Lake, pulled to the side of the road during a heavy rainstorm for a southbound funeral procession.

But as a result of the rain-slick pavement, the second and third cars were unable to stop in time and a chain reaction rear - end collision resulted in a total of $800 property damage.

The first car was driven by Mrs. Echo Palmateer, RR2, Tweed, with Wayne F. Cassady, 17, of RR2, Madoc operating the second vehicle and Barbara Lynn Fowler, 23, of Madoc, driving the third car.

The Fowler car suffered worst in the three vehicle mishap with $500 damage to the front end.

PICTON — An Ontario Labor Relations board hearing will be held in November to probe the dismissal of a social worker with the Prince Edward County Children's Aid Society.

Gary Brookes, a worker in the child welfare field, was dismissed on September 19, allegedly without warning. The Federation of Children's Aid Society Staffs (FOCAS) of Toronto has alleged that he was fired because of his organizing endeavors on the union's behalf, Mr. Brookes was a member of the provincial executive of FOCAS at the time of his dismissal.

Garth Dudley, director of the CAS here, has been quoted as saying that he was unaware of any organizing activities on Mr. Brookes' part and that this was not the reason for his dismissal. The social worker was suspended with the CAS and was discharged before this trial period expired.

Graduation This Weekend

PICTON — Graduation ceremonies for students of Prince Edward Collegiate Institute will be held this Saturday night at 8 p.m. in the school auditorium.

This year PECI has a total of 337 graduates, among them 16 Ontario scholars, 73 honor graduates, 231 secondary school diplomas and 19 certificates of training.

Valedictorian for the graduation exercises will be Kevin Quinn of the graduating class of 1970-73. He is now a student at Queen's University in Kingston.

Students have decided on a more conservative menu for the graduation buffet following budget cutbacks. To offset costs an increased number of students have been involved in plans for decoration of the school for graduation this year.

The graduation exercises will be filmed for closed circuit television and shown in several classrooms to avoid an overflow in the auditorium. Later, the graduation will be televised in a 20-minute program on closed loral cable television.

Donald Andrews of the Andrews Decorating Centre, Picton, points to the names of two 19th century steamer ports, Belleville and Picton, seen in a new wall covering pattern. Named the Pioneer Press, the pattern is collection of handbills and sale ads.

New Wallpaper Recalls Early Days in Quinte

PICTON — The nineteenth - century steamer ports of Belleville and Picton are blossoming as wallflowers in the Pioneer Press, a contemporary wall covering from the Presto collection by Birge.

This unusual and attractive vinyl-coated wallpaper is sold at the Andrews Decorating Centre in Picton, among other Quinte-area stores, and features replicas of early Canadian sale and handbills.

The leaflet reproduced by The Pioneer Press pattern advertises an excursion aboard the steamer Rochester from Belleville to Picton to Oswego, Captain for the cruise was J. H. Ledyard.

It was noted that The Rochester would leave Belleville every Monday, Wednesday and Friday "at 2 o'clock afternoon" touching at the Mill Pond at 3:15 p.m. and at Picton by 4:30 p.m. Connections with Oswego and Rome and Oswego and Syracuse roads for all points east and south were promised.

The Rochester's return trips from Oswego were scheduled for each Tuesday, Thursday and Saturday, according to the flyer and would coincide with the timetable of the Grand Trunk Railway east and west and with stages to the gold regions.

"The Rochester will call for passengers and freight at any wharf on the Bay when signals shown", boasts the handbill.

The Rochester, built in Montreal in 1863, was purchased by Charles Gilden sleeve in 1868 and was used for excursions.

The steamer had a finely furnished saloon cabin and luxurious staterooms.

A trip aboard the Rochester is one of perhaps a dozen delights offered by the Pioneer Press. This colorful wallpaper also advertises such sundries as a velocipede "having that much desired feature, an extra wide rear axle". This wonder vehicle was priced at a mere $8.50.

An undertaker's advertisements for made - to - order winding sheets and shrouds can be scanned in the wall covering's lively pattern.

Still another ad offers Ladies' Lace Boots with oil pebble patent leather toe caps "suitable for skating or street wear".

Last Week for Point Anne Plant

Paycheques from the Canada Cement - Lafarge plant at Point Anne will be ended this week for more than 150 workers as the big cement plant closes after nearly 70 years' operation.

"The layoff will be this week-end," stated plant manager R. M. Brannon.

The Point Anne plant, which has meant employment for three generations of Belleville and district workers, is being closed out in favor of a new highly automated plant west of Kingston near Bath.

The Point Anne plant was originally scheduled to close September 30, but a one-month extension was granted by the Ontario Ministry of the Environment.

Dust and smoke pollution from the plant's three big stacks was one of the reasons for the Point Anne plant being phased out.

Mr. Brannon said approximately 170 people were still working at the Point Anne plant and all but a few will be laid off when the plant closes.

During the past few months key personnel were moved from Point Anne to the Bath area plant and altogether about 56 hourly rated employees and 15 or more staff members will make the movie.

Employees previously transferred to Bath required replacements at Point Anne to keep the plant operating, and these, too, will be laid off at the weekend.

During the early autumn a special seven - man complement of the Ontario Provincial Police detachment at Picton will be on hand to assist laid off workers in finding alternatives for the Point Anne workers to be laid off.

With the closing of the cement plant, much of Point Anne's residential area will cease to exist.

The company owns about 32 residences in the village, and with the exception of only a few, these are slated for the wreckers' hammer.

The closed plant will be offered for sale and if there are no takers the intention of management is to raze it also.

In addition to the more than 30 company houses, there are about 45 private residences in the village which receive their water supply from the plant.

Originally it was intended that the plant filtration plant and pump house would be closed with the phasing out of the cement plant, and this would have left the 45 private households without water.

These homeowners however have been given an extension to June 1974 to find an alternative water supply and in the meantime the company filtration plant and pump house will continue to operate.

CFB Military Police Still Issuing Tickets

TRENTON — If you think you're going to get away without paying military police traffic tickets recently declared void by a Belleville Provincial Court — don't bet on it.

Judge J. L. Clendenning, while deliberating over a traffic ticket, found the ticket was of provincial issue and was not valid when handed out by a federally-employed MP while policing federal property.

Figures go as high as 100 tickets a month for miscellaneous traffic offences caught by the MPs of CFB Trenton. These are distributed for only those infractions on government property.

The MPs won't be giving out tickets for a while but justice is going to get some.

Drivers can still be stopped by the military police and have the credentials noted. Later a summons will arrive in the mail with the same effect of pay or go to court.

Fines will be identical to those on the no-longer-used tickets.

A spokesman for the military police in Trenton said it is expected there will be some amendment made to the pertinent act that will once again allow MPs to hand out provincial tickets.

In all the military police patrol approximately 82 miles of roadway in and around the air station.

Curtice Road, running through the housing development attached to the base and leading into Trenton's Dixon Drive has been a trouble spot for the MP. The road runs through a school area and is restricted with a 40 km/h speed limit.

An armed forces 26-mile-an-hour speed limit, spokesman said this stretch of road would soon be increased to 25 miles an hour.

By summons now and maybe later by ticket, if you have a criminal record.

Disaster Donation $1,400

TRENTON — Town council here will charge the village of Brighton approximately $700 for emergency repairs completed shortly after the July 13 windstorm that tore through the community's downtown section.

Once the bill is paid, the town will donate the payment back into the village's relief fund.

Only in this manner can the village apply for dollar-for-dollar provincial government participation. Through the combination of donating public employees' services and drawing provincial participation, the town is making more than a $1,400 contribution to the disaster relief fund. This scheme was approved a Monday's council meeting.

Car Slides Into Bus

TWEED (Special) — Twenty-one children riding a school bus on Highway 14 near Springbrook escaped without injury Tuesday morning after the vehicle was bumped from behind by a car.

Provincial Police said that Carmel E. Wallace, 19, RR3, Stirling attempted to stop behind the bus but as a result of slippery road conditions slid into the stopped vehicle causing $400 front end damage to his car.

The bus, driven by Wayne Shaw, 35, of RR2, Stirling, was undamaged.

Quebec Vote

The result of the Quebec election has been one of the most overwhelmingly positive of voter responses in provincial and national history.

It's federalism yes and separatism no under a Liberal government with a plurality of majestic proportions.

Of course there too lies the rub. Majorities of such one-sidedness may be flattering, but they don't necessarily make for good government. However if Robert Bourassa's Liberal government can maintain the stability and forward look that they have managed to establish in the past then Quebec should continue on firm ground.

The problem — and the danger — is that the Parti Quebecois which forms the small Opposition party has a much greater following in the province than the number of seats they indicate, having won a substantial percentage of the popular vote. While Mr. Bourassa's mandate is an exceptionally strong one, if he is to ensure political and social law and order in Quebec, and the continuation of activities such as were perpetrated by the FLQ in 1970, he will have to keep his ear to the ground where the aspirations of many separatist-minded Quebecers are concerned. But for all that, the will of the people is unquestionably in the direction of keeping Quebec in the mainstream of Canadian life and it has been a personal triumph for Mr. Bourassa.

While the result had been something of a foregone conclusion, if not with such a large majority, it will have been greeted with relief by the rest of Canada. The separatist bogeyman has been laid to rest,

Lively Group

She was standing at the back of the Centennial auditorium — a sweet young member of the Up With People cast — awaiting her cue to dance down the aisle. The audience, arms linked, swayed to the contemporary rhythms of this folk-rock ensemble. Time for only the briefest of conversations; she was from Virginia and she said the cast would be home for Christmas for two weeks before resuming their tour until next summer.

Soon they will be on their way to Europe, bringing the same flame of unabashed vitality to audience there. Up With People, which played two nights in Belleville, is a triumph of the human spirit and of human creativity. For the mainly American cast it is a superb manifestation of the educational process (embracing a tour-study program of the University of Arizona). The company that came to Belleville, smallest of three on tour, is composed of young people from Arizona, California, Colorado, Hawaii, Kansas, New Mexico, Texas and Virginia. One of the lead male performers is from Japan and one of the young ladies is from Bermuda.

One marvelled at the boundless energy and enthusiasm of these young people, their skill in dealing with contemporary dance forms, their total involvement, their loving embrace of the exciting and original music, as both songsters and instrumentalists.

Not since Les Feux Follets were in town has Belleville had a performance such as this. It was almost entirely a student audience . . . but another time their mums and dads should realize it will be their gain too if they go and see Up With People.

Robert Nixon's Win

The man who had entertained notions of stepping down from the leadership of the provincial Liberal party is back at the helm again.

Robert Nixon, thought by many to be too mild-mannered, too lacking in the killer instinct, in short too nice, has shown that nice guys don't always finish last.

But it was an uphill struggle this time and Mr. Nixon acknowledges that many of the lessons of the party convention were for him. That is, if there is to be any upsurge of the party's fortunes it will require more personal effort on his part. As a Liberal of same time let's not underestimate Mr. Nixon. He is no shrinking violet and when he speaks his erudition and grasp of his subject are apparent. He is a man to be reckoned with on the politics' scene.

China Diary: Peking...A New Rome

A Canadian Views The World's Largest Marxist Society

[EDITOR'S NOTE: John D. Harbron, Thomson News Service foreign affairs analyst, visited China during the visit of Prime Minister Trudeau. In a series of five articles here, since then today, he offers the insight of an experienced observer of the international scene to the Red and Since in this ancient but newly-emerging city. The first article, Today's story tells of Peking, the new Rome.]

By JOHN D. HARBRON
Thomson News Service

PEKING: — It's 4.30 in the morning and this great but drab city is coming to life. Its human dwellers are flowing past my hotel as hordes of bicyclists along the curious main street of China's capital, obeying the early working hours of the Chinese peasant.

Undoubtedly many of them were once peasants themselves, called to the city by jobs in state factories or by the endless government offices. Not a single one of them among China's 800 millions is working for profit, else but all for the state in the world's largest Marxist society.

As more light breaks over a distant and dull factory building, its roof replete with the inevitable Maoist sign of exhortation and clusters of red flags flapping in the already sharp morning wind, the skyline of central Peking is visible from where I stand on my hotel balcony.

More and larger red flag clusters on the Great Hall of the People in one direction from me and atop the Hall of Communications in the other. It's a building of distinctly modern style in the style from the former years of Soviet influence here since there is one of them in nearly every Communist capital city from East Berlin to Peking.

In Warsaw and in Moscow the similar building in its Soviet parish collection of dizzyingly ornate cakelike of dizzyingly and ruling central towers is called the Palace of Culture.

In Warsaw the Palace of Culture is so big and covers so much otherwise valuable real estate in the central part of the city, Polish humor nags at the Communist system which built it by saying, "the best place to see the Palace of Culture from is from the Palace of Culture . . ."

Here in Peking, the building to take the breath away is the Great Hall of the People. It is a staggeringly huge edifice in which Prime Minister Trudeau and the Canadian contingent enjoyed two massive, three-course state banquets, watched one of China's revolutionary ballets. It was built in less than 10 months by volunteer labor during the 1958 Great Leap Forward.

The Great Hall's total area according to Hsin Hua, Editor of China reconstructs, the government's industrial promotion magazine and top state banquets' companion, is about the same as the glorious Imperial Palace across the nearby moat Then An Men Square.

During the day while preparation is under way for yet another lavish banquet for which hordes of Great Hall cooks and waiters prepare over rich, elaborate dishes and set hundreds of tables, a tourist in the interior portions of the Imperial Palace is lecturing the young Chinese guides on the buildings of silver. Unlike the indulgent Chinese emperors once squandered on these beautiful palace buildings while China's people starved in squalor.

Ah, the invincibility of China's Imperial system. While the old empire's tottering Confucian edifice was decried by the new sun beaming Mao and Marx, the new rulers have built their own huge edifices while attacking the Confucian old as dating the predecessors for doing the same.

Peking then is a new Rome, this vast pile of the Great Hall of the People and its pleasing external colonnade reminiscent of those at Carthage, Rome herself, the decaying Baalbek in Jordan's arid desert. Like them its columns are topped with the lotus leaf familiar to Egyptians, Romans and Communist Chinese alike.

The sun is up now and the nearby gray and blue Mao jackets before me are thousands of silent, efficient bicycles, still bicycling to work or leaving precariously from street cars or to unseen jobs.

The morning procession. Some of us are driven in cars, others in sightseeing schedule to move freely through Peking's vast expanse. Others are conveyed from getting lost perpetually by our Chinese-speaking guides. They are our monitor if we wish to speak to others in English in spoken.

The most phenomenon of China reported by others before me has begun to fade now that countless gathering the foreign of hordes of Chinese, not yet without movements but cool full of smiles, handshakes and waving arms.

The smiles are bigger if you give a Canada badge to a gawking lapel of in this blue Mao jacket, or as one editor did consistently on these forays, Canadian flag pins. Norman Bethune, the Canadian doctor who served Mao's struggles across in 1936 and who is China's greatest non-Chinese, national hero.

In fact you can walk where you like and when you like here in Peking, unlike the Soviet Union where heavy-handed and gloomy-faced men lurking in shadows, slowly watch your innocent moves.

You are watched in China of course, not only by the conspiring-bound hordes which follow after you, but by the ubiquitous PLA Officers and Comrades Army men in khaki uniform everywhere. Most are unarmed and easily identifiable in that bluegray mass of Mao outfits, where women are indistinguishable in similar baggy pants and loose jackets from the men. The PLA men also obey the foreigner in their midst but prefer not to look their hands or accept souvenirs.

The outsider cannot distinguish PLA member from any officer except for that glint in the eye, that slightly more military man from anywhere which among the hordes is the one who gives but does not take orders, or from the finer cut of a well-fitting brown uniform with its square bright red collar tabs and leather instead of shoddier cloth. All this is clearly say "officer".

After a brief sojourn in China, you quickly become selective about this proclaimed classless society.

There is really "Mao jacket Elitism" that you wonder how it works. Not all of Peking's residents have ready access to the functions of the Great Hall of the People nor to the ever-changing Peking Hotel dining rooms which are parked outside of government ministries in this Marxist country as much as they are in say Communist Yugoslavia, North Vietnam or Cuba.

Your interpreter, college graduates and star students of the Foreign Languages Institute of Peking. High in the packing order, are in constant touch with that growing pheno-

Sadism...Bestiality

Tragic, Brutal, Facts of The Kingston Pen Riot

By RICHARD JACKSON
OTTAWA — Out of the capital punishment debate has come the real, unvarnished, uncensored, unwhitewashed inside story of the riot at Kingston Penitentiary.

It was told to the House of Commons by Toronto Conservative MP Allan Lawrence, who, at the time of the riot, in which two inmates died, a dozen were crippled or maimed, and the prison wrecked beyond repair, was Ontario's Attorney General.

"Savage beatings took place, indescribable acts of sadism and bestiality."

Kingston Penitentiary, he told the House, was built in the shape of a cross, with its centre. "The Dome," reinforced from ground level up through all floors to the top, is the focal of a balconied theatre."

At the centre of the base of the Dome," he recounted the former Attorney General, was a circular radiator.

"The segregated prisoners — those whom the other prisoners call the finks, the diddlers and the sissies — 14 of them, were dragged to this radiator and tied, facing inward to steel chairs chained together.

"All the other inmates were then called by the ringleaders to come out on the balconies and watch the show.

"It started at 2 a.m. with the beating of three 14 men with steel locking bars torn from the cell doors.

"As the turn of each of these 14 individuals came, the ringleaders would call out to the assembled crowd on the balconies, 'Do you like this guy?' And invariably the answer was 'no.'

"Then, first the kneecaps of these men were smashed with the steel bars, their chest cages were crushed.

"Later, indescribable acts were committed with straight razors.

"It was all over by 5 a.m. with most of the 14 segregated prisoners terribly lacerated and horribly mutilated. Some will never move again under their own power. It was a miracle only two died."

Thirteen inmates, known, reported Mr. Lawrence, to police and legal circles as "The Dome," participated in it," he charged.

They were in Kingston, he recalled, for "rape, robbery, gross indecency, one for manslaughter and two previously had been convicted of murder, but their sentences had been commuted.

All faced new charges resulting from the riot.

"Some are now in solitary confinement, isolated, not for the purpose of rehabilitation, not for revenge or retribution, but simply and simply for the purpose of protecting everyone else in the prison," he related.

The report described by his defence counsel to Mr. Lawrence as "Dome brute," another as "all animal."

All of which brought the former Ontario Attorney General to his basic point — that there were some criminals "who are not safe, in prison or outside — some who it is impossible to rehabilitate — whose only purpose in life is to kill."

He specified at the Kingston Penitentiary told Mr. Lawrence that one of the "infamous 13, would not obviously kill anyone who came within three feet, within striking distance of him."

These are the people, he warned in conclusion, who choose to ignore the laws of society, fail to understand the standards of civilization, who do not want and will not accept rehabilitation and who, as long as they are left alive, endanger the lives of the innocent.

Social Credit Get-Together

By DON O'HEARN
Queen's Park Bureau

While Liberals were running around the province and cajoling all the attention with their campaign to elect a new leader, one of our other distinguished political parties had a leadership convention which was somewhat overlooked.

The Social Credit League in Ontario met in conclave at Port Perry and put in effect a new league president and party leader Alcide Hamelin, 37, of Hamilton.

Bob Speers of the Oshawa Times describing the event said:

"A quiet, conservative-looking door manufacturer from Hamilton is the man the Social Credit League of Ontario picked Saturday to lead the party out of the wilderness of Ontario politics.

Mr. Hamelin was quoted as saying:

"We go from here and we grow."

The man may be a good door manufacturer.

If so that will probably remain as his claim to fame.

For trying to lead the Social Credit party out of the wilderness in Ontario is an hopeless as trying to take on the U.S. Marines single-handed.

For more than 30 years Social Credit in various forms has been trying to establish a beach-head in Ontario.

All these times have been serious and considerable effort. Luminous from here and there, sporadically invaded the province trying to conquer it.

There have been mass meetings, great receptions (at one of which the party actually went so far as to serve liquor, normally not in the cup of tea), even a national convention.

But everything has turned out flatter than flat.

The party has never been able to get out of the starting blocks off it.

Candidates have run in all elections but except for one or two instances would have lost their deposits if we had the federal system where candidates must post deposits.

At this convention Mr. Hamelin was a clear winner.

He had 14 votes as against 10 spoilt between two other candidates.

He was not discouraged by the attendance of only 24 delegates (one of them Mrs. Hamelin).

Another official, Bruce Arnold, first vice-president pegged it by far when he said:

"The Social Credit party has always been a sleeper."

Nixon's Policies

Editor,
The Intelligencer.

The Watergate scandal served to remind the rest of the world that all is not well with the government of the most powerful nation on earth.

The nauseating series of political and criminal obloquies involving President Nixon and the team of rogues he chose to surround himself with has all but destroyed faith in the great American army.

The latest incidents surrounding the firing of Archibald Cox and the resignations of other men who refuse to be associated with the particular brand of infamy being peddled by the Nixon administration indicate the need for swift action by the American people.

Mr. Nixon shares with Adolf Hitler the megalomaniacal qualities necessary to plunge the world into global warfare. He should and must be removed from office while there is still a chance for America to re-establish its credibility in the eyes of the rest of the world.

If the American people remain silent and inactive they must share the burden of responsibility for keeping a power mad president in office.

Potter Called Incompetent

TORONTO (CP) — A Liberal backbencher labelled Health Minister Richard Potter as incompetent Tuesday and said the minister was allowing provincial laws to be flouted.

Albert Roy (L—Ottawa East) said the provincial government was allowing the Ontario College of Physicians and Surgeons to enforce legislation prohibiting dieticians from dealing directly with the public.

During a special debate, allowed under legislature rules when a member is dissatisfied with an answer given during the question period, Mr. Roy said the minister wasn't even aware that his own legislation was law.

Earlier in the day, Dr. Potter had said that the legislation Mr. Roy was speaking off hadn't become law yet.

Later, Mr. Roy said all sections of the legislation had become law in July.

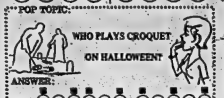
He noted that the college of physicians and surgeons had instructed its members not to give medical opinions about the oral health of a patient because such opinions might be used by dieticians.

Mr. Roy asked whether the government or the dental profession was putting pressure on the medical doctors to do this.

He said either the law was valid and should be enforced or it should be taken out of the lawbooks.

Activities Under Fire

TORONTO (CP) — Stephen Lewis, provincial New Democratic Party leader, said Tuesday the "mismanagement" of four provincial parks by the ministry of natural resources has shown the ministry should not be operating the parks.



He said the ministry has allowed continued logging in Algonquin, development of a heavy water plant by Ontario Hydro in Inverhuron and the establishment of a quarry near Killarney.

Indians Said Frustrated

TORONTO (CP) — The Indians of Moosonee are "frustrated" because they have no voice in the development of their James Bay community, Fred Young (NDP—Toronto Yorkview) told the provincial government Tuesday.

Ontario Drops Plans For Action Over Gas

TORONTO (CP) — Premier William Davis told the legislature Tuesday that Ontario has decided to drop—at least temporarily—its pursuit of Alberta in the courts over that province's natural gas pricing policies.

Ontario had objected to Alberta's proposed bi-price system for gas and threatened court action on constitutional grounds.

Tuesday, in response to questions from Liberal Leader Robert Nixon, the premier said one rate application had been resolved "in a way that the province of Ontario found acceptable."

"As far as the question in the courts or the constitutional issue, we have determined, for the period of time at least, not to proceed with it," he said.

However, the premier said, this decision did not preclude the province from proceeding with the constitutional argument later.

Ontario Firms Won't Sell Arms

TORONTO (CP) — Claude Bennett, minister of industry and tourism, has assured the Ontario legislature that companies taking part in a provincial trade mission to South Africa will not be dealing in strategic or military goods.

He told the legislature Tuesday that the trade mission will sell on a company-to-company basis not on a country-to-country basis.

Mr. Bennett noted there was no ban on trading normal consumer products.

Nothing earlier changes that three of the eight companies have been involved in defence contracts or listed in defence production guides, the minister provided a list of products to be offered for sale.

Trails Planned

TORONTO (CP) — A provincial policy to deal with the "astronomical" need for hiking, skiing and snowmobile trails in Ontario will be stated "early in the new year," Leo Bernier, provincial minister of natural resources, said Tuesday.

He was replying to Bernard Newman (L—Windsor-Walkerville) who suggested Ontario follow Michigan in its pursuit of a trails policy

They Never Say 'I Love You'

PARIS (Reuter) — A remarkable 94 per cent of Frenchwomen are happy with their husbands, says a recently published opinion poll.

But asked their main complaint against their mates, 35 per cent replied: "He never says he loves me."

The poll, carried out for the women's magazine Marie Claire, also showed that, happy or not, as many as 80 per cent of the women questioned believed there would be no change in their situation. Only two per cent envisaged a possible separation.

The interviewers asked 800 married women, of all ages and social classes, working and non-working, a total of 62 questions about their husbands.

Forty-eight per cent said they believed they and their husbands were a very happy couple, and another 43 per cent said they were "fairly happy."

Only one per cent of the women said they were "rather unhappy." No one said she was "very unhappy," and eight per cent did not answer.

Commenting on the figures, the magazine's editors said that while not sure whether to put the 48 per cent of "fairly happy" couples in the category of somewhat happiness or ill that of women who thought themselves moderately unhappy but were too timid to say so.

After analysing the results of the poll, Marie Claire said French husbands could be split roughly into two categories—good and bad, with two-thirds of them good.

Given 57 reproaches they might make against their husbands, women with "bad" husbands hung an average of about 20 around their men's necks, while those with "good" spouses invoked none or only one or two.

Apart from not saying they love their wives, 34 per cent of the women questioned chose as their biggest reproach that their husbands would not accept the slightest criticism.

Other complaints were: Never complimenting the wife when she makes an effort to be pretty (27 per cent), not wanting to go out at night or have a good time (25 per cent) and 24 per cent for such various faults as not realizing things the same way, letting the wife take care of all family problems, not being as attentive as when first married, and not helping around the house. Not being affectionate enough drew 23 per cent and wanting the wife to be ready for sex whenever the husband felt like it, got 22 per cent.

But the survey destroyed some popular notions held here about French husbands. Only three per cent of the women said their husbands made sexual demands that repelled them, two per cent said their husbands insulted them, and only four per cent said their husbands lied and kept them in ignorance of what they had cuddled the house.

Commenting on the significance of the poll's results, Marie Claire said it explained why women's liberation has not made much of an impact in France.

"On the whole, Frenchwomen get along with their husbands. They do not feel exploited by men in their private lives. The cold war between the sexes in the United States has no equivalent here. On the French conjugal front, peace reigns by 15 per cent."

The magazine, in a sort of postscript, asked several women, either well - known themselves or married to famous men, what their husbands' faults were.

Finance Minister Valery Giscard d'Estaing's wife Anne says of life with her husband: "I don't like hunting or clocks, or politics very much. But Valery hunts and collects clocks, timepieces and alarm clocks until they clutter up the house. Luckily he is taken up so much with politics that he hasn't much time for hunting or for clocks."

Activist Fascinated by Politics

ST. JOHN'S, Nfld. (CP) — When Janis Johnson was an undergraduate at the University of Manitoba she once helped lead an anti-government demonstration. The students were demanding a seat on the province's university grants commission and the education minister at the time, Dr. George Johnson, was her father.

"My poor father was told I was one of the demonstrators outside his office," Janis recalls. "Then a reporter asked him if he was going to meet the students."

"His answer was: 'I'll see my daughter when she tidies up her room.'"

Now the wife of Newfoundland Premier Frank Moores, Janis says she's still an activist and tells the story without a hint of regret or embarrassment.

"If you can't laugh at yourself, what's the use," she says, seated in her apartment which directly faces her husband's eighth-floor office in the provincial government building.

Asked if she wants to have children, Mrs. Moores replies quietly: "Yes, I'd like to have a family ... That will come with time."

Women's Council Meets Cabinet

OTTAWA (CP) — The National Council of Women went before the federal cabinet Monday with 16 requests, ranging from admission of women into the RCMP to the need for additional spending on water purification.

Many of the resolutions from the 50,000-member organization involved the question of equal economic opportunity for women.

In one area, Welfare Minister Marc Lalonde gave them short shrift.

This was in reply to a request that basic old-age pensions be increased to $130 a month from the present $105, a request Mr. Trudeau, Mr. Lalonde said, he heard with some impatience.

He said the proposal would cost 1971 million, and would result in the increased cheques going to many who didn't need it. For the same amount of money, the guaranteed income supplement, geared to need, could be increased by an average of $81 a month.

Council President Mrs. Gordon Armstrong of Victoria said she wants Canada to be the best in the world as far as old-age social security is concerned.

"And with the highest taxes," interjected Prince Minister Trudeau.

Successful Living

Budget Energy and Stay Active

By DORIS CLARK

Gradual loss of functional ability is the heaviest burden that aging persons must bear. Awareness of decreasing physical abilities usually begins in the early fifties when, for example, a person becomes aware of using stair railings, pausing before stepping off a curb, or stopping part way up a flight of stairs. Eyes begin to lose accommodation ability, and reading glasses or bifocals are needed.

At about the same time it may be noticed that a whole day spent with small children, groups of friends or relatives, is wearing, and behavior that once was accepted becomes irritating. To conserve his energy a man may refuse a dinner invitation that requires him to dress up on a week end, but he may readily accept a neighbor's invitation to a "come as you are" outdoor supper.

Chronic ailments may add to the older person's declining functional abilities but may not result in a complete loss of function. Maintenance of functional abilities requires their continuous use

How to conserve and budget energy is one of the most valuable lessons the aging can learn.

From Newton's Geriatric Nursing by Helen C. Anderson.

Dear Doris: We have a wedding coming up. I would like to know what the bride's parents pay for and what the groom looks after. Also, is it proper, when there is a bar at the wedding, for people to pay for their own drinks?

Doubtful.

Dear Doubtful: The bride's parents pay the entire cost of the wedding; the bride may help with her personal and household trousseaus.

The groom pays for the honeymoon, the wedding ring, the licence and clergyman's fee, his own clothes, gifts for his attendants, boutonnieres for the men of the wedding party, and a corsage for his mother. Sometimes he also pays for the bride's flowers.

No, guests do not pay for their drinks.

Ann Landers

She Married A Mess — His Mother's to Blame

Dear Ann Landers: I am asking you to print this letter to my mother-in-law because I haven't the nerve to say it—or even send it.

Dear Mom: I love you because you have been good to me, but you did a lousy job of raising your son.

I knew it before I married him so I shouldn't complain, but here's the way it is: When he didn't want to go to school you let him stay home. When he didn't want to go to work, you covered up for him and lied to his boss. He never knew what it was to accept responsibility for himself because you always accepted it for him.

When we married I had a good job, so he quit his. Finally I quit working so he had to go to work. He's been steadily employed ever since.

He didn't believe in God because you decided not to "force" religion on him. You decided to wait until he was old enough to choose his own religion.

This past year he has begun to shape up into a fine human being, something I knew was buried down there. But you left an awful lot of work for me. Twenty-eight is pretty late to start growing up. But I'm sure he'll make it now and I'll be with him because we love each other.—Your Daughter-In-Law

Dear Daughter-in-law: Granted, you married a mess and his mother probably helped mess him up. But what do you expect her to do about it now? The real value of your letter is for young mothers who are raising their children. The lesson here is for them.

Dear Ann Landers: I was amused by the column in which you quoted the violinist Nathan Milstein's explanation for the fact that a great many of the world's finest violinists were Jewish. He said when the Jews were run out of one country after another on short notice it was easier to grab a violin than a piano.

Here's an anecdote about another pushed-around minority. A new singing star, Ellerine Harding, who was raised in the black ghetto of Newark with Sarah Vaughan, was asked if there was anything special about that neighborhood which produced outstanding singer. "I guess there is," Ellerine said. "A person can develop strong vocal cords just yelling for help."—Ana Fan in New Rochelle

Siberian Mystery Offers Field Day for Theories

LONDON (Reuter) — What on earth could flatten 60,000 trees in Siberia with a mighty bang but leave not even a crater?

The question has bothered scientists since the explosion occurred on the night of June 30, 1908. A meteorite would surely have left a big crater.

Theories have ranged from the bizarre to the ridiculous. One was that the blast resulted from the aerial destruction of a nuclear-powered spaceship from another civilization.

Rubbish, say the Russians. Kid that is also likely to be their response to the latest theory from two U.S. scientists. The Americans say they believe the forest was destroyed by one of those mysterious "black holes" from outer space plunging clean through the earth and out the other side.

The "black hole" theory may sound as far-out as the alien spaceship idea, but scientists A. A. Jackso and Michel P. Ryan, writing to Nature magazine from the University of Texas centre for relativity theory, produced some persuasive evidence.

A black hole, according to theory—and no one has yet positively located one—is what results when a star runs out of nuclear energy. Instead of exploding, as with an excess of energy, it implodes—falls in on itself. Its collapsing atoms become smaller and smaller and more and more dense.

So great is the gravity of these black holes that anything within reach, including light, is sucked in and swallowed. What happens to this matter then is really beyond the understanding even of the theorists.

The whole thing springs from Einstein's theory of relativity.

Jackson and Ryan advance the argument that the black hole which struck Siberia in 1908 had condensed to the point where it was no bigger than a speck of dust but weighed many millions of tons.

It might have swallowed up the earth had it not been travelling at "escape velocity"—a speed in excess of 25,000 miles an hour, enough to break away from the earth's orbit.

This speed, the Americans say, meant that it simply drilled right through the earth, gobbling up a million-odd tons of matter en route, and shot out the other side in the North Atlantic somewhere between the Azores and Newfoundland.

They calculate that one effect of such an event would be to cause a great column of blue light at the point where the black hole entered the earth. And they note that this is precisely what eye witnesses reported seeing at the time.

What's more, the sort of temperatures it would generate would cause the scorching found on trees at the centre of the Siberian impact.

And there would be no crater. Just a pin-prick.

But the Russians have some ideas of their own. While still referring to the event as "the tungus meteorite," they admit that no known meteorite could cause that much damage—sheer destruction for 30 miles in all directions.

City Will Get $213,000 For Storm Sewer Jobs

The city of Belleville will receive a further federal government Winter Capital Projects Fund loan of $213,000 to assist in the installation of storm sewers for two West Hill areas.

One loan of $118,000 has been approved for the construction of storm sewers in the Wellington Street area and a second loan of $183,000 is for storm sewers on Catherine Street.

The Wellington Street area sewer will consist of 8,450 feet of concrete pipe to cost an estimated $220,000.

The Catherine Street storm sewer calls for installation of 3,390 feet of concrete pipe and will cost an estimated $260,000.

Under the terms of the Winter Capital Projects Fund, all direct on - site labor costs incurred during the winter months and 50 per cent of labor costs during the, summer months are forgiven.

Two weeks ago the city received word that a winter capital projects loan of $106,000 had been approved for construction of a new skating rink in the city's east end.

City Treasurer Frank Morell today hadn't received official notification of the loan approval for the two storm sewer projects but said he was "delighted" at the news.

He said the two projects, scheduled for the winter of 1974-75, would entail considerable rock excavation which was ideal for winter work.

The Wellington Street area project will see storm sewers Cres., on Burton and Charlotte and also on Highland Ave. and Parker Street.

The discharge for the sewer constructed on Wellington system would be at the corner of Highland Ave. and Parker Street where an outlet was provided as part of the reconstruction of Dundas Street West.

The Catherine Street sewer will replace an existing undersized storm and will run from Sidney Street to the Moira River.

Plastic Mushrooms Sprout with the Rains

Few things can part good friends, least of all, the little bit of rain the Quinte area has been experiencing the past three days. On her way to Queen Victoria Public School yesterday, Cathy Brant, 11 (left) stops to chat with Lori MacInnis, 9, on Foster Ave. Neither of the girls wanted the little rain falling at the time to damage their freshly combed hair, so it was under the mushroom shaped umbrellas for both of them. The girls are likely to be putting their plastic umbrellas to use later this week as the weather forecasters call for uncertain conditions.

School Courses of Study Slowly Being Modified

By JIM SMELLE
Staff Reporter

The curriculum of schools in Hastings County came under a lot of close scrutiny last night.

After six months of being dissected, analysed, debated and generally tossed about, the results of 18 curriculum committees were presented to principals, vice - principals and Hastings County Board of Education trustees.

The results were the answer to certain recommendations the board thought necessary, to improve the curriculum of Belleville and area schools.

These recommendations were: that curriculum guidelines are necessary; that a process for developing and or revising these guidelines is necessary; that available time be provided for teachers to become involved in curriculum planning and that there be continued cooperation between the panels in each of the 10 school groups involved.

The three nine members in the committee for each of the 10 groups were involved: geography, oral French, history, mathematics, language arts from kindergarten to Grade 6, science, creative arts, measurement and evaluation, religious instruction and English from grade 7 to 10.

The members of the 10 study committees were made up of a representative each from a selected Associated School Group in the county, both elementary and secondary.

These study committees came about from the work of the steering committee composed mainly of board trustees. There were three steering committees: one from elementary, secondary and post - secondary.

These committees went into the schools, examined the weaknesses and strengths of the present curriculum and made general recommendations for the study committees to zero in on specific subject areas.

One result was the setting up of pilot classrooms to carry out the revised and improved curriculum. A total of 24 of these special classrooms are now carrying on in Hastings County and there are expected to be between 20 to 60 of these operating before long, said School superintendent Frank Tate.

Each of the committees presented its specific recommendations to the approximately 100 principals, vice-principals, and board trustees who attended the presentations at Centennial Secondary School last night.

One recommendation from the committee studying measurement and evaluation was that standardized testing of students, such as I.Q. tests, should not be imposed on a countywide basis at this time.

To get the point across, the presentation was made in a novel but subtle way. Those school officials who chose to attend this seminar from, the three of the 10 they were to select, had to write each an evaluation test themselves.

The result s were a little surprising, with one participant saying the test was ridiculous and another saying it was frustrating.

Said Bob Falwell, a guidance counsellor at Quinte Secondary School: "We're not criticizing the tests themselves but the way they are given and the emphasis placed on them. The tests tend to make a general comparison between all schools in the county regardless of social or economic differences of the areas the schools are in.

"And teachers object to the time lost in giving the test, the way they are given in a crowded gymnasium or hall, and the validity of them," said Mr. Falwell.

Another school official said that tests, made up in the 1920s and considered outdated in the 1940s, were still being used for testing today.

"We're trying to get away from the impersonal aspect of standardized testing. After all a student should be considered individually: he may have had a rough morning the day he is to take the test," she said.

In the two separate areas of language arts from kindergarten to Grade 6 and geography, it was recommended that the specific subjects could be integrated into other skills taught at school, such as mathematics or science.

Bill Lundy, a teacher of language arts in Marmora, gave an example of the way a skill being learned in language arts could be tied in with mathematics. "A student could use the index as a resource material for finding out where to look when he needs to know about something like fractions."

To make matters easier for those attending last night's presentations, there were available a total of 29 booklets containing anywhere from a few pages to one on music education consisting of over 100 pages.

These booklets outlined the recommendations and results gathered from the various committees.

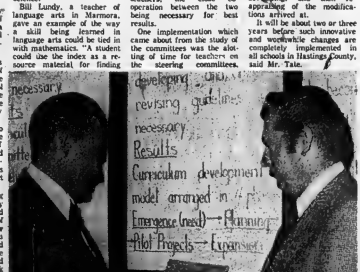
So that everyone had a chance to derive the most benefit from the presentations, the school officials were divided into groups of about 10 to hear three formal half - hour sessions with one free half-hour visit. The presentations used every means from writing a student evaluation test to viewing slides.

Results of curriculum development have been made from nine of the 18 areas involved. The tenth, that of religious instruction, should be finished by the end of the school year and should deal mostly with moral education and the study of comparative religion, said Mr. Tate.

An added benefit resulting from the year's study of the curriculum has been the interreaction between primary and secondary school teachers, the close cooperation between the two being necessary for best results.

One implementation which came about from the study of the committees was the allotting of time for teachers on the steering committees, study committees and writing teams to organize and prepare materials.

"Rather than have the teachers do this after working all day at school, it was decided that four, half-days through the fall terms will be provided to teachers for this purpose," said Mr. Tate.



Mr. Tate said that those working on curriculum development have worked closely with boards in Frontenac and Northumberland counties and with Peterborough, all of which have initiated such a program.

Mr. Tate said that the over - all implementation of the curriculum changes in Hastings County would be a series of minor subtle changes coming about through a series of progressive stages.

First it was decided that the curriculum needed some altering to do away with overlapping in courses and to help the student derive the most benefit from his education.

To do this, the changes were first developed through the committees, tried out and appraised. This brings us to the present stage. From now until next summer, the committees will work on recommendations arising from last night's presentations and then will come replanning, redeveloping and then reappraising of the modifications arrived at.

It will be about two or three years before such innovative and worthwhile changes are completely implemented in all schools in Hastings County, said Mr. Tate.

Talking About Curriculum

The curriculum of primary and secondary schools in Hastings County was the topic yesterday during a curriculum development meeting at Centennial Secondary School. Here school superintendent, Frank Tate, right discusses revisions being recommended in one of 10 subject areas to Bob Horwood, also a school superintendent.

Air Search Intensified

TRENTON — The search for two fliers missing for more than a month in Muskoka area is being resumed today, according to a CFB Trenton spokesman.

An intensive search for the two men was in vain earlier this fall with heavy tree foliage hampering airborne spotters.

The two men had left their home base near Niagara, stopped for refuelling at Lindsay and continued to the Minden area searching for good hunting and camping sites. They were flying a small, single engine plane.

Canadian forces personnel searched briefly Monday for the aircraft but returned to base as weather became poor.

Today, two Twin - Otters from CFB Trenton and a number of Canadian forces aircraft from Toronto resume searching.

A spokesman at Trenton said it was imperative the search bring results soon before snow completely covers the area, ruling out any hope of finding the two fliers.

Man Placed On Probation

A Belleville man, convicted two weeks ago of assault causing bodily harm, was given a suspended sentence and placed on two years' probation yesterday in provincial court.

Garry Lewis Kellar, 19, of RR 1 Belleville, had been convicted Oct. 18 on a charge of breaking a man's cheekbone during a fight in the washroom of a Belleville beer parlor.

The passing of sentence had been reserved until yesterday, pending the preparation of a pre-sentence report by probation officers.

Intersection To Get Lights

TWEED — Huntgerford Township Council has been told it will cost an estimated $260,000 to install traffic controls.

Four Receive Sentences For Series of Break-ins

A Belleville youth, convicted on seven counts of break and enter and one of possession of stolen property, was yesterday sentenced in provincial court to 12 months in jail.

At the same time, three other youths, convicted of related offences, were given suspended sentences and placed on three years probation.

Wade Allen Grier, 18, of 109 Dundas Street East, was given the maximum term after being convicted by Judge J. L. Clendenning of committing a series of break-ins in late August.

Grier pleaded guilty to charges of break, enter and theft on Aug. 19 at Leewen's Heating and Air Conditioning, 640 Dundas Street, at the Lambert Construction Co. in Thurlow Township and at Laddies Gas Bar, also in Thurlow.

Grier also admitted breaking and entering of Seabrose Enterprises, 172 Haig Rd., on Aug. 20; into Bellewood Lumber Supplies, 445 Dundas St. East, on Sept. 28, and into a gas station at the corner of Dundas and Herchimer on January 17.

In addition to the above charges Grier, 18, also pleaded guilty to a charge of break and enter with intent and theft in connection with a break-in Sept. 29 at Emmanuel Baptist Church, 68 Hollow Drive, and to a charge of having a stolen 10 - speed bicycle in his possession on Aug. 30.

The thefts netted Grier and his companions a total of $177 in cash, some soft drinks, a beer opener and a radio.

In sentencing Grier, Judge Clendenning noted that he had been serving a three-year probation term for an earlier conviction of possession of stolen goods when he committed the offences for which he was sentenced yesterday.

Judge Clendenning said that was involving the principle of deterrence in sentencing in the hope it would warn Grier and others on probation to abide by the terms of their probation orders and the law.

Three other youths, David Lennox Sully, 18, of 204 Charles Street; Gerald Roger Carrol, 17, of RR7, Belleville and Donald Denis Harper, 18 of 39 Elizabeth Cres., were and paloed on three years' probation for their participation in the series of breakins for which Grier was sentenced.

Sully was convicted of breaking into Peter's General Store, Peacock's Interior Finishers and Seabrose Enterprises on Aug. 2. He was also convicted of breaking into Leewen Heating and Air Conditioning on Aug. 19.

Carrol pleaded guilty to charges of breaking into Peacock's Interiors and Seabrose Enterprises.

Harper was convicted on eight counts of break, enter and theft and one count of prowling by night.

Fourth On Continent

Sergeant Roy Jackson of CFB Trenton's 424 Squadron placed fourth in "individual honors" at a recent parachute jump competition between Canadian and U.S. military. Sgt. Jackson's A team competed against 37 others to clinch a first place tie in the over-all exercise. They tied with a U.S. team. Team members were drawn from units across Canada and were awarded the Commanders' Trophy for sportsmanship, attitude and professionalism. Here, Sgt. Jackson repacks one of the chutes used by his Search and Rescue Unit.

Rink Sites Cut to Four

Members of the city recreation and arena committee have narrowed to four the number of possible sites for the proposed new east end skating rink.

Tuesday the committee toured the east end of the city and viewed a dozen different sites and later recommended four for further detailed study.

Recreation director Lorne Williams will now do detailed population and accessibility studies for the four sites with the information to be turned over to the city manager for recommendation to council.

Last week the recreation committee decided that a third indoor rink was needed in the city, even though Belleville Yardmen work ahead with construction of their proposed sports complex in Canniffon Road.

The city has been assured of a $106,000 winter capital works project loan and it is expected that the entire sum could become payable.

At its meeting last week, the recreation committee also recommended to city council that an architect or consulting engineer be retained to prepare plans.

A possible new rink in the city's east end has been proposed for at least two years and council has a figure of $350,000 in its 1974 capital works budget for construction of the facility.

Picton Fire Damage Estimated $40,000

PICTON — Fire damage to a Main St. business block on Monday night has been estimated at $40,000 by Picton fire chief Leonard Tripp.

Chief Tripp said that the blaze started in the dark room of Hodgson's Studio, operated by Mary Kinney. Investigation has so far failed to pinpoint the cause of the fire. It is known that chemicals were stored in the studio.

Chief Tripp said that the studio had been closed since last Friday as Miss Kinney was visiting in Pembroke. A tenant in the adjoining apartment, Mrs. Charlotte Funk was in a hallway near the studio when the fire broke out. She fire and did not detect smoke or flames at that time.

The photographic studio was gutted by the fire and extensive smoke and water damage was reported at Wright's Rexall Drugs on the ground floor.

Council Reluctant To Share Services

TRENTON — Before this community commits itself to servicing developments in neighboring Sidney township, it intends making sure it can handle the needs of developers within the town.

This was the outcome of discussions in a recent committee of the whole session and a meeting of council earlier this week.

The application from Sidney Township, on behalf of one developer, was conditionally turned down, though municipal officials are not closing the door.

Already there are cases in the town where developers could not proceed with plans because of inadequacies in the sewage treatment system.

In response to the township, town council sent back a draft of a pilot agreement between the two bodies that might be used onto the local sewage treatment plant problems are solved.

Street Lights Approved

TRENTON — Council Monday night approved a capital expenditure of approximately $14,000 for street lighting projects across the town.

Cost of the lighting program is to be debentured over 10 years.

Fatso 'Born' In 1972

CALGARY (CP) — Ron Hagel gracefully describes himself as one of Canada's biggest losers.

Ron was born 29 years ago at Batelher, 30 miles northeast of Calgary. But his friends say he was really born in 1973, when his friends stopped calling him Fatso.

"My navel never saw sunshine until '72," Ron says as he recalls his years of never feeling like I had any bones."

He was a "chubby" youngster, a "plump" teen-ager and a "jolly" university student. He eventually carried 340 pounds on a five-foot-nine frame.

As an education student at the University of Alberta, he was lonely.

"I'd go to class early to find a left-handed desk so it would be easier to write. I always wore a sweater and a coat—I could never button it—and would just sit there, never talking or challenging professors. I didn't want anyone to notice how fat guy."

Socially, he developed a "fat, jolly exterior."

"I'd drink to get through a party and was a good party type. People would say 'Bring Ron along he's a real laugh,' but only if I could fit into the car."

When he dated, it was with overweight girls.

Food began with scoops of ice cream, pastries, potato chips. Ron ate it all and more. His eating became a compulsion and an embarrassment at the same time.

"I had few friends and became more and more withdrawn. Then I'd get depressed and find comfort in food."

It took a health scare to start Ron on a waistline battle. He joined a weight-reducing club in 1969 and reached his goal of 152 pounds on Sept. 1, 1972.

He says his battle against fat will never be over.

A former teacher, Ron has become a full-time weight-watching consultant to help other fat people start a new life and keep myself on the alert."

Concord Wine Landmark

CONCORD, Mass. (AP) — An old vine and a white clapboard cottage is loaded with clumps of green and purple fruit, just as it has been every fall since Ephraim Bull developed the first strain of Concord grapes.

The vine is a minor landmark in a town the history of which is dominated by Revolutionary War battles and 19th century intellectuals. Even though it never made Bull rich, the family of sprang came to dominate the North American wine industry.

Bull, a bibliophile—one who pounds gold leaf into a thin sheet used for decorations—crossed a tough wild vine that grew behind his house with other grapes until in 1849 he came up with a tart, early-ripening fruit that would withstand New England winters.

The Concord grape was introduced publicly in 1855 and, within 25 years, it had spread across the United States and to Europe.

While others grew wealthy cultivating the grapes, Bull's discovery earned him little. And two later strains he developed, Esther and Rockwell, never caught on.

Bull died in 1895, a poor man in the Concord Home for the Aged. The inscription on his tombstone in Sleepy Hollow Cemetery reads: "He sowed; others reaped."

Costly Salvage Job Ends After 5 Years

WELLINGTON, N.Z. (CP) — Believed to be the most expensive salvage job in wreck clearance ever undertaken, the removal of the sunken vessel Wahine from the entrance to Wellington harbor has ended at last after more than five years.

The fine new inter-island passenger and car ferry Wahine at 2,000 tons was wrecked on April 10, 1968, in the worst storm in New Zealand's recorded history. The tragedy cost the lives of 51 people.

The Wahine struck a notorious reef in the harbor entrance and sank in a position which added to the hazards of navigation in bad weather. Removal was essential, but the task proved extraordinarily difficult.

Originally it was planned to fill the hull with buoyant material enabling it to be refloated and taken into deep water for sinking. But after much work it had been done in preparation for moving the wreck, another storm broke the vessel into three pieces.

Salvage plans had to be made again and eventually it was decided that the only practicable system was to cut the vessel laboriously into pieces and remove them one at a time.

Pieces weighing 40 to 50 tons were lifted and taken ashore where they were cut up into scrap. The work was frequently interrupted by bad weather. One diver was killed through an underwater explosion from a hydrogen cutting torch.

In the course of salvage, large numbers of personal items were recovered and where possible returned to the owners, some of whom could be identified through records of the cabins they occupied. Other items were recovered from wrecked cars—one was a Scottish broadsword, many hundreds of years old and a treasured family heirloom.

Insurance representative have refused to release details of the cost of the operation, but it is known to have exceeded $2 million last year, and when completed at the end of September is estimated to have been well over $3.5 million.

Townhousing Blossoms

These townhouses are typical of the clusters of row housing seen in and around Vancouver. But real estate spokesmen say there aren't enough rental units around and housing costs are so high that young couples are unable to purchase houses and are caught in a high rent squeeze. (CP Photo)

Bluesman Leaves Pigs Behind For Toronto and Harmonica

TORONTO (CP) — Donnie Walsh has a collection of pigs and harmonicas. They play integral parts in his life.

Most days, Donnie can be found in a rural setting near Pickering looking after his pigs. He's been rearing pigs for more than a year and now has a herd of more than 150.

But at night he heads for nearby Toronto with his collection of more than a dozen harmonicas to play with Downchild, the country's top blues band.

It may sound a strange combination. But Donnie Walsh and Downchild are far from ordinary.

Downchild is, and has been for the last four years, one of the few bands in Canada specializing in the Chicago blues, music attributed almost wholly to black singers and musicians.

Furthermore Downchild is an all-white band playing what many blues critics consider, the real thing. Achieving that magic sound hasn't been easy, even more so achieving success in the blues music market.

But after years of hard labor in sleazy bars, surrounded by, often indebriated atmosphere, Downchild has captured the right sound and, in the process, sown the seeds of a successful future.

So, Donnie's days as a swineherd may, sadly, be remembered as the band's growing success in Toronto begins to spill over into the rest of Canada. Demand for Downchild is spreading quickly and for the first time in the band's history, these seven musicians are beginning to capture top billings outside their well-trodden haunts in Toronto.

The band recently completed four sell-out nights in Winnipeg and now is touring the Maritimes. Other tours are in the pipeline to meet demands for the band in Canada and the United States.

But while this marks what many bands would consider a promotion from small bars and clubs to the big-time concert hall circuit, Downchild has mixed feelings about the jump.

The sophistication of the concert hall lacks the closeness and friendliness of the small venue, two advantages which Downchild uses to the full.

"We're a get-up-and-dance band," Donnie said. "There's nothing we'd rather see in front of us than a jammed dance-floor."

Indeed, working as they do in licensed clubs, the dance-floors almost always end up throbbing with slightly inebriated bodies. It's all part of Downchild's music and the free-flowing presentation of the blues. Concert halls could rob them of this intimacy with their audience, Donnie feels.

"We play fine at concerts," he said. "But we're at home in smaller places."

Its easy to see why. While Downchild has the professionalism of a top concert band, its appearances go further than simply providing music to sit back to and enjoy.

Centrepiece of the band is Donnie's brother Rich, affectionately known as The Hock.

Every thing momentarily comes to a standstill when The Hock takes to the stage, jeans his huge frame over the microphone and starts singing the blues as well as many of his black contemporaries.

Behind him, Donnie is either blowing his harp or playing blues guitar. Then there's Dave Woodward and Nat Abrahams on saxophones, electric pianist Jane Vasey, drummer Cash Wall and bassist Jim Milne providing Downchild's well developed blues sound.

Between numbers, The Hock towers in front of his audience and announces that the market and that anyone themarket and that anyone who hasn't bought them both yet had better do so or else.

But it's the powerful, soulful music and not Rick's mock threats that have made both albums—Bootleg and Straight Up—successes. Surprisingly, Bootleg was recorded amid the unelegant surroundings of a basement parking lot using a two-track tape recorder. Even so, the sound is clear and bluesy and comes over in perfect stereo. In many ways, that basement was the ideal setting for Downchild's taping of the blues.

"After all," Donnie said, "Muddy Waters, the old master of the blues, did his best stuff on one track. It's the music that matters, not the number of tracks you have in the studio."

A blues guitarist once said you can't lose if you play the blues. Downchild has long been convinced of this and now Donnie is beginning to believe that you might possibly be able to win.

Downchild is living up to expectations. Early in its career, a noted blues musician played a 20-minute set with the band and announced:

"They're a good li'le band. Five more years in the bars and they'll be killers."

That prediction, it seems, will come true.

SONGS REVIVED

WELLINGTON, N.Z. (Reuter) — Maori music, songs and dances recorded on wax cylinders 50 years ago are being transcribed on to magnetic tape. A report to Parliament said four cylinders have already been transcribed, screening out extraneous noise.

Year-round Operation Banff School's Aim

BANFF, Alta. (CP) — David Leighton is convinced the Banff Centre could be something "unique in the world," and he is out to sell that idea to others.

"This could be the leading arts institution in the world," he said in an interview. "And I'm just egotistical enough to think I can do it."

Dr. Leighton, 45-year-old director of the centre, moved here in January, 1971, after spending 15 years on faculty at the University of Western Ontario's school of business administration. He succeeded Senator Donald Cameron, who spent 30 years building the Banff Centre and who now carries the title director emeritus.

Since his arrival, Dr. Leighton has worked slowly but steadily for change. New courses have been added to the curriculum, courses in French are offered on a year-round basis, a year-round photography course was introduced, a new program in cultural resources management was added, and the Banff Festival of the Arts was extended to two weeks from one.

The Banff Centre comprises a school of management studies, the Banff School of Fine Arts and a conference division. Conference business was beginning to take up a very large part of the centre's operation; some felt it was beginning to overshadow the arts aspect.

People started asking whether the centre's major purpose was to function as a school or as a hotel for convention delegates.

"It's a Jekyll-and-Hyde situation we'd rather not have," Associate Director Neil Armstrong admitted.

But he added that fine arts is "a losing proposition" and that the conference division provides the centre with much-needed revenue.

However, the recently-announced budget for Alberta universities almost doubles the centre's grants over the next three years. It's a "partial signal" for big changes, Dr. Leighton has said. But they will be low and gradual.

The centre will begin phasing out all conference and convention business during June, July and August, making room for 800 additional students. But this may take four or five years.

"Some conferences are booked years in advance," Dr. Leighton said. "We will keep our commitments to them."

Year-round operation as an arts school is the next long-term goal.

The centre at present offers largely six-week programs in the arts from June to July and week in May to the end of August. There are a few exceptions, such as the year-round photography course, but for the most part the school of fine arts operates as a summer school.

There are some problems, one of them involving money.

Phasing out conference activity during June, July and August, for example, will mean "losing away some business which to this school is important financially," Dr. Leighton explained.

Moving towards being a more educational institution will require more funding. Granted the new budget allows the centre $550,000 in 1973-74, $908,000 in 1974-75 and more than $1 million in 1975-76.

"Except an awful lot of that money will go to inflation," Dr. Leighton said.

Educational institutions were advised to budget on the basis of six-per-cent inflation, "but the cost of living index shows inflation at the rate of two per cent a month."

"Whether that's the best index to use, I don't know, but if the current rate continues at 24 per cent a year, there goes your money."

The centre last year showed a deficit of $80,000. "But you want to consider that in relation to other institutions," said Mr. Armstrong, who besides being associate director also functions as manager of performing arts and communication.

As an institution such as the University of Calgary or public, in the form of the provincial government, pays 80 per cent of the cost, he said.

"Here the public pays 20 per cent of the cost. So in terms of what they're paying, they're getting a bargain."

Dr. Leighton said the centre this year provided $203,000 worth of scholarships, compared with $80,000 last year. He indicated the school would lose a lot of students if it did not provide scholarships, and produced figures which compared the cost per week for tuition, room and board for students at the Banff School of Fine Arts and other institutions.

At the University of Calgary, tuition to the student would be $47 a week, at the Southern Alberta Institute of Technology in Calgary $36, at the Olds-Drumheller Drama School $40 and at Banff $105.

Used Book Shops Musty with History

CALGARY (CP) — "Dear: By the time you read this, I will be gone."

The note falls from the pages of a book now in the hands of a second-hand book dealer. Whether it was ever found by the person to whom it was addressed or whether its author ever carried out his intention remains a mystery.

Another book, The Art of Loving, has inscribed on it flyleaf the words: "To H., with love that I feel but some how can't give. E."

Such personal touches are part of the attraction of old books. Those who frequent Calgary's nine second-hand book stores will list others, including the slightly musty smell of age and history; the feel of an old leatherbound volume; the success of finding an out-of-print edition; and the pocket - jingling bargain of 12 paperbacks for a dollar.

Philip Moxley, owner-manager of the Golden West book store, has founded or owned three different used book stores in Calgary and has been involved in establishing others in Lethbridge, Vancouver, Victoria and Vernon, B.C.

"Dealing in used books is an interesting occupation," he said. "Generally speaking, we attract a fascinating clientele.

"The more educated a person is, the more he frequents used book stores because that's the only place he can obtain out-of-print editions on specialized topics."

The owner of a used book store must buy stock when it is available, which accounts for the fact that many second-hand book stores have extensive basements and storage areas.

"Buying and selling patterns vary through the year," Mr. Moxley said. "We buy more books in the winter and sell more in the summer.

"Our biggest input comes when people spring-clean or move, and from estates. In July and August we sell vast quantities of books to people going on vacation."

He said the books themselves are one of the most intriguing aspects of the business. Being used, they have more character and are likely to contain a bookmark.

"Tissues, combs, pressed flowers, matches and toilet paper are commonly used to mark a page, Mr. Moxley said.

There are other surprises, like the seemingly normal volume which had been adapted to conceal a tiny safe, or the one which housed a velvet-lined jewel box.

Contrary to popular opinion, used books seldom contain money. Only once did Mr. Moxley find money in a book, and that was only a one-dollar bill.

The books themselves can be valuable. One second-hand book shop in the city reports selling a single volume for as much as $100.

"Calgary tends to be a 'do it' town rather than a collecting town," Mr. Moxley said. "The books that really sell here are things like How to Drill an Oil Well, or How to Fix Your Car."

Color TV Makes Debut Nov. 1 in New Zealand

AUCKLAND, N.Z. (CP) — Color television starts in New Zealand Nov. 1—a major entertainment event in the South Pacific.

Indeed, nearby Australia is somewhat mortified that New Zealand should have got the march. Australia likes to think of itself as more sophisticated and technically advanced than its smaller neighbor, but it is not due to introduce color television until 1975.

But color will not be cheap in New Zealand. Even a small 18-inch set will cost about $650 New Zealand—$600 Canadian—and a 26-inch console model will be about $850 New Zealand.

Rental of a moderate sized set is likely to cost about $25 a month New Zealand—$35 Canadian.

The annual licence fee for a color television set will be $25, year, almost double the license fee for a black and white set.

For that, all viewers will get initially will be about 50 per cent of overseas programs in color, and a smaller proportion of local features. The extent of programs in color will be progressively increased over a period.

New Zealand still has only one television channel, although programs vary in each of the four main cities—that is, various local features and news are injected into the major network programs common to all stations.

A second full television channel is due to be introduced in 1975. Like the existing one, it will be entirely government-owned, but will be controlled by a separate corporation. The present Labor government rejected a recommendation from an inquiry that the second channel be privately owned.

By the time the second channel starts operating, it is expected that more programs will be in color.

The first major New Zealand event to get full television color treatment is likely to be the Commonwealth Games, which are due to be held in Christchurch next February. This event is likely to give a considerable impetus to sales and hiring of color sets.

The high price of sets has inhibited many buyers until now. And although interest is picking up as the starting date approaches, sales have been much rather than spectacular.

Large numbers of potential buyers are waiting to see what color looks like, how much it appeals to them, how the sets behave, how much servicing is needed and other similar matters before deciding whether to face the expense of a switch to color.

Some manufacturers think the main transitional period will extend over about five years.

Meanwhile television servicemen are threatening to disrupt the introduction of color for many by refusing to install or service color sets unless they get a 35-per-cent pay rise. They maintain that markedly greater technical skills are needed for color sets and that in spite of the current wage freeze imposed by the government as an anti-inflation measure, an increased wage is justified by the greater responsibilities involved.

Ontario Liberal President Resigns

TORONTO (CP) — Ontario Liberal president Joseph Cruden said Tuesday he has submitted his resignation because of "insomnia" that a timing error he made during the Liberal leadership convention was de-liberate.

"I cannot live with the insomnia," Mr. Cruden said in an interview.

Mr. Cruden's error came Saturday night during the keynote speeches of the four leadership candidates.

He admitted an error in timing when allowing each speaker 20 minutes after stipulations that each should have had 25.

Most visible hurt was MPP Donald Deacon, who finished third in the balloting Sunday behind Robert Nixon and MP Norman Cafik.

Mr. Cruden said he would continue to stay active in the provincial Liberal party.

"I will be in there working in some capacity or other".

Mr. Nixon, who announced the resignation earlier Tuesday, said at that time he hoped Mr. Cruden would reconsider, "but it's a personal decision he should make."

The resignation has been submitted to the party's executive board and Mr. Cruden has asked that it be considered as soon as possible.

Government Wants Firms To Serve World Market

WATERLOO, Ont. (CP) — Jean Pierre Goyer, minister of supplies and service, said Tuesday the federal government is not seeking to limit business activities of foreign firms in Canada, but to make sure they are consistent with this country's objectives.

Mr. Goyer, speaking at the opening of a new plant of the National Cash Register Co. of Canada, said government policy is to encourage multinational companies to establish plants here as sole suppliers of certain components and market them from Canada on a worldwide basis.

He said the new NCR plant, set up to manufacture a new type of electronic banking machine, meets these goals.

"We in the Canadian government are pleased to see that this facility combines research and development, exporting and manufacturing of a full product," Mr. Goyer said.

NCR's parent firm is based in the United States. The Canadian branch was launched in 1902.

NCR developed the new banking machine with the help of an $8.3-million grant from the industry department's program for the advancement of industrial technology, representing half the cost. The company put up the other half.

FASTEST RAPIDS

The fastest rapids which have been navigated are the Lava Falls on the Colorado River. These attain speeds of up to 30 m.p.h.

White Proposes Move To Restructure Counties

SARNIA (CP) — A scheme to restructure counties and put them on the same financial footing as regional municipalities was proposed Tuesday by John White, Ontario minister of intergovernmental affairs.

Mr. White, in a speech to the Kiwanis Club of Sarnia, said the province could help by paying half the costs of studies—up to a maximum of $50,000 a study—to determine how counties can be reformed.

For counties that undergo restructuring, Mr. White proposed paying of grants comparable to those for regional government systems.

Mr. White stressed that these were only proposals, not government policy.

Mr. White also set out guidelines counties could follow in studying their area.

Contractor Sees Curbs As Benefit to Trade

TORONTO (CP) — After hearing criticism of restrictive practices by a union official and an association of tiling contractors, a royal commission Tuesday heard an opinion from an independent contractor that they are working for the good of the tile and terrazzo trade.

The differing viewpoint came from Mario DeStefano, head of Bloor Tile and Terrazzo Ltd. here, who told the inquiry into crime in the Ontario construction industry that he had early troubles with the tiling union but later settled down to satisfactory co-existence with it.

Earlier Tuesday, independent contractor Donald Paolini had complained that "manipulation of the industry" for the bigger contractors was being done by Danilo DeMonte, business agent of Toronto Local 31 of the Tile-Setters and Terrazzo Mechanics Union.

He said he believes Mr. DeMonte is "just an agent" for one large firm in the Toronto and District Marble, Tile and Terrazzo Contractors Association. He said Mr. DeMonte for years has refused to sign labor agreements with small contractors without clauses effectively barring them from the big "commercial" jobs such as office buildings.

Mr. Paolini said he had been "excluded" from the contractors' association which has a labor agreement with the union—a complaint also made Monday by contractor Gino DaRe—and he had been told "vividly" by Mr. DeMonte that "I wasn't going to get any commercial contracts."

But Mr. DeStefano said he feels it is a case of Local 31 not wanting to have the trade jeopardized by inferior work by non-union employees, and he commended the association for helping keep the tilfrazzo specialty alive.

"If the trade exists, it's due to this association," he said.

Indian Job-makers Now Look for Labor

OWEN SOUND Ont. (CP) — The large number of projects on the Saugeen Indian reserve has led to a shortage of workers.

"We're creating all these projects, not primarily to make money, but to create jobs," says Chief James Mason. "But our unemployment figure is so low it's hard to find enough employees to work on the projects."

Before the 750-resident reserve started projects such as campsite, housing and cottage developments at Sauble Beach on Lake Huron, unemployment was about 75 per cent.

"Now it is down to about five per cent," the chief said.

The reserve has purchased a bulldozer and plans to add more heavy equipment to develop a 2,000-lot cottage area at Sauble Beach. The reserve plans to use its own people to develop the area and someone from the outside to do the surveying.

But with the creation of new jobs, Chief Mason said there is still a need for stable industry to provide full-time employment. The projects are only part-time employment for reserve residents.

A group of Indian students made a study during the summer of industry on other reserves and types of industry that might function there.

The projects are being being financed largely from the reserve's substantial tourist industry which created revenue during the summer of $150,000, $11 a week.

OWEN SOUND, Ont. (CP) — Chief James Mason of the Saugeen Indian reserve, 29 miles west of here, and five members of the Union of Ontario Indians' board of directors will be in Ottawa Thursday and Friday for a meeting with government ministers.

"We want the welfare payments for Indians to be up to par with those for non-Indians," the chief said. "A single Indian welfare recipient only receives

Helen Gagen Explains Good Food - Good Nutrition

Food should be fun. But even more important, it should be recognized as a major factor in building strong, straight young bodies, and maintaining good health all through life.

Luckily, when they are well prepared and attractively served, foods that are good for you can also be delicious to eat.

Every day, every normal person needs milk — at least 1¾ cups for adults, 2½ cups for children up to 11 years, 4 cups for adolescents; two or three servings of fruit, or juice, one a good source of vitamin C; a potato and two other vegetables, preferably yellow or green and frequently raw; a serving of whole-grain cereal, and whole-grain or enriched bread with butter or margarine; a serving of meat, fish, poultry or such alternate as baked beans or nuts. Eat eggs and cheese each three times weekly, and liver occasionally.

Once you have had these foods you need, add other foods you want up to the amount required to keep you at a good, healthy weight. But always avoid foods that provide calories without nutrient value.

For further information about foods that are important for health, consult the Nutrition Information book at the Information Desk in your Miracle Food Mart. Or write to me, Helen Gagen, Consumer Advisor, Miracle Food Mart, 75 Rexdale Blvd., REXDALE, Ontario, M9W 1P2.

Questions and Answers On Highway Travel

Ontario Motor League
Eastern Ontario Club

As cold weather approaches, the Ontario Motor League urges motorists to take precautions against carbon monoxide poisoning, reminding them that the absence of odor is not an indication that gas is not present.

OML advises car owners to always keep one car window open at least an inch to assure air circulation, to shut off the motor while sitting in a parked car for more than a few minutes, and remember that the car's exhaust pipe may become clogged if the vehicle is backed into a snowbank.

In addition, the engine as well as all points of the exhaust system, should be inspected for proper combustion to make certain they are free of leaks.

There would be fewer winter driving accidents if more motorists knew that skidding is most likely to occur when temperatures are at the freezing point or just slightly above freezing. When ice is wet, or melting because of rising temperatures, stopping distances can easily become twice as long as they are when the temperature is at zero.

When having your car gassed up, tell the attendant not to top off the tank past the automatic cut-off on the pump. Trying to push the last pint of gas into the tank is not only wasteful, but is much more critical in terms of pollution than the emission coming out of your tail pipe.

The Ontario Provincial Police want to be able to identify you if you happen to be stranded on the highway.

The quickest way to let the OPP know you need help is to raise the hood of your car. That way, a passing OPP officer will know you need help.

You might also consider turning on your emergency four-way flashers and tying a white handkerchief to your antenna or door handle. You may even use flares if you have them.

If you experience mechanical difficulties with your car, remember to get your car as far as possible off the roadway and on to the shoulder.

QUESTION: Is it wise to make advance reservations for accommodations while away on a motor trip?

ANSWER: It is always wise to make reservations. This is particularly true in resort areas, at places where special events are being held, or during peak travel seasons in any region.

Remember that hotels and motels ordinarily do not demand a deposit with reservations, but a reservation is more likely to be held if a deposit does accompany the request. Resorts invariably require a payment. As a general rule, a reservation without a deposit will be released to other guests if it is not claimed by 6 p.m., unless the establishment agrees to a later arrival time.

In requesting reservations, always include the number of persons in your party, the ages of any children, type of accommodations desired (length of stay, date and estimated hour of arrival at resort) desired. Remember your reservation does not guarantee that you will receive the type of room desired, at the price specified, unless the reservation has been confirmed.

If you find that you are unable to keep your reservations, telephone or wire the hotel or motel so space can be released to another party. Usually, there is no difficulty in obtaining refunds for deposits on reservations made at conventional hotels or overnight motels if cancellation is given 48 hours before your scheduled arrival.

Where a deposit is involved, you should have a definite understanding as to the length of time required for cancellation notice and refund of your deposit. Most resorts have specific refund policies varying from as little as 24 hours to 30 or more days. The guest who fails to cancel by the time prescribed has little recourse if a refund is refused.

BRIGHT WIND OF THE SPIRIT: PENTECOSTALISM. — Steve Durasoff.

Faith healing, fevered revivals, second baptisms, and joyous awakenings are what most people associated with Pentecostalism today. In this book the author reveals the heartbeat of this rapidly accelerating movement — consisting of some twenty million practitioners. Pentecostalism is as old as the Bible and "Bright Wind of the Spirit" thoroughly and intelligently reviews the history and doctrines of this group of people which includes Catholics, Protestants and "Jesus Freaks".

BUY OR BUILD? THE BEST HOUSE FOR YOU. — Laurence E. Reiner.

If a man's home is his castle, then choosing that home is a tremendously important decision, and the making of it involves a great many personal considerations. There are also many legal and financial matters to be dealt with as well. Here is the book that will give you the highly experienced knowhow of an expert to guide you in a careful step-by-step plan of attack, for buying or building the best house for you.

A SKUNK IN THE HOUSE — Constance Taber Colby.

When the Colby family ordered a baby skunk from a New York pet store, they embarked on a series of unexpected, often hilarious adventures. The taming of Secret (the name they finally settled on) is told with sensitivity and affection. The reader shares the family's excitement as they follow the little acceptance of, and affection for his human family. "A Skunk in the House" reveals a charming family sharing joys, adventures and sorrows.

ALEX — Nigel Nicolson.

This is a biography of Lord Alexander who was that paradoxical creature, a gentle man who also happened to be a brilliant soldier. Son of an aristocratic family, he made the Army his career, was wounded and decorated twice in the first World War, served adventurously in the Baltic immediately afterwards, and then in Turkey and India. In the last War he extricated the British Army from Dunkirk and Burma; he cleared North Africa and at last, in Italy. In both of which areas Mr. Nicolson served and observed. This gives his account of men and battles a freshness and immediacy which not only illumines Alex and the Commanders alongside him, but also the actions that they fought.

MY LIFE WITH MARTIN LUTHER KING, Jr. — Coretta King.

Mrs. King's story is an impressive one: from two black families who had raised themselves in two generations from near-slavery, to positions of dignity in the midst of southern segregation, came children of the calibre of Martin and Coretta. Calmly she tells of their meetings and marriage, of the hardships and indignities of being black, the gradual growth of non-violence as a weapon of strength, the dangers and tragic death. Simply written, the pages glow with a simple sincerity. This book is refreshingly free from any vulgarized emotion.

SHOWER PARTIES FOR ALL OCCASIONS — Carlson Wade.

This book is a treasure chest of valuable ideas that will make it easy to have a successful shower party. It was written to guide you from the start to the happy finish of a shower party, whether it be for bride, an approaching baby, a house-warming, or an office party. You are told how to send invitations, proper food and games — from the initial idea — to sending thank-you notes after the shower.

MPs Doubt Price Cuts Passed On

OTTAWA (CP) — Opposition MPs reacted skeptically Tuesday to announcement the food prices review board that wholesale cuts in beef prices are being reflected in retail meat costs.

Board economists Gordon Burton and Cyril Hodgins told the special Commons food price committee that they are satisfied that recent wholesale beef price cuts are being passed to consumers.

Margins between wholesale and retail prices are roughly the same as they have been in the past, Dr. Hodgins said in reply to questions by AM Gleave (NDP—Saskatoon-Biggar).

A drop of between 25 and 30 per cent in wholesale prices following a recent flood of United States beef imports had been passed along in price reduction to consumers.

Home Hazard

TORONTO (CP) — Edward Good (L.—Waterloo North) has called for the closing of Preston Springs Gardens nursing home at Cambridge, Ont., because of a fire hazard.

Health Minister Richard Potter said his ministry was trying to resolve the problems now.

Dr. Potter said his ministry is aware of deficiencies in a number of nursing homes.

He said it was not his intention to close down any of the small operators if they could be helped to improve their standard of service.

Probe Hanging

PETERBOROUGH, Ont. (CP) — Investigations continued Tuesday into the death of a man found hanging in his cell in Peterborough jail Saturday.

Douglas Whitney, 53, of no fixed address, was cut down from a twisted bedsheet here and died about half an hour later.

Liberals Win 3 More Seats

MONTREAL (CP)—Premier Robert Bourassa meets his cabinet today as Quebecers continue to contemplate the lopsided results of Monday's provincial election.

The Bourassa Liberals captured 102 seats in the 110-seat house while the Parti Quebecois got six and the Parti Creditiste two. Three seats in which results were doubtful Tuesday morning were all won by Liberals.

To Committee

OTTAWA (CP) — A bill to limit spending in federal election campaigns was referred to a steering committee Tuesday by the Commons elections committee.

The steering committee will decide how to deal with the bill.

Potash Sold

TORONTO (CP) — A record 35 million sale of Saskatchewan potash to China has been announced by Canpotex Ltd., overseas marketer for all Saskatchewan potash.

No Sunday Gas

THE HAGUE (Reuter) — The Dutch government is to ban all private automobile travel on Sundays to conserve gasoline

Pipeline Plans To Raise Rates

OTTAWA (CP) — Trans-Canada Pipelines Ltd., which delivers natural gas to markets east of Alberta, will raise its rates to distributors by as much as 10.7 per cent, effective Thursday.

The increase was approved by the National Energy Board Tuesday to offset rising prices that TransCanada says it will have to pay for gas from western suppliers between now and November, 1974.

The boost will add 5.2 cents to the roughly 50 cents a thousand cubic feet that distributors now pay in all areas east of North Bay, Ont.

"Somewhat lesser increases" will apply in markets west of North Bay, the board said.

It was not clear what impact the decision will have on domestic and industrial natural gas users.

TransCanada applied for the increases because it expects to pay an additional $47.3 million for gas during the next year.

The company said when its application was heard earlier this month that about 30 per cent of its contracts with suppliers had been renegotiated and signed at higher prices.

Suppliers demanded more money after the Alberta Energy Conservation Board released a market-prices report last year. The document said natural gas was undervalued by 10 to 20 cents a thousand cubic feet.

The board described the TransCanada increases as "just and reasonable" on the basis of evidence presented at public hearings. No witnesses suggested the company acted imprudently in negotiations with suppliers, the board said.

Plan to Toughen UIC Is Dropped

OTTAWA (CP) — To nobody's surprise on Parliament Hill, the government has made it plain it will not proceed with a bill toughening the Unemployment Insurance Act.

The bill, which would have cut off benefits to persons who quit or were fired from their jobs, was given first reading in the Commons Jan. 17.

It was an obvious reaction to the October, 1972, federal election campaign when abuses of unemployment benefits were a major issue.

MPs Want Pensions To Cover Housewives

OTTAWA (CP) — Women's rights, or a lack of them, got a stirring in the Commons Tuesday as some MPs pleaded the case for allowing housewives to join the Canada Pension Plan.

They made their pitches as the Commons went into a second day of debate on changes proposed to tie plan benefits to the rising consumer price index and to raise the level of contributions.

Welfare Minister Marc Lalonde hopes the changes will be approved in time for them to take effect Jan. 1.

The bill containing the changes would remove a two-per-cent limit on annual cost-of-living increases in the pensions. The removal would be retroactive, meaning 1 percentile back payments of between $10 and 20 per cent to pensioners.

The bill also would raise the maximum pensionable earnings ceiling to $6,600 in 1974 and to $7,400 in 1975. This would increase the maximum level of annual contributions to about $186 by next year from $90 and to about $112 by 1975.

By 1975, maximum benefits would rise to $125 a month from the present $90 and by $980 they could be about $2580.

All parties have agreed to the changes and the provinces, which must approve the amendments by a two-thirds majority, have given unanimous consent.

The women's rights issue was raised first Tuesday by Grace MacInnis (N D P — Vancouver-Kingsway).

The 68-year-old widow praised Mr. Lalonde for drafting the bill but said it ignores women.

Housewives, as equal partners in a family, should be able to share in the Canada Pension Plan as contributors and full recipients, Mrs. MacInnis said.

"Let me urge on the minister that it is not good enough for the government to go around giving lip service to the rights of women."

Life Savings Lost When Franchise Company Goes Bankrupt

Q. I thought my opportunity to own a business of my own had come when I answered a newspaper ad placed by a new company that was selling franchise outlets. After looking over their material, I decided to put a deposit down in order to get a choice of sites. Before I had even agreed upon a site, however, I found out from other sources that the company was in financial trouble. Then I got a letter from the company saying that it had gone bankrupt. I have since learned that my $5,000 deposit was used to pay day-to-day expenses and can't be recovered.

I think that you should warn people about some of the ways in which a franchise venture can lead to disaster.

A. Many people dream of owning their own business. Buying a franchise operation often appeals to these people because problems related to marketing techniques, trade marks and, in some cases, advertising and establishing a reputation, have already been worked out. From the company's point of view, franchising offers a way to expand operations and sales without requiring large amounts of capital. However, as in any other major expenditure, the decision to buy a franchise should be made only after you have gathered a considerable amount of specific information about the company and its product, and have had the terms of the franchise agreement examined by a lawyer of your choice.

How Sound Is The Company?

Here is just some of the information you should get. Find out how long the company offering the franchise has been in business and what sort of reputation and performance record it has built up. Good sources for this information include your bank or credit agency, the Better Business Bureau, your local Chamber of Commerce and the Ontario Ministry of Consumer and Commercial Relations.

Another valuable source of information is a person already operating a similar franchise outlet. If you are taking over an existing franchise, find out why the previous owner left. Get both sides of the story.

There is a greater risk associated with buying a franchise from a company that has just started up. Don't even consider it unless the company has at least one franchise outlet in operation for you to inspect, and unless it agrees to place your franchise deposit money in trust or escrow until your outlet is open and operating. (This trust or escrow provision should be included in any franchise agreement that involves opening a new outlet.)

It is also more risky to deal with a company that has its head office outside of Canada. If any dispute or breach of contract arises, court action, if it is even possible, will be extremely expensive.

The Franchise Agreement May Contain Pitfalls

The only safe way to deal with a franchise agreement is to take it to a lawyer before you sign. This costs much less than you probably think and if you want to know what the fee will be, the lawyer will be quite willing to tell you in advance.

Also find out from the company exactly what it is providing in return for the franchise fee. One way of doing this is to draw up a list showing what the franchise agreement obligates you to do (or not to do), compared with obligations the company will assume as its part of the contract.

These are just a few of the many points you should consider before buying a franchise.

For more complete information, write: Franchising, Consumer Buy-Line, 555 Yonge Street, TORONTO, Ontario.

Consumer Buy-Line is an information service of the Ontario Ministry of Consumer & Commercial Relations.

Millhaven Prisoner Held for Trafficking

KINGSTON, Ont. (CP) — John Maloney, regional director for Canadian penitentiary services, said Tuesday there is to none extend an immediate problem in all Canadian prisons with the illegal use of drugs.

His statement followed the arrest of a Millhaven Institute prisoner for possession of hashish for the purpose of trafficking.

Noting that there are drugs in all Canadian institutions, Mr. Maloney said the prison at Millhaven is "no better or worse than the others. . . . I have nothing to indicate otherwise."

Provincial police arrested three persons, one of them a Millhaven prisoner, Oct. 22 after stopping a car entering Highway 33, the main entrance to the prison about 10 miles west of here.

Richard Findlay Milne, 27, of Mississauga, Ont., who has been charged with one count of possession of narcotics for purposes of trafficking, plus a lesser narcotics charge, had been released on a temporary leave permit and was being returned at the time of his arrest.

He has served eight months of a 3½-year sentence on one count of possession for trafficking of narcotics, plus possession of MVA.

He is scheduled to appear in provincial court in Napanee, Ont., Nov. 28.

Accused Men Seen Inside Victim's Cell

KINGSTON (CP) — A prosecutor of Collins Bay penitentiary testified Tuesday at a murder trial that he saw both Leo Mallett, 24, and Curtis Agawa, 23, inside the cell of another prisoner whose mutilated body was found March 16 under a cot in the prison.

Both men, residents of Sault Ste. Marie, Ont., have pleaded not guilty to a charge of first degree murder in connection with the stabbing death of a fellow prisoner, Terrance Landry, 26, of Sarnia.

The penitentiary witness, whose identity is protected by the court, said his attention was drawn to the cell by a disturbance as he was going in his own cell. He said he looked through a small window in the cell door and saw three persons, two of whom he recognized—Mallett and Agawa.

"I saw Agawa's back—then a second party who was either being held or held up by Agawa and then I saw part of Mallett's body," he said.

He told the 12-man Ontario Supreme Court jury that he thought Mallett was "punching the man" and that later he noticed the third person whom he didn't recognize was "let down on the floor."

"Something passed from Mallett to Agawa, something exchanged hands but I didn't see what it was," he said. "Agawa then raised his hand and it sort of looked like a knife to me."

Ending Minimum Age For Drinking Urged

TORONTO (CP) — Mike Draskich, president of the Canadian Restaurant Association (CRA), said Tuesday there should be no minimum drinking age in Canada.

"We can use reverse psychology, he said. "My view is that there should be no restriction whatsoever. This was the case in my country (Yugoslavia), and there are no more alcoholics there than here."

Mr. Draskich, speaking at a news conference, also proposed longer hours for opening of bars, and road-side vendors selling wines and liquors.

"Most of the states bordering Canada have better liquor laws than we do," he said. "At midnight on weekends there is a lineup of cars going to the United States."

He repeated an official CRA view that liquor laws across Canada should be uniform.

Big Moment for City Youngster

Peter McNevin presents the Tommy McNevin Memorial Trophy to Rick Manderville. The presentation of the coveted award was made Tuesday at Memorial Arena. Rick, a member of the Towers Food City Atom majors, is a Grade 5 student at Douglas R. Atkins Public School.

Rick Manderville, 10 Takes McNevin Award

Officials of the Belleville Minor Hockey Association are instructed each year to select one player from each hockey team in the squirt division, according to the player's effort, ability, sportsmanship, and deportment.

After each coach has made his choice of the boy best fulfilling the above standards, he submits that boy's name to the Belleville Recreation Arena Department, where the names are then mailed out to the principals of the school the boys attend.

The respective principals then rate the boys achievement to effort, ability, citizenship and deportment, as seen through their academic

Each principal is also called upon to conduct a third rating of each boy as to the particular boy's effort and proficiency from a musical stand point.

Following the completion of each boy's three individual ratings, the results are compiled and out of that field one boy is chosen as the most outstanding in the three categories.

The reason for all the red tape?

It is necessary for the polls to be conducted in this manner so that a worthy candidate will justifiable, be able to accept the reward for his efforts.

The reward is the Tommy McNevin Memorial Trophy.

During the 1972-73 season, the candidate that stood on top of the ratings was Rick Manderville, a 10-year-old, Grade 5 student.

Rick is in the top group in his class at Douglas R. Atkins School on Elmwood Drive.

His sports inclinations are numerous, but primarily entail baseball, hockey and skiing.

In the field of music Rick studies the guitar and he sings.

The trophy was presented to him last night at the Belleville Memorial Arena by the family representative Peter McNevin, Gerry O'Connor, chairman of the Tommy McNevin Memorial Award Committee, Lorne Williams, Director of the Recreation Arena Department and Austin Watkin, Vice-President of the BMHA; prior to the Belleville-Kingston squirt all-star game.

BCI Captures Soccer Title

BCI, Wanderers powered their way to their second straight Bay of Quinte high school soccer championship Tuesday, shutting out Bayside Red Devils 2-0 on a waterlogged field at Bayside Secondary School.

Brian Kaiser opened the scoring at the 17 minute mark when a corner kick taken by Dave Van Vliet handcuffed the Bayside defence. Charlie Nesterovski pushed the ball out to Kaiser who drilled it home from close in.

Just before the half - time whistle, Nesterovski was in the middle of the action once more as he set the ball up for BCI captain Garry Donovan who found the mark with a strong left-foot drive. The ball curved away from Red White and slipped into the corner of the net.

Early in the second half, Wanderers' Jamie Mason made a clever solo run up the left wing, beating several Bayside defenders, to set the stage for the game's final goal. Donovan centred the ball off a throw in and Nesterovski picked the right spot to make it 3-0.

BCI was never seriously threatened after that although Bayside did manage to get several opportunities. Wanderers defence was equal to the task and Phil Soero recorded the shutout.

Wanderers came up with a solid team effort and appear set to make a good showing in the Central Ontario Secondary Schools Association playoffs in Lakefield, Saturday.

Members of the championship team (goals in brackets) are: Phil Soero, Rick Chatterson, Larry Woodley, Gary Doyle, Dave Van Vliet (2), Garry Donovan (2), Gary Adams (1), Peter Crawford (1), Brian Kaiser (6), Charlie Mason (1), Rungano Mutswairo (1), Brad Batchelor, Tom Bood, Bill Vincent and Greg McMurter. Tom Seaver Wins Cy Young Award

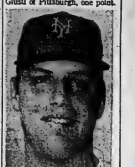
NEW YORK (AP) — Tom Seaver once said he'd be happy to last five years in the majors. Today, he is the owner of his second Cy Young award as the National League's best pitcher.

"When I first started playing, I told my wife I'd be happy to get five years in the big leagues," the New York Mets' righthander said Tuesday after winning the award for the second time in seven seasons.

"Now I want to pitch until I'm 35," added the 25-year-old Seaver, who became the fourth pitcher in the 15-year history of the award to win it more than once and the first in either the National or American Leagues to win it without at least 20 victories for the baseball season.



But Seaver, who posted a 15-10 record, and led the NL in strikeouts with 251 and in earned-run average, 2.08, won comfortably over reliever Mike Marshall of Montreal Expos and Ron Bryant of San Francisco Giants, the league's only 20-game winner.

In voting by a committee of the Baseball Writers' Association of America, comprised of two writers from each of the league's 12 cities, Seaver got 16 first-place votes and 70 points after being named on 21 ballots.

Marshall, who was 14-11 with 31 saves in 92 appearances, got nine first-place votes and 54 points in posting the best Cy Young showing ever for a relief pitcher. However, one reliever, Jim Konstanty of Philadelphia in 1951, did win a most valuable player award.

Bryant got three first-place votes and 50 points for his 24-12 performance. However, his ERA was 2.53 and he was the first National League 20-game winner to fail to record a shutout since Willie Sherdel of St. Louis in 1926.

Others receiving support were Jack Billingham of Cincinnati, who got the other two first-place votes and 39 points; Don Sutton of Los Angeles, seven points; Fred Norman of Cincinnati, three, points, and Dave Giusti of Pittsburgh, one point.

TOM SEAVER

"It means an awful lot to me because of the name this's on it and because it goes to one pitcher in the league—and that's it," said Seaver after joining Sandy Koufax of Los Angeles, 1963-65-66; Bob Gibson of St. Louis, 1968-70, and Denny McLain of Detroit, 1968-69, as multiple Cy Young winners.

"I really didn't think I'd win it," said Seaver, who also won in 1969 when he had a 25-7 record.

The American League winner will be named No. 7.

Seven Straight For Milwaukee

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Lucius Allen scored 26 points for Milwaukee Bucks Tuesday night as they posted their seventh straight National Basketball Association win, a 112-78 win over Kansas City-Omaha Kings.

In Tuesday's other NBA games, Buffalo Braves edged Seattle SuperSonics 105-103, Atlanta Hawks downed Phoenix Suns 122-101 and Portland Trail Blazers nudged Los Angeles Lakers 14-13.

San Antonio Spurs dropped New York Nets 94-82 and Memphis Tams defeated Carolina Cougars 110-99 in American Basketball Association action.

Milwaukee, the Midwest Division leaders, now has a 9-1 record for the season. Kareem Abdul-Jabbar added to their cause against the Kings with 32 points. John Block had 25 points for the Kings.

Randy Smith, who earlier missed three free throws in a row, sank two with one second to play to give the Braves their narrow victory, giving them a half-game lead in the Atlantic Division of the NBA.

Smith, Bob McAdoo and Ernie DiGregorio each had 21 points for the Braves. It was Buffalo's fourth win in a row—a club record.

Pete Maravich scored 31 points and Lou Hudson 29 to spark the Hawks to their fourth win in their last five games. Charlie Scott had 21 points for Phoenix.

The Trail Blazers overcame an 18-point third-period deficit to beat the Lakers. Geoff Petrie was their high scorer with 28 points. Gail Goodrich had 33 points for the Lakers.

George Thompson came off the bench to score 19 points in the second half for the Tams, snapping a five-game Carolina winning streak.

Rich Jones got 14 of his 22 points for the Spurs in the second half as they overcame a five-point halftime deficit. They outscored the Nets 32-16 in the third period.

Chuvalo Stops Boswell

BUFFALO (AP) — Heavyweight George Chuvalo of Toronto scored repeatedly with solid combinations and stopped Mike Boswell in the seventh round of their scheduled 10-round bout Tuesday night.

Chuvalo, whose record is 73-16-2, weighed 224 pounds and controlled the fight from the start.

Boswell, a Youngstown, Ohio, fighter who won his first 11 professional fights but now has lost 13 straight, came in at 205 pounds. He changed his stance from right to left in the third round and confused Chuvalo temporarily, scoring with left jabs.

But by the fourth round, Chuvalo kept Boswell against the ropes, landing combinations almost at will.

Wagon Ready To Roll

TORONTO (CP) — Toronto Argonauts have reactivated Jim Dillbregor, who has been on the Eastern Football Conference club's 30-day injured list.

To make room on the roster for the all-Canadian defensive tackle, the Argos put middle linebacker Ken Lee on waivers. When he was unclaimed after 72 hours, Toronto put him on a five-day trial.

Toronto general manager John Barrow also announced Tom Surlas, a middle linebacker, and Ron Matthews, a wide receiver, started five-day trials Tuesday.

In the midst of a trial is Ron Carl, who had been Dillbregor's replacement and who was waived through the league last week to make a spot for him to bring back Cleo House.

Surlas played for the Argos this year while Matthews was one of the final cuts before the season started.

Leafs Hammer Wings

By GERRY SUTTON
Canadian Press Staff Writer

If Detroit Red Wings seem to be looking for jobs, Maple Leaf Gardens was the wrong place to visit.

Toronto Maple Leafs showed no sympathy for the staggering Wings, shelling them out 7-4 Tuesday night while holding a 45-35 edge in shots.

And, the stomping New York Rangers didn't do much better, getting a 6-2 decision from the Canucks to remain in sixth place in the National Hockey League.

In the other game, Los Angeles Kings scored two unanswered goals in the third period to nip St. Louis Blues 3-2.

The Wings, now with seven defeats and a tie after 10 games—good for last place in the East—showed little against the Leafs to enable goalie Ed Johnston to pick up his first shutout of the season.

Outscored in their last four game, the Detroit brass has been doing its best to shake up parts of discussion on the club and that general manager Ned Harkness is on the way out.

Owner Bruce Norris said Tuesday in a telephone interview from Florida that Harkness will remain in his position. "I have complete confidence in Ned and everyone else running the team," and Norris, who was attending the NHL governors and general managers meeting.

The Leafs, using six players scored five goals in the second period—two of them coming on their way to their fifth win in 10 starts.

They moved into a second place tie with Montreal Canadiens and Buffalo Sabres, all with 12 points, and one behind leading Boston Bruins in the East.

Ron Ellis scored twice for the Leafs in the first and second of the year, and defenceman Jim McKenny contributed a goal and two assists. Rookie Ian Turnbull, formerly of Ottawa 67s in the Ontario Hockey Association Junior A series, opened scoring with his first goal of the year at the 14-second mark of the middle period.

Before the game, defenceman Gary Bergman said: "If we lose anybody it affects us a lot — both of our young goaltenders (Terry Richardson and Doug Grant) are going to be good. But, being this young they make a difference — the team tends to be thinking of protecting them, so much that we've afraid to be offensive enough."

Bergman proved the point just about the busiest sounded to end the first period. When Toronto defencemen Bob Neely scored a one-punch knockdown on Detroit Mickey Redmond, given a game misconduct for his third time in the first period.

That left the Wings with four defencemen — Brent Hughes, Terry Harper, Bill Hajt and Johnston and Meloff.

In Vancouver, Jocelyn Lever and Bobby Schmautz scored two goals in less than a minute early in the third period to give the Canucks the lead they held to the Rangers.

The Rangers, one point behind the fifth-place Canucks, now have four defeats and a tie after five games. They led 2-1 on goals by Ted Irvine, Vic Hadfield and Gene Carr before the Canucks rallied.

Butch Goring's third goal of the season at 17:38 of the third period gave the Los Angeles third win in nine games. The Kings share third place with Chicago Black Hawks and Pittsburgh Penguins, all with eight points, and one behind second-place Atlanta Flames.

Action resumes tonight with Pittsburgh at Montreal, Boston at Minnesota North Stars and California Golden Seals visiting Buffalo.

Quebec Nearing The Top Rung

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

After Quebec Nordiques defeated Toronto Toros in a World Hockey Association game earlier this month, Jacques Plante said: "And we're not in shape yet."

Following a 5-4 Quebec win last Friday over Minnesota Fighting Saints, the coach and general manager of the Nordiques said his club was starting to come along.

As it grew his point, the Nordiques rallied with five goals in their second period after trailing 3-0—to defeat Los Angeles Sharks 8-6 in one of three WHA games Tuesday night.

The win was Quebec's third in a row and moved the club into sole possession of second place in the East Division, one point behind New England Whalers.

Houston Aeros whipped Minnesota 6-1 and Chicago Cougars downed Winnipeg Jets 4-1 in other matchups.

The Cougars' win—their first game at home after nine on the road—strengthened their hold on fourth place in the East with 11 points, one behind Cleveland Crusaders.

Edmonton Oilers lead the West Division with 20 points, three more than Houston, Winnipeg and Minnesota.

Four of Quebec's goals were scored by players who weren't with the club last season.

Jeannot Gilbert, with Hershey Bears of the American Hockey League last season, scored second and third goals; Serge Bernier, with Los Angeles Kings of the National Hockey League, scored his eighth; and Dale Hoganson, formerly with Montreal Canadiens of the NHL, fired his second.

Blades' Plight Is Unresolved

CHICAGO (AP) — The World Hockey Association concluded its two-day meeting Tuesday without resolving the financial plight of New York Golden Blades.

"The league is giving the Blades every opportunity to get themselves organized and the club is due to report back to the league meeting Monday or Tuesday," a league spokesman said.

"The WHA recently had to underwrite the club's payroll when the owners of the Golden Blades were unable to pay the players.

"The league will continue to honor all players' contracts," said the spokesman "until the financial problems of the club are ironed out."

He added that no further significant action was taken Tuesday outside of "housekeeping within the league."

During Monday's session, Gary Davidson resigned as president of the WHA to concentrate on his new project, the World Football League. A successor is to be named within two months.

Toros Face Major Shakeup

TORONTO (CP) — Toronto Toros, with only two wins in 12 starts so far in the World Hockey Association, may be in for a major shakeup if general manager Buck Houle has his way. The two wins have been on the road.

"You can rest assured there will be a little more seriousness [illegible]," Houle says [illegible] performances at home in which the Toros have lost four and tied two of six games, the latest a 3-3 loss to Chicago Cougars Sunday.

Houle is particularly upset over the lack of hitting by a team allegedly sprinkled with solid checkers.

Marc Tardif, also with Montreal last season, scored his first WHA goal for the Sharks in the period.

They lulled us to sleep," said coach Terry Slater of the Sharks. "We went to sleep and then they struck; Quebec just sat back and waited for the breaks."

Slater said his defence gave up a lot of room in front of the net "over and over."

They call us animals—instead we're more like Mickey Mouse."

Two goals by Joe Hardy—his third and fourth of the year—helped Chicago to victory. The Cougars, although outshot 31-28, have been a split in each of the first and second periods and two in the third.

Ron Grahame recorded goalie Cam Newton's shutout with his first goal at 12:01 of the second period.

In Houston, the Aeros got four unanswered goals in the third period, two by Murray Hall, to hand Jets' Ab McDonald his 46-22 by the hard-skating Aeros.

Ron Ellis, who had 22 goals and 22 assists last season, scored two goals for the Aeros before 2,267 spectators. He opened scoring at the 34-second mark of the first period and added another [illegible] at 11:15.

Larry Lund scored the winning goal midway [illegible] to give Houston a 4-0 lead.

In games tonight, Winnipeg visits Cleveland and Quebec plays In Vancouver against the Blazers.

8 Schenley Finalists Announced

MONTREAL (CP) — Three players from Montreal Alouettes and two from Edmonton Eskimos will be among the eight finalists vying for the offensive awards given to the top professional football players in Canada, it was announced today.

The finalists were selected following second-round balloting by 86 football journalists and broadcasters in the Canadian Football League cities. The eight were selected from a list of 20 cast included in the initial ballot.

The final decision on each of four categories—player of the league, lineman of the year, and top rookie—will be announced Nov. 22 in Toronto during Grey Cup week.

John Harvey, the Als' explosive running back who has rushed for 96 yards and two touchdowns on 189 carries, has been selected as the Eastern Football Conference candidate for the outstanding player award.

Edmonton's George McGowan, an exciting pass-catching split end, has been selected as the Western Football Conference's choice to oppose Harvey for the outstanding player prize.

McGowan is the top pass-catcher in the CFL this season. He has gained 1,113 yards on 80 collected as first-round nominees Cobrish.

Gerry Organ, Ottawa Rough Riders precision-like placement kicker, has been picked as the top Canadian player of the year. Organ has dominated the EFC scoring column for the last two years and has clashed up 178 points this season, including a record 35-field goals.

Organ's counterpart with the Ottawa Rough Riders, Tom Cosier, will represent the WFC candidate for the Canadian player award. Cosier has kicked 122 points, and has kicked 20 three-pointers.

In the lineman-of-the-year category, Ray Nettles, a 220-pound linebacker with British Columbia Lions, will represent the WFC, while Ed George of Montreal Alouettes will oppose him. Both Nettles and George were also selected as first-round nominees

In the lineman category last year, Montreal's Johnny Rodgers, last year's Heisman Trophy winner as the outstanding college football player in the United States while at the University of Nebraska, was selected as the EFC's choice for rookie-of-the-year.

Rodgers is entering the leading numbers in the EFC with 302 yards on 33 carries. He has brought 38 passes for another 722 yards and seven touchdowns.

Terrie Richardson, a defensive halfback with Saskatchewan Roughriders, will oppose Rodgers as the WFC's choice for top rookie honors.

The 180-pound Richardson, a native of Moose Jaw, Sask., played his college football at Colorado.

ATMOSPHERE ENTERTAINING

By: Emily Martin

Ida Burns & Associates Inc.,
1260 Lakeshore Rd., E.,
Port Credit, Ontario.

Entertaining successfully is an art that requires organization, imagination and good showmanship.

Successful entertaining is not determined by the number of courses served to your guests; hospitality is not a matter of beer or champagne, caviar or cheeseburgers.

The atmosphere of your home will set the mood for any party, whether sumptuous or budget. Atmosphere is to a home what personality is to an individual. If your home reflects warmth and friendliness then your guests will be entertained in warm and friendly manner. Be objective about your capabilities and limitations as a hostess. Once you become aware of your entertaining "forte" and weaknesses, it will be a simple matter to put your talents to good use. Your most valuable asset as a hostess is a good measure of "sense" not "cents" — that is common sense and a sense of humor.

Organization simply means good planning. Whether you are having a formal dinner party or a backyard barbecue, you must plan carefully making sure that only a finishing touch is required after your guests have arrived.

Imagination means using your own flair to add a personal touch to your parties. This will not only delight your guests, it will also make your chore more interesting. Look around your home and discover some of your decorative pieces, then set about to make them functional. Improvise!

Good Showmanship: You are now ready for your guests and "your" party. Leave your slippers in the bedroom, your apron in the kitchen and your disciplinarii ball gown in the closet. No matter how tired or exasperated you are from coping with last minute crisis, do not greet your guests with a harried or breathless look. Remember that you, as the hostess, will be setting the mood for the event!

Oshawa General Does It Himself

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Bill Lockhead finished 10th in the Ontario Hockey Association's Junior A scoring race last season. He looked like he was out to improve that position Tuesday night.

Lockhead, Oshawa Generals top Junior A draft pick from Sarnia Bs two years ago, fired all three goals to enable his club to salvage a 6-3 tie with Kitchener Rangers.

The big centreman ice moved the Generals into sole possession of third place in the 11-team loop and to within two points of London Knights.

Rick Chartraw, Joe Furtman and Doug Rhebergen were the Rangers marksmen as Kitchener held a 38-35 advantage in shots on goal.

In other games, Toronto Marlboros, the defending Memorial Cup champions, failed to get out of the cellar as they scorched a 6-4 defeat at Ottawa and Sault Ste. Marie Greyhounds clipped Hamilton Red Wings 3-1 at the Soo.

Poor Still Bearing Brunt Of Spiralling Home Prices

OTTAWA (CP) — Some economists say the housing crisis for middle-income Canadians is an illusion.

Others say it is real enough and that housing should be taken out of the market place and declared a social necessity.

Still others say it is dangerous to tinker with the free market. They suggest cures for specific ailments.

In proposing a solution, much depends on what you regard as the main villain behind climbing prices for single-family homes.

No one questions that prices for detached homes are rocketing. There is obviously heavy demand and not enough houses are being built to keep prices down.

But there are questions about the meaning of this strong demand.

An economist in Central Mortage and Housing Corp. said recently that Canadians are better housed than they used to be and no one is without a roof over his head.

He suggested young people have richer tastes than their parents who grew up in the Depression of the 1930s. A young couple with a good education and income now expect to walk into their own home almost immediately.

Another CMHC official said housing studies and social anlm a l o r s have artificially raised the aspirations of Canadians. New home-owners also demanded faster installation of sewer, water and street-lighting than in the past.

These high expectations help boost housing prices without reflecting genuine need, he said.

But this argument offers little comfort to people hunting for single-family homes. They will still clamor for better prices.

Prices are rising particularly fast in the single-family home market. This hits the middle-income earner but also touches low-income families.

Despite such new government efforts as the assisted home - ownership program, economists say the poor still bear the brunt of rising house prices.

Economist N. H. Lithwick, author of a federal report on urban problems, said in a recent interview that the urban poor who are unable to afford cars cannot move to distant suburbs to buy or rent cheaper houses.

With strong demand for housing, pressure builds in city cores as slum housing is destroyed and replaced by high-rise apartment buildings with higher rents.

Mr. Lithwick suggested that entirely new communities outside existing cities but linked by high-speed ground transport are one solution.

The argument for entirely new communities is that governments can assemble large blocks of land, install services and promote development without the usual outlandish jump in land costs.

The piecemeal growth of cities, adding one suburb after another, permits land speculation to drive prices up, economists say.

The federal government has established a new-communities program and has expanded its land-assembly provisions but Progressive Conservative housing critic Eldon Woollams says Ottawa hasn't provided enough money for these plans.

Urban Affairs Minister Ron Basford says the government is channelling $300 million annually into these land programs but Mr. Woollams says at least $500 million is required.

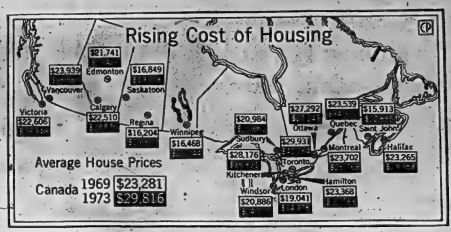
Mr. Basford replies that the provincial governments are not using the money available to them under these land plans.

Prof. Lithwick adds a further note of caution. He questions whether housing deserves a much larger chunk of the federal budget.

In his view food prices are a far more serious problem and should rank higher in government spending plans.

But other economists say housing should be regarded as a social necessity. One involved with citizens' groups said housing prices and rents should be controlled.

He suggested linking house costs to the consumer price index, meaning that house prices rise no faster than over-all living costs. This had been done in Norway.



Ed Broadbent, New Democratic housing critic, said recently that the government should direct banks and other federally-chartered lending bodies to hold residential mortgage rates to six per cent. These institutions should be required to allocate a certain amount of their funds to mortgages.

A government bill designed to encourage more private investment in mortgages was recently approved by Parliament but Mr. Broadbent said tinkering with the private market will not substantially reduce rates. Only a government-imposed limit would be effective.

Tom Osborne, a St. John's, Nfld., real estate agent, recently recommended long-term leases of publicly-owned land to lower the initial cost of buying houses.

Other economists, including Douglas Hamilton of Ottawa, have also urged widespread public ownership of land to reduce the high cost of building lots.

The Ontario government has just completed a major housing study and has taken steps to increase housing in the Ottawa, Hamilton and Toronto markets. But smaller provinces lack Ontario's financial resources.

Rising Cost of Housing

The rising land, labor and material costs, worldwide inflation, higher personal aspirations and the post-war baby boom all play a part in driving up prices for detached, single— family homes, say housing experts. Most experts agree that land costs are a prime cause of rapidly rising prices for single homes. Map shows average prices for homes in major cities according to a (MLS) report. MLS accounts for about 35 per cent of sales in the country. (CP Newsmap)

Prescribing Habits Show Serious Gaps

MONTREAL (CP) — A study of the prescribing habits of 69 doctors in Montreal has shown "serious gaps in their exact knowledge of the contents of the (drug) preparations they order for their patients," says Dr. Pierre Biron, a specialist in drugs on the medical faculty of the University of Montreal.

"If this pilot survey . . . were representative . . . the inescapable conclusion would be that in the majority of instances when a physician signs his name below a drug combination prescription, he does not know exactly what he is signing for," he said in a recent issue of the Canadian Medical Association Journal, a magazine for doctors.

When patients receive a prescription, they assume their doctor knows what he is ordering, Dr. Biron said. His sample questionnaire, sent to 80 doctors chosen because they were easily reached and would take part, indicates this is not so.

Because of these findings, a larger survey is being done with selected doctors representing a more accurate cross-section of the profession, he said.

"We hope that this larger-scale, more representative survey will invalidate the conclusions we have drawn in this preliminary report and show physicians do know exactly what they prescribe."

In the preliminary survey, doctors were asked to name three drug combinations—preparations containing more than one ingredient—that they had prescribed in the last year. Then they were asked how many active ingredients were in the drug and what these were.

Of the 33 drugs—most of them common ones—mentioned by the doctors, in only four instances did 10 per cent or more of the doctors [illegible] ingredients correctly.

The drug industry sometimes claims that its representatives are necessary because they teach about the product as well as promoting it, he said.

"Either they have failed as teachers or their pupils do not have good memories."

Johnny Cash Film Featured at Belle

With Columbia's Godspell in release and Universal's Jesus Christ Superstar due this year, the age of the rock-religious musical has dawned. Gospel Road, starring Johnny Cash as host-narrator and his wife June acting as Mary Magdalene was filmed entirely in the Holy Land.

For the Bible Belt, the film has the built-in attractions of Cash, the music and the theme itself. Directors of photography Robert Elfstrom and Tom McDonough kept their De-Luxe cameras in constant motion. Starring in the film along with Cash and his wife are Robert Elfstrom, Larry Lee, Paul Smith, Alan Dater, and Robert Elfstrom Jr. The film will be showing at the Belle Theatre from November 1-6.

This painting, by the Flemish 17th century master, Peter Paul Rubens, was recently discovered with dust and grime in a storage warehouse by Oscar Klein of New York City. The masterpiece, now insured for $1-million, goes on exhibition Saturday at the Princeton University art museum. (AP Photo)

SAYREVILLE, N.J. (AP) — The Amboys drive-in theatre stopped showing sex films after authorities complained about traffic snarls and minor accidents caused by gawking motorists on three major roads adjoining the theatre.

Garden State Parkway officials and local police and officials had complained that the X-rated sex films distracted motorists, who slowed down to watch. The theatre's 50-by-100-foot screen is clearly visible from the roads.

After the officials complained, the theatre management changed its policy and began showing gangster films.

HUNTINGTON, W.Va. (AP) — Bon Johnson, president of the 1,000-member Radio-Television News Directors - Association, says President Nixon is wrong to blame the mood of the nation on the TV networks.

The communications media did not create the issues now facing the country—it reported them, Johnson said in an interview Tuesday. He is news director of Huntington's WSAZ-TV, an NBC affiliate.

Johnson said he is concerned Nixon's statements "may serve to distract the people from the serious issues in Washington right now."

Scientists Seeking World's Deepest Cave

PORT MORESBY (Reuter) — Scientists and adventurers from five countries have joined forces in an unexplored area of Papua-New Guinea's highlands in the hope of finding the world's deepest cave.

They will explore a site called the Muller Range, known to contain limestone more than 3,000 feet deep.

The deepest known cave is the 4,399-foot-deep Gouffre de la Pierre St. Martin in the Basses-Pyrenees on the Franco-Spanish border.

The leader of the Papua-New Guinea expedition, Dr. Julia James, says that the Muller Range will have caves more than 4,000 feet deep.

"Aerial photographs show plenty of sink-holes at the site," she said.

The project was organized by a Papua-New Guinea cave exploration group, in conjunction with similar groups from Australia, New Zealand, Sinespore and Britain.

Before setting out from Port Moresby for the Muller Range, Dr. James looked at aerial photographs of the proposed route and said: "Difficult to bloody impossible."

The 25 scientists and cave explorers, including six women, will have to hack their way through bush and tropical rain forest to reach the limestone area near the Lavani Valley.

Most of the trek will be across steep gradients 8,000 to 10,000 feet above sea level.

Government patrol officers have rarely penetrated the area, which they say is the home of nomadic Bugsio tribesmen who have never been in contact with white men.

Australian Kevan Wilde organised preliminary reconnaissance flights over the Lavani Valley to take photographs and select possible camp sites. He said the cost of the expedition would be more than $3,000, part of which would be provided by commercial and caving interests.

The main group joined Wilde's party at Tari, in the southern highlands, from where they travelled by tractor and trailers to Kelaba Mission Station.

"We hope to spend two to three months in the caves carrying out research in such fields as anthropology, geology, geomorphology, hydrology, palaeontology, speleogenesis and branches of speleology," Wilde said.

The expedition has been arranged to coincide with the southern highlands dry season, when only about 10 inches of rain falls each month.

Your Horoscope

By BERNICE BEDE OSOL

Thursday, Nov. 1

Aries (March 21-April 19) An impulsive decision you'll make today will take some undoing. Correct your mistake as soon as you spot it.

Taurus (April 20-May 20) An approach regarding some work you plan to do yourself is impractical. Let the experts handle it for you.

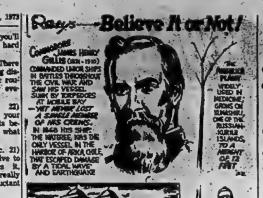
Gemini (May 21-June 20) Avoid anything of a speculative nature that requires you to invest money. Deal with things that have a proven track record.

Cancer (June 21-July 22) Think very carefully today before assuming new obligations. Later, you'll change your mind about something you think you want.

Leo (July 23-Aug. 22) Don't make changes just for change's sake. If you do you'll disrupt the slower but surer way of producing results.

Virgo (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) You'll have to put the brakes on your spending today or you'll buy things you'll have a hard time purchasing.

Libra (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) There will be some upsetting disruptions in your domestic routine toward afternoon. By evening, calm will prevail.



Scorpio (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) Your first ideas are not your best. Review your thoughts before you act. Becareful what you put into writing.

Sagittarius (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) Today you are likely to give to one who least deserves it rather than to one who really needs your help but is reluctant to ask.

Capricorn (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) You'll be tempted to think of your interests above another's today. Don't. You'll profit in the future by kind consideration.

Aquarius (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) Some conclusions you've drawn about your associates are inaccurate. Get all the facts before you air your opinion.

Pisces (Feb. 20-March 20) Be sure you look beneath the surface of any proposition that is offered you so you can spot the flaws.

SHAWANO

SHAWANO'S TOPS FOR INVESTMENT

In today's advertising prices, Shawano is an outstanding investment.

Many lot owners have seen the value of their land increase by 50% or more.

Buying a lot at Shawano is an even better investment than ever before for three reasons. One, the province is running out of recreational land. Two, lack of crown land for cottages is halted. Three, provincial planning regulations have restricted private development.

You can still buy a big, 75-acre lakefront lot at Shawano from $3600 with 10% down and excellent financing.

Shawano is the beautiful 1000-acre wilderness recreational area in the historic Hinterland of Hastings, 32 scenic miles north of Metro via Highway 62. Marvellous swimming, boating and fishing.

In Last 12 Years Land Up 87 Per Cent

OTTAWA (CP) — Rising land labor and material costs, worldwide inflation, higher personal aspirations and the post-war baby boom all play a part in driving up prices for detached, single-family homes, say housing experts.

Simon Fraser University's Prof. N. H. Lithwick of Carleton University, say the housing problem is only one thread in a complicated web of urban issues that should be tackled as a whole. But most experts agree that land costs are a prime cause of rapidly rising prices for single homes.

Land prices have risen more than 87 per cent since 1961 while total dwelling costs have climbed about 58 per cent for houses financed under the National Housing Act (NHA). Land is clearly an increasing part of the total cost.

The average lot price in Toronto is about $25,000, up $7,000 in the last two years.

While plenty of raw land is available, municipalities have complained that the cost of providing such services as sewers and water has slowed development at a time when demand is rising, thus helping boost prices.

Land costs have undoubtedly encouraged developers to move away from construction of single-family homes. In 1961, 65.4 per cent of all dwellings were single-family detached houses. In 1971 this figure had dropped to 50.5 per cent.

Construction expenses also rose, the cost of building materials increasing 41 per cent and labor costs 110.4 per cent between 1961 and 1971.

The total number of households shot up to more than six million in 1971 from about 4.5 million in 1961, creating a demand for more housing. With marriages rising to 200,000 in 1972 from 120,000 in 1962, there were more young couples looking for homes.

An economist in Central Mortgage and Housing Corp. said CMHC was surprised by the large number of "nonfamily households" formed in the 1966-71 period. They expected an average annual increase of about 50,000 but the actual figure was about 60,000.

He suggested single young people are more affluent today and move into their own apartments instead of living with their parents. All these factors increase the demand for housing.

Prof. Lithwick, author of a comprehensive federal report on housing and urban problems, also said in a recent interview that many couples want to buy their own homes at an earlier age than their parents did. CMHC figures reveal that the average age of NHA borrowers dropped from 34.5 years in 1963 to 32.2 in 1972.

He expects strong demand for single-family homes until the impact of the post-war baby boom has dropped off.

Prof. Lithwick said housing costs are also influenced by matters that are also in matters that are outside Canada.

Rampant inflation around the world spurs interest rates. Canada is particularly influenced by U.S. factors. When U.S. rates rise, Canadian investment money flows south, leading to higher rates for money here.

Nations with strong currencies, such as Japan, are buying more construction materials from Canada, where the relative value of the dollar is declining. This helps increase the cost of these materials here.

There are local factors, too. For instance, a CMHC spokesman in Vancouver said municipalities are upgrading their servicing requirements for land, contributing to higher costs.

He said the controversial British Columbia Land Commission Act, approved by the provincial legislature last spring, has had "at least a psychological effect" in prompting higher land costs. The act put a freeze on development of agricultural land in outlying areas of Vancouver.

There was ample raw land not affected by the freeze but it was more costly to provide services.

Housing costs are high on the Halifax peninsula because there is no room to grow. The Greenbelt, a ring of untouched land around Ottawa belonging to the federal government, restricts growth of the national capital.

Municipal zoning frequently calls for better housing than in the past, partly to increase municipal property-tax revenue.

Single-family homes built today generally look more attractive than houses built 10 years ago. But only those in higher-income brackets can afford to buy them.

Some developers and real estate agents say that only six per cent of families are able to buy new, detached, single-family homes compared to about 28 per cent in 1961. This figure, however, is disputed by some CMHC economists.

There is also the impact of speculation. Major Mel Lastman of North York, a borough of Metropolitan Toronto, charged last April that one developer bought a piece of land in June, 1971, for $500,000 and sold it 10 months later to another developer for $1,125,000 without improving the property.

He cited other examples of speculation, which he said adds to the final price tag of houses without benefit to the public.

So, a slatter-full of problems faces anyone brave enough to look for a solution to the housing crisis for middle-income families.

Abitibi Newsprint Community Bulwark

IROQUOIS FALLS, Ont. (CP) — Almost the worst news this town of 7,200 could get is that its newsprint mill is closing.

The mill, owned by Abitibi Paper Co. Ltd., was established in 1915 and today its 1,200 jobs are the main reason for the town's existence.

Not too long ago, Mayor Aurele Gervais's home was flooded by telephone calls from panic-stricken citizens over news reports that the mill would close in 1975.

The reports quoted a leaked report from the federal department of regional economic expansion. Telegrams were sent to Ottawa by MPs, Gervais and Abitibi officials assured town council that the reports were erroneous. Calm returned.

Iroquois Falls is the kind of place where the 25-year-old girls return from southern Ontario universities for the summer to paint white lines on the town's streets.

"If we're here painting lines on the road, I guess the town has got to survive," said Helen Alexander.

"It's a relaxed pace of life. Friendly, and where you know everybody and everybody knows all the scandal and gossip. It's a real home town."

"You've got to make your own entertainment," said Louelle Shallow. "There is not much entertainment for a kid if you don't."

Iroquois Falls is for those who like an outdoor life. In the winter the town reverberates with snowmobiles and in the summer many use trailers and cottages only a few minutes' drive from their homes.

In appearances the town looks like any other in southern Ontario—paved streets in subdivisions with manicured lawns and tree-shaded parks.

A nine-hole golf course is within the shadow of the mill and there are amenities such as a curling rink and movie theatre.

But it is not quite Utopia.

Definitely not for upper-privileged compared with southern Ontario, says Mrs. Gervais.

The biggest obstacle to economic expansion is the high cost of transportation. It raises the cost of consumer goods and makes it uneconomical for industries to locate in the north.

Mr. Gervais said that at one time mill wages were well above average for the province and residents could afford the extra costs. But now, while workers are not underpaid, their wages are no higher than others and at an average $3.85 an hour, the higher cost of living hurts.

The town is anxious to attract commercial development, such as shopping facilities.

"Even though we want industry, we are not necessarily after a carbon copy of the South," said Gervais, "we only want to plan our development."

EXPORT BAN LIFTED

PRETORIA, South Africa (AP) — South Africa resumed exporting baby elephants after a three-year moratorium ordered as a health precaution. Veterinarian now are satisfied that the exported animals did not carry hoof and mouth disease.

BROADEST STRAITS

The world's broadest straits are the Mozambique Straits which are, at one point, 360 miles across.

Nova Scotia Dairymen Hit by Soaring Costs

MILFORD, N.S. (CP) — Alfred Scothorn shook his greying head and glanced across his yard to the barn where his 100 Holstein cows are sheltered night and day.

"There's no incentive to stay in the business any more with grain prices the way they are," he said.

Incentive or no, Mr. Scothorn will stay in dairy farming because he has other forms of income from his 125 head of beef cattle and from harvesting the timber on his land in the winter.

"I might least want a little money this year," he said, "but it won't be from dairy farming."

But the farmer who must rely on dairy farming for his whole income is caught in a real pinch, and some of them are dropping out.

The problem is that production costs are soaring, but the cost of milk is pegged at a rate set by the Nova Scotia Dairy Commission.

At the same time, beef prices are so high that some farmers consider their cows to be more valuable as beef than as milkers.

"I think they're going to go out of production," Mr. Scothorn said. "I really do.

Some already have. There are about 900 fluid milk producers in the province, he said. Last year, 45 producers dropped out of production and he expected even more to go this year.

"Beef prices are so high that we can sell our whole herd off and get more money for them than we could if we kept them for dairy production," he said.

The main source of trouble is the price farmers have to pay for feed. Prices have almost doubled since last year for most types of feed concentrate.

Mr. Scothorn pays $140 for a tonne of feed concentrate he needs each day to keep his herd healthy. Last year, it cost only $80.

In addition to feed concentrate, farmers need roughage, which has a high fibre content and less nourishment than the concentrates.

Hay and corn are the most important roughage crops in Nova Scotia but this year the first hay crop was badly hurt by a wet summer. Much of the hay was unharvestable and what was salvaged had much of its nourishment leached out.

It could have been a serious situation, but a dry September saved the day. Agriculture department spokesmen said the second hay crop was of excellent quality and, except in a few isolated localities, silos are full.

Still, hay will be less plentiful and of poorer quality this winter than in most years. That will force farmers to buy more of the costly feed supplements to make up for the losses in nutrition.

Mr. Scothorn, like many Nova Scotia farmers in central Scotia and the Annapolis Valley, grows mainly corn for his roughage, so he is not hurt by the early hay crop failure.

Feed grains are only part of the problem. Fuel price increases are irritants to all dairy farmers, but for the farmer they can be a painful blow.

"We have a tractor that will use 60-100 gallons a day," Mr. Scothorn said. "And the cost of that machinery has skyrocketed too."

Wages add to the cost-price squeeze. The dairy farmer has to pay his help more and he needs more income himself to keep up the rising cost of living.

Canada Manpower job training programs subsidize the wages of some employees, but dairy farmers don't qualify and they have to compete with farms in industries that do.

"Most dairy farms are in their own operation," said Mr. Scothorn, who employs a four of his adult sons on the farm. "Your son doesn't qualify for Canada Manpower assistance, although he could go work for his neighbor.

"This is psychological because it puts cheap labor on some farms and puts the fellow with sons in a tough position."

Mr. Scothorn feels that even if dairy farmers got more for their milk it would not be enough to solve his problems.

He contended that the average dairy farmer, with $100,000 tied up in machinery and land, should be entitled to a fair return on his investment. If a theoretical profit for the investment is deducted from his annual net income, the average farmer is left with only $2,700 as payment for his year's labor.

"To bring his income up, we'd have to put the price of milk up to $1 a quart," he said.

Subsidies are a possible solution, but Mr. Scothorn cautioned that they can create side problems. For instance, subsidies introduced after the Second World War to improve feed grain shipped to eastern producers helped the producers obtain needed grain, but it also put farmers in Nova Scotia out of the business of growing grain.

"It's fine to put a subsidy on feed grains coming into Canada, but at the same time there should have been subsidies on grain grown here," Mr. Scothorn said.

Squalid Refugee Camps Bangladesh War Debris

DACCA (Reuter) — A squalid camp on the outskirts of Dacca is a grim reminder that tens of thousands of people are in danger of becoming permanent refugees, entirely dependent on international charity to remain alive.

They are people unwanted by any country. They are not to go to Pakistan but Pakistan is reluctant to accept them. Bangladesh says that as they have chosen Pakistan it is there they should go.

Often termed Biharis because many of them originally came from the Indian state of Bihar, they are mainly Urdu-speaking and therefore in a minority in Bangladesh. Their troubles began when many of them sided with Pakistan during the 1971 civil war which ended with the creation of Bangladesh out of what was formerly East Pakistan.

Since December, 1971, they have been cooped up in ghettos in various parts of the country. There is no reliable estimate of their numbers but there are perhaps 500,000 Biharis in Bangladesh.

The Bangladesh government says 250,000 opted for Pakistan in a survey conducted last year. But under the Delhi Agreement, which has led to the start of negotiation between Pakistan and Bangladesh, only a "substantial number" are to go to Pakistan.

About 60,000 people are expected to, leave in the first phase. The fate of the remainder is to be decided at talks between Pakistan and Bangladesh. But these discussions cannot be held until Pakistan recognizes Bangladesh and there is no knowing when that will happen.

Relief officials and diplomats are seriously concerned that some 200,000 people will simply be forgotten. Pakistan says it cannot take such large numbers—many of whom have never lived there—because of the tensions it will create with the local population.

For Bangladesh, to accept them would place a still greater strain on the economy and worsen the already severe unemployment problem. Some Biharis still live in houses they occupied before the troubles began. Others, who have drifted in from the countryside, are in camps supported mainly by the International Committee of the Red Cross and the Bangladesh Red Cross.

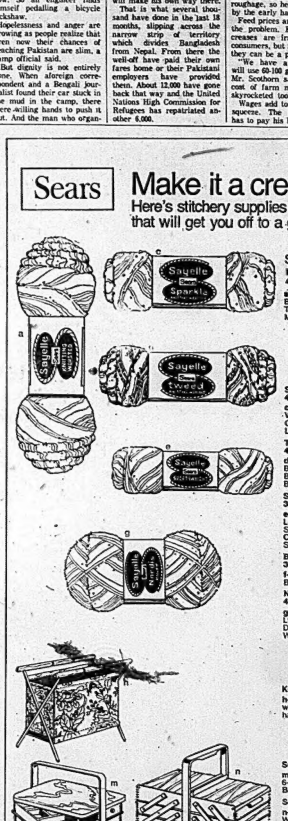
At the new relief camp at Mohammedpur, about 30,000 people are crammed into 2-metre-by-3-metre bamboo huts, sometimes 60 or 70 people exist in a hut no more than 20 feet by 15 feet. There is no electricity and the mud floor is dimly covered with matting. Sanitation is primitive. Open drains filled with stagnant water are a breeding ground for mosquitoes despite a disinfectant program supported by the Red Cross. In the monsoon season the water pours into the huts.

Epidemics have somehow been averted despite insufficient medicines. But malnutrition is widespread and evidently is supplied by the Bangladesh Red Cross and is probably as much as is available to the average Bengali.

Children are in rags or naked.

Hardly anyone has a pot to piss in.

MILKING THE PUBLIC



SN FRANCISCO (AP) — The state has a new recruiting gimmick—milk carton advertising. A navy recruiting poster has been reproduced on the side panel of about two million quart milk boxes now being used throughout Northern California and Nevada.

Kenya's Hilton-style Skyline Only 20 Years From Mau-Maus

NAIROBI, Kenya (CP) — The Hilton-style skyline in this bastion of old British colonial Africa is only 10 minutes by road from a wild lion's roar and 20 years from the savage Mau Mau war of Independence.

Independence came only 12 years ago and, in the best British tradition, President Jomo Kenyatta was in jail for seven years until his release in 1961.

Mau Mau seemed a long time ago as more than 3,000 visitors poured recently into this highlands city of 500,000—90 miles from the Equator—to conduct sophisticated annual international money-any discussions in a $10-million new Kenyatta conference centre as sophisticated as anything in the world.

African comparisons are difficult but Kenya must be considered a leading candidate for the title of most successful of the emerging black nations.

It remains one of the world's fast-dwindling lotus lands, a relic of the old, easy British tea and coffee plantations where servants are cheap and abundant, the golf and tennis year-round.

CRIME RATE HIGH

But poverty exists too, with one of the highest crime rates in Africa. Monetary conference planning included clapping beggars, prostitutes and other undesirables into jail and heavy police and military patrolling night and day.

Hence, continuing heavy reliance on foreign aid.

The Canadian International Development Agency (CIDA) budget for Kenya this year is $6.5 million, about fifth among international contributors.

Neighboring Tanzania, where the Canadian aid staff is older and bigger, has taken the socialist path to progress. Uganda's erratic Gen. Idi Amin has plunged into an alternative, abrupt policy of "Africanization" highlighted last year by the ousting of about 40,000 East Indian residents.

But Amin's popularity inside and outside Uganda among Africans should not be discounted, Canadian officials here suggest. His means may be questioned but not his aims and other African leaders are well aware of political elements in their own nations who favor such in-a-hurry tactics.

But for the time being in Kenya, the ageless Kenyatta stands front and centre of a one-party government—as do all that are—speaking for about 12 million people, virtually all black and divided into 40 tribes.

Monetary meeting delegates could read about a more traditional Africa—the spearing to death of 10 Turkana cattle rustlers by Masai tribesmen.

Newspapers provide a steady diet of criticism of South African separate-races policies and emphasize the steadily-expanding evidence that neighboring Rhodesia's white minority regime faces an inevitable guerrilla war.

But the new hotels, the teeming motor traffic and a tourist industry expected to net more than $100 million next year in this safari country headquarters all point to a black-nation prosperity bestowed by a unique variety of resources and a calculated government policy of utilizing all the domestic and foreign financing it can harvest. Traffic deaths outnumber frontier slayings.

Britain is by far the biggest donor, the depth of its good relations with the old colony reflected in the fact that the bulk of the senior government officials from abroad are British.

Sweden's aid volume runs a second, says Carolyn McCrakie, the young Scottish-born girl from Vancouver who for two years has been the Canadian aid representative here.

The Canadian aid slice to Tanzania runs about $12 million to $15 million annually and that country's total is harder to estimate because, for example, of a heavy involvement by the People's Republic of china.

Canada was providing Uganda with about $3 million a year until it was halted last year when it became difficult or impossible to continue operating. Uganda has been pressing Canada to resume the program but no great urgency is being exhibited by Ottawa. Political resentment is felt to exist among Canadian voters about the Asian expulsion. Canada in a crash program took about 7,000 of the 40,000 and Britain most of the rest.

Officials here also suggest that Uganda has enough arable land to make it less dependent than many other African states on foreign aid.

Canadian aid to Kenya includes about $2.5 million in grants for projects, training and other development, listed as much one of Canada's resources as possible.

One key adviser funded by CIDA is Taki Davis of York University, Toronto, who is directing formation of the five-year national development program.

Canada has been involved since 1967 in a wheat research station at Njoro, about 100 miles north, where scientists have been evolving new wheat strains including rust-resistant and high-altitude varieties. Kenya is maize country but wheat has a future, officials believe.

Another contribution is project of eight to 10 professors a year to the University of Nairobi medical and commerce faculties. Five to 10 Kenyan students are financed at Canadian universities to take master's or doctorate degrees.

The program reflects the fact that while Kenya is considered to have generally superior top echelons of native administrators, there are big gaps, especially with the progressive squeeze on the Asians who have controlled business and finance.

The need is for more trained middle - management people.

Black pride is a major element in the Kenyatta strategy summed up in the Swahili word, repeated again and again here: It is "harambee," or pulling together. Kenya Radio works hard at the theme: "African problems will be solved by African solutions by Africans."

So far, it is working although the post-Kenyatta era is a major question mark.

Indian School Boycott Now Yielding Results

MORLEY, Alta. (CP) — In 1969, Stoney Indians on the Morley Reserve boycotted their grade school, because they were fed up with having no voice in the education of their children.

As a result, when school started this September, the Stoneys not only had a new kindergarten centre but their children began learning Stoney language, history, philosophy and social studies.

They are being taught how to survive in the wilderness and how to survive culturally in the white man's world.

The school has come a long way since James Kequitis, 33, director of graphic arts for the Stoney Cultural Education Program (SCEP) was a student on the reserve 40 miles west of Calgary.

He remembers that if any of the Indian children were caught speaking Stoney in school their white teachers would give them a cuff on the head with a book.

"We want our children to grow up proud because they are Indian—so they won't feel discouraged and ashamed when they confront white society," said Mr. Kaquitis.

"As it stands now, when children leave the reserve they don't have enough background in their own culture to be really Indian and they don't have enough knowledge of white society to be confidered white—so they are stuck in the middle with the negative aspects of both races.

"When many Indians leave the reserve they actually start to believe that Indians are only bums and drunks because that's all they've ever heard said about them."

SCEP is the most advanced Indian education program in Canada, although similar programs have been started on various reserves across the country, particularly by the Ojibway.

The program has its roots in a Bible translation program undertaken by several Stoneys and Warren Barbeck of Wycliffe Bible Translators. Stoney was not a written language and, in the process of transcribing sounds to phonetic symbols, a Stoney-English dictionary was developed.

Three years ago, the Stoney band council hired Ian Getty to research the tribe's legal title to land around the Big Horn Dam.

Mr. Getty initiated a program, later funded by the federal government's Local Initiatives Program, in which 20 Stoneys sought out Indian elders and tape-recorded their accounts of Stoney history, philosophy and legends.

These tapes, translated and indexed, together with the dictionary formed the groundwork for SCEP, which receives about $10,000 a month from the Alberta Indian Education Centre.

About 20 Stoneys and four non-Indians are working for SCEP, developing story lines for readers, drawing maps for history texts and writing language primers in both Stoney and English.

The curriculum incorporates the new courses with traditional subjects such as science, math, world history and social studies.

Although there are no certified Indian teachers at Morley, Stoney teacher aides are available to help with instruction, especially in language studies.

The attitude which gives responsibility for Indian education to Indians is a drastic change from government policy 10 years ago which favored closing reserve schools and integrating native children into white institutions.

At that time the Morley school was cut to only the first three grades. Children in higher grades were bused to other communities and educational funds allotted to the reserve were put into surrounding white schools.

Children who wanted to attend high school had to board in Calgary during the week and re-turn to their families only on weekends.

"Most of the youngsters found it very hard to adjust to living in the city and in the white culture and they just couldn't adapt," said Chief John Snow. "As a result hardly any of our students finished high school."

The Stoneys hope to see a high school built on the reserve while the next two years for both Indians and whites,

Dial-a-Lawyer Service Finds Fewer Customers

TORONTO (CP) — Ontario's Legal Aid Plan, which in January inaugurated North America's first all-night dial-a-lawyer service for people who wind up in Toronto police stations, has found it difficult to find customers.

The service was run experimentally for eight weeks, halted for an evaluation and then resumed in mid-May on a more or less permanent basis.

During the two-month test run, about 4,500 persons were picked up and taken to police stations in Metropolitan Toronto charged with criminal offences.

Dial-a-lawyer got 87 calls for help, 37 of them from drivers charged as impaired.

Since the service was put on a permanent basis, calls average two or three a night.

But Legal Aid officials say they are not discouraged.

"Frankly, we expected to get a few more calls than we did," said W. Reid Donkin, Legal Aid's York County director. "I still think it's a good idea although it's going to take a while for it to catch on."

For one thing, only the police know the number to call. Legal Aid officials have been unable to figure out any other method of "preventing on-duty lawyers from being hauled out of bed by chatty drunks or by persons whose legal problems are far removed from the police-station emergency the plan was set up to meet.

"We don't intend to make it a 24-hour, call-from-wherever-you-are service," Mr. Donkin said. "At this point, it's designed solely to give a guy a source of help aside from the police."

John B. Allen, Mr. Donkin's deputy, said the success of the program "depends on the co-operation of the police."

Sidney B. Linden, Toronto lawyer long involved in civil liberties work, said: "If the police don't call the number nobody ever hears about it. Certain officers will always tell an accused the service is available and certain others will never tell him."

Two years ago Mr. Linden worked on a project for the Canadian Civil Liberties Education Trust which, in its report, asked the Ontario government to stop police station abuses of criminally suspects. It found the suspects were usually not told they could remain silent and often wound up incriminating themselves.

That report prompted the organization of the dial-a-lawyer service.

The way it works now, a criminal suspect is supposed to see a poster when he is booked. It tells him that if he wants a lawyer, he should ask the policeman to call the night duty counsel.

Small Business Lent Hand

TORONTO (CP) — Four college students are getting small businessmen to spruce up their shops to make local shopping more competitive with large, suburban malls.

"If small business improves, the whole neighborhood improves," says Ted Silberberg, one of the four students in a $12,710 Opportunities For Youth project aimed at helping small businesses survive.

He and Jon Louch got the idea last year when their high school geography class studied small businesses as an economics project. Bruce Sherland and Margaret McGregor are the other members of the project.

Mr. Silberber says that helping small businesses survive in the face of chain store and plaza competition "is for the good of the whole economy—it's helping prevent monopoly."

Mr. Louch says he was struck by the "apathy" of small businessmen, their hopelessness in the face of economic trends to bigness and the way they appear to sit around and wait for things to happen to them.
